ONE FAMILY IS WIPED OUT

Six persons perished in a fire which swept through the four-story brick and stone apartment house at 17 Humboldt Street, Williamsburg, early yesterday morning, and twenty or more dwellers there narrowly escaped with their lives. Many of them were rescued by policemen and salvage corps men at the risk of their own lives while hundreds of persons stood in the street below and cheered the rescuers. Several men, women, and children jumped from the windows of the burning building and landed in nets spread by the firemen. Two missed the nets and fell upon the pavement.

Those who were saved believe that the fire was an incendiary one. It started in the basement shortly after a strange man who acted suspiciously was seen in the hallway on the ground floor. Four other basement fires were started in buildings within a radius of four blocks from 17 Humboldt Street a few hours before the building was burned.

Those who lost their lives were:

ABRAMS, Mrs. ROSA, 62 years old; suffocated by smoke; body burned until it was difficult to recognize it.

ABRAMS, SADIE, 22 years old, killed by smoke and flames.

The entire Abrams family was wiped out. Mrs. Abrams was a widow, and lived in the Humboldt Street house with her son and three daughters. They were sleeping soundly. Their flat was on the right side of the hallway on the top floor—the fourth. There was no fire escape on the front of the building, and they were cut off from escape by means of the fire escapes in the rear.

The fire in the basement is supposed to have started about midnight, but it was not until 1:45 o'clock in the morning that the occupants learned that the building was ablaze. On the first floor lived Mrs. Rebecca Silverman, her son, and her two daughters, and also Sussman Levy, the janitor, and his wife. The Silvermans and the Levys had retired early. Mrs. Levy, who had been disturbed several times after retiring and was sleeping lightly, heard the sound of crackling flames and opened the hall door to peep out. A sheet of flame was shooting upward from the basement. It had already reached the second floor by means of the stairway. Mrs. Levy awoke her husband and ran out into the street, screaming "Fire!"

Police Drag Out Imperiled Family.

Sergt. Twillman was in the neighborhood. He sent in an alarm at once, and with Policemen Thomas Nosky and Thomas Carroll then hastened to the scene. When the Levys had left the house the door had fastened behind them and the policemen had to batter down the door. They entered and rescued Mrs. Rebecca Silverman, Julia and Katie Silverman and their brother, Harry Silverman. All the Silvermans were in their night clothes. Smoke was in their bedrooms, but they were sleeping until the policemen arrived. By the time the Silvermans were carried to safety the flames had reached the top floor, and screams could be heard all through the house. The policemen could not get higher than the first floor, for the stairways were filled with smoke and flames.

On the second floor lived Frank Tomala, his wife, and three children, and Mrs. Amelia Hirshborn and her ten children, also Frank Dumbata, a boarder of the Tomalas. By the time the Silvermans were rescued the occupants of the second floor were making efforts to reach the windows, front and back. The policemen obtained a section of the fire escape ladder in the rear and carried it to the front of the house, hooking it to the coping, but before they got the ladder in place the heat had become so intense inside that it was unbearable. Herman Hirshborn, 22 years old, son of Mrs. Amelia Hirshborn, kept his mother and the other children at the front windows, where they could get air.

Fire engines and a hook and ladder company had arrived by this time, and two more alarms had been sent in. The firemen, seeing the women and children at the windows, stretched nets and yelled for them to jump. Herman grabbed his little brother Joe and dropped him into the net. Then Itska, another brother, followed, and next came the baby, Dora. The other members of the family were guided by Herman. His mother, Amelia, jumped, but missed the net and fell upon the street, injuring herself internally. She was taken to St. Catharine's Hospital. She is not dangerously hurt. Herman, the last of the Hirshborns, jumped and landed safely in the net.

While this was going on, another thrilling rescue was taking place on the top floor. On that floor lived the Abrams and the family of Nathan Potar, his wife and three children, two girls and a boy. The Potars had gone to bed early, all except one of the girls, who was entertaining her fiancé, Philip Harris. Their flat is on the left side of the house, adjoining 15 Humboldt Street. Long before the truck companies could get a ladder to the top floor the flames had reached there and smoke was dense in every room.

Daring Rescue by Firemen.

Lieut. Charles R. Roy of the Thirty-third Salvage Corps Station, with four of his men, saw the peril which menaced the occupants of the top floor. They forced their way into 15 Humboldt Street and reached the fourth floor. Andrew Keupp and Arthur C. Cordes of the Salvage Corps Company straddled the window sill nearest No. 17, and Keupp leaned over as far as he could and looked into BATTLESHIPS IN PERIL.

MONTEREY, Cal., May 3.—The battleships Illinois and Alabama had narrow escapes last night from a serious collision.

While a northwest gale was sweeping into the harbor the anchor chain of the Illinois parted and the battleship went drifting toward the shore.

She headed directly for the Alabama, and it looked for a time as though it would be impossible to avert a collision.

By heroic work, however, the helmsman of the Illinois managed to steer the drifting ship away, and the only damage done was the tearing away of the port gangway of the Alabama. The Illinois drifted fully 800 yards before her emergency anchors, sent spinning into the white-capped waters, finally held fast.

The winds continued to-day, and the Illinois made no attempt to regain her position in the Fourth Division column.

As early as 9 o'clock last night it was announced that no more steam launches would run between the ships and the shore. Many little stout steamers that already had made the shore were held in the sheltered waters, and the launches near the ships were hauled out of the water.

A thousand liberty men were ashore, and the problem of finding a place for them to sleep severely taxed the available buildings in Monterey. The patrol officers on duty had to share the lot of the men and sleep on hard pine floors, with only their capes to protect them.

Admiral Sperry's barge from the Alabama had a hole stove in her bows as a result of a collision with the ship's gangway, and was beached later in the night. A schooner laden with lime also went ashore, and a gasoline launch, in which an unfastened lighted lantern had been left burning, caught fire and went to the bottom.

It is believed that the anchor from the Illinois when the cable parted last night may not be recovered, as the water is too deep for divers to work in.

All of the ships managed to send boats to the shore to-day at intervals. It was said, however, that if the blow continued it might delay the departure of the second squadron ships from Santa Cruz to-morrow.

KINNEY HEIR AGAIN MISSING.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 3.—Joel Kinney, son of the late Francis Sherwood Kinney, the tobacco manufacturer, has been found in Los Angeles, after having been absent from his home for ten years. He has been lost again, however, and E. C. M. Rand of New York has been compelled to go back without the young man. He says he gave up $500 to get Kinney into his possession.

Kinney, according to Rand, quarreled with his father and was sent on a trip around the world in a chartered sailing vessel, accompanied by detectives, whose duty it was to see that he did not return to New York. He has been away ever since.

After his father's death recently the other heirs of the $12,000,000 estate sought him. Through District Attorney Jerome's office he was traced to Los Angeles, and Mr. Rand was sent here.

"I was approached by two well-known Los Angeles men," said Mr. Rand. "They offered to bring young Kinney to me, but demanded money for their service. Detectives had failed me, and after beating them down to $500, I took their offer. They brought the young man to me, and I paid them the money. Then they wanted to go to the bank and wanted Kinney to go with them for a few minutes. I consented, and have not laid eyes on Kinney since. I saw the two men afterward, but they denied having had anything to do with Kinney after they left the bank."

J. A. Graves, President of the Farmers and Merchants' National Bank, and Abbott Kinney, an uncle, corroborated the story. Mr. Kinney, however, says he had not seen his nephew since he has been in Los Angeles.

At the Kinney residence, 19 West Fifty-fourth Street, last night a member of the family explained that Joel Kinney was sent out to Los Angeles ten years ago by his father, principally on account of his health, and had remained there ever since. It was also stated that Kinney was now in the train on his way to New York. He had been in communication with his father up to the time of the latter's death on April 4, and had since written frequently to the family in this city. Joel Kinney is in his twenty-seventh year.

POISON INSTEAD OF A JOB.

Musician Out of Work Gave Up Search—Wife Thought He'd Succeeded.

Samuel Horowitz, who is 34, and lives at 55 East 100th Street, is a musician—that is, he is a musician when he can get a chance. But somehow his horn has been idle of late, and things have gone bad with him and his wife and boy. Engagements were far between, and the color of everything he had seen for weeks was either blue or black. He had confided with his wife, and the larder proved what he said was true.

Last night, hopeless, he went downtown. He would walk around some, as there wouldn't be any calls for music on Sunday. But his courage hit rock bottom, and he went into a drug store in Orchard Street, near Broome, and helping himself to a bottle of insect poison, he said: "Ah, well, what's the use? Here goes." And he drank it all.

The ambulance from the Gouverneur Hospital came in a hurry, and Horowitz was taken there, where it was said he might recover. Police of the Eldridge Street Station telephoned his wife. She had been hoping all the evening that her husband would get an engagement. When the message came for her to come to the station house she was happy.

"Sam had gotten an engagement, and I am to take the horn down to him," she told a neighbor. Sure enough, she brushed up her faded dress a bit herself, scrubbed her little hopeful's face, and plastered his hair down flat and neat. Looking brighter and feeling happier than she had for weeks she hurried to the station house.

It took four big policemen to make her understand, and then she fainted.

THAW'S MOTHER AIDS FIGHT FOR FREEDOM

HEARING ON WRIT TO-DAY

District Attorney Jerome Will Oppose Release and Will Move for Trial in New York.

Col. Franklin Bartlett, attorney for Mrs. Mary Copeley Thaw of Pittsburg, mother of Harry K. Thaw, who is in the Asylum for the Criminal Insane at Matteawan, gave out a statement in behalf of Mrs. Thaw yesterday, in which he said that she, as well as all the other members of the Thaw family, believe that Thaw is sane and will aid him in every way to obtain his release from Matteawan. The writ of habeas corpus obtained by Lawyer James G. Graham of Newburg, which called for Thaw's appearance before Justice Morschauser in the Supreme Court at Poughkeepsie, will be argued at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

District Attorney Jerome said yesterday that Assistant District Attorney Garvan will represent him at Poughkeepsie to-day, and will move to have the case transferred to New York County. It is probable that in the event of the motion to transfer the proceedings to New York County being denied by Justice Morschauser, Mr. Jerome will ask for an adjournment of the hearing of the charges preferred against him in this city, so that he may go to Poughkeepsie to personally oppose the effort to set Thaw free.

If the case is heard by Justice Morschauser, Col. Bartlett said, that Justice would decide it on its merits, without the assistance of a commission or a jury. If it is transferred to New York, another Justice will hear the case, and either a commission or a jury may be used in determining the issue.

"I am authorized by Mrs. Thaw," said Col. Bartlett yesterday, "to say that the stories to the effect that the Thaw family are opposed to her son's efforts for release from the Matteawan Asylum are without foundation. While it is not necessary for the family to take any active part, all are in full sympathy with Harry Thaw's efforts for freedom.

"At no time has Mrs. William T. Thaw been reconciled to her son's detention in Matteawan, but the summary order of the court committing him there was so swiftly carried out that there was no opportunity for remonstrances against committing an acquitted man to an asylum for the criminal insane. It has been Mrs. Thaw's long-cherished desire that her son should accompany her to Europe, and for this she has all the more patiently endured until the present time and has written to me not to allow the impression to prevail that the Thaw family are opposed to Harry Thaw's present plans."

When asked if he had seen Thaw recently, Col. Bartlett replied:

"Yes, I saw him last Thursday and in my opinion he is sane. I am not counsel in the release proceedings, but to me as a layman he acted rationally and his appearance was that of a sane man."

Col. Bartlett said further that Mrs. Thaw was very conscientious in this, as in all matters, and that if she did not believe her son to be sane she would be the last person to wish to see him set free.

In the evidence which will be produced in the habeas corpus hearing before Justice Morschauser will be the testimony of Harry Thaw's mother at both trials of her son. Mrs. Thaw testified as to hereditary insanity in her family, and as to Harry Thaw's tendencies in childhood and his actions at various periods up to the time he killed Stanford White.

In the second trial Martin W. Littleton brought about Thaw's acqutal of Thaw by a plain defense of insanity at the time of the killing, leaving open the question of Thaw's present mental condition.

Col. Bartlett said he did not know whether Thaw's mother would go to Poughkeepsie or not to-day. Nor did he know whether Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw would take the stand to aid her husband in his fight to get out of Matteawan.

MGR. O'CONNELL A BISHOP.

His Consecration in the Baltimore Cathedral an Elaborate Ceremony.

BALTIMORE, May 3.—Mgr. Dennis J. O'Connell, rector of the Catholic University at Washington, was to-day consecrated Titular Bishop of Sabate.

The ceremonies took place in the Cathedral during the grand high mass, which was preceded by a procession of lay students of the Catholic University, brothers of schools, sanctuary boys, seminarians, members of religious orders, secular clergy, acolytes, the Faculty of the Catholic University, Vicars General, Roman prelates, right reverend Abbots, Bishops, and Archbishops.

Cardinal Gibbons was the celebrant of the mass, during the intervals of which he occupied his dais at the right of the sanctuary, while opposite him sat the Apostolic Delegate, Mgr. Falconio, surrounded by members of his household.

The altar was brilliant with lights and beautiful with Easter lilies and other white flowers.

MISSING WITH $5,000 CASH.

Police Asked to Find Denver Man Who Came Here Saturday.

The police have been asked to send out a general alarm for Isadore Gerster, who arrived here Saturday morning from Denver and who was last seen in the Grand Central Station on Saturday afternoon when he had $5,000 cash with him.

Gerster had sold out a store that he had kept in Denver and had come to New York to visit his brother-in-law, Leo Friedman of 1,926 Second Avenue. After he had taken his wife and baby to his brother-in-law's store on Second Avenue he had gone back to the Grand Central Station, where he had paid for the delivery of their baggage to the Second Avenue store. He had with him the money he had gotten for his Denver store, his wife's gold watch, his own gold watch, and several diamond rings. His wife and relatives fear that he may have been killed for the sake of the money and valuables he carried with him.

FEW FULL-BLOODED BLACKS.

Dr. Slaughter of London Says They Are Disappearing in America.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 3.—Dr. J. W. Slaughter, Secretary of the Sociological Society here, who was brought up on an old-fashioned plantation in the southern part of the United States, has just given out some interesting views on the question of intermarriage between American blacks and whites which was raised at the black and white dinner in New York last week.

"While I am not inclined to believe," said Dr. Slaughter, "that intermarriage between the two races is possible to any considerable extent, biological assimilation is going on in America all the time. The inter-breeding, in fact, continues on an ever-increasing scale, and in the course of a few decades the really full-blooded black will be the exception.

"I can't say that color will disappear, because, as has been shown by recent investigations, under the operation of what is known as mendelism, qualities single out and revert to original types, just as blondes revert to the original Scandinavian type.

"The probability is that mendelism applies in America, and that there always will be a separate type there, just as there are blondes and brunettes among ourselves. As there must be perpetually a half-caste, and also a reversion to type, the movement going on would take three generations to produce the final type."

Prof. Karl Pearson, another distinguished biologist, expresses the belief that intermarriages "could only raise blacks by lowering whites."

BAILEY'S SWEEP IN TEXAS.

May Have the Solid Delegation to the Denver Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

DALLAS, May 3.—Additional returns make certain the victory of United States Senator Bailey over his political enemies in yesterday's primary election for delegates to the National Convention at Denver. His opponents to-night concede that he has won by approximately 40,000 majority. His campaign managers say that the majority will exceed 50,000.

Almost complete returns have been received from 800 voting precincts of the 3,000 precincts in the State. On these he has a majority of 32,000. The precincts are located in the more thickly settled sections and represent approximately one-half of the vote cast yesterday.

Next to his own victory in the State the most gratifying result to Mr. Bailey is that practically the thirty-two district delegates will be his friends. There is only one Congressional district, the Twelfth, where there is any serious doubt as to the complexion of the county conventions that will meet on Tuesday next. The outlook now is that the entire Texas delegation to Denver will be made up of Bailey and his friends. Even the Dallas district, the stronghold of anti-Baileyism, is for Bailey by five majority in the district convention.

FRICTION WITH EMBASSIES.

Three of Them Violate Diplomatic Etiquette on Pure Food Laws.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The friction that the rigid enforcement of the pure food laws has engendered between foreign shippers of foodstuffs to this country and the Bureau of Chemistry has led to breaches of diplomatic etiquette on the part of three embassies in Washington. As the violations, however, were only of form, and as no results were gained by the unprecedented methods of the foreign representatives, the State Department has passed the matter over with polite "intimations," and is now making every effort to keep the entire matter secret.

In each of the three cases the difficulty arose when, under the order of the Chief of the Bureau of Chemistry, Dr. H. W. Wiley, foodstuffs shipped to this country were deported to the port whence they came as being below the requirements of the law. The error of the foreign diplomats consisted in simply ignoring the State Department and taking up their differences directly with Dr. Wiley or with Secretary Wilson.

The incident is made the more extraordinary by the fact that two of the embassies at fault represent European nations famed for their diplomatic finesse. And the third country involved has such a reputation for shrewdness that its evasion of the accepted procedure in international negotiations is no less to be wondered at.

CONFESSED TO MANY CRIMES.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., May 3.—Stewart B. Mills of New Hampton, this county, who has caused much trouble to the Postal authorities and local police by asserting he was a great criminal, has been committed to the Middletown State Hospital for the Insane. He is about 30 years old.

He recently made voluntary confession that he had robbed the Post Office at Mountainville, Orange County, by blowing up the safe. He also confessed to the robbing of two stores at Cornwall, and said that his conscience bothered him.

The Postal authorities were notified. It was found that the burglaries had taken place as Mills stated, but there was no evidence to connect him with the crimes. He has continued to make confessions, and at last it was decided that he was insane.

CHILD FATALLY BURNED.

Falls Into a Bonfire—Mother and a Neighbor Burned Aiding Him.

Isidor Churgin, 6 years old, of 1,920 Douglass Street, East New York, fell into a bonfire yesterday afternoon while playing with several other children. Mrs. Churgin heard her child's shrieks, and, rushing to where he lay, pulled him from the fire and endeavored to smother his blazing clothing. Her own clothes took fire, and before neighbors reached her her hands, arms, and face had been badly burned. William Schmidt, a neighbor, suffered from burns of the hands while aiding Mrs. Churgin.

At St. Mary's Hospital, where the Churgin child was taken, it was said last night that he would die.

THREE CARS WILL BE LEFT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 3.—It seems probable that there will be but three cars to complete the New York to Paris race from Vladivostok across Siberia and through Europe to Paris. It is understood that the De Dion car will not continue the race after arriving at Vladivostok, but will withdraw at that point. A declaration to this effect is expected from Marquis De Dion.

This will leave the American Thomas car, the Italian Zust car, and the German Protos car to continue the race. The status of the Protos has aroused much discussion, but it is believed that the car will not be disqualified as a result of shipping by rail from Pocatello, Idaho. It appears there was some misunderstanding in the mind of Lieut. Koeppen as to shipping by rail west of Ogden. He understood the contestants were permitted to ship by rail from Ogden in order to catch a steamer from Seattle, having completed at Ogden the difficult part of the transcontinental journey in America.

It is believed that some plan of allowance will be worked out by the promotors of the race whereby those cars which completed the transcontinental journey will be allowed the amount of time they led the Protos at Ogden, plus the time consumed by the Thomas in going from Ogden to San Francisco in the trans-Siberian journey, while the American car receives over the Italian car the amount of time it led when it reached Seattle, the furthest point mutually reached by the two cars on the original route.

No official decision on these points has yet been announced, but French opinion indicates this solution of the difficulties arising through the abandonment of the original route because of the impassability of the Alaskan trail after the thaw.

The French De Dion car and the Italian Zust car are still in Japan, and are expected to reach Vladivostok from Tsuruga this week. The American Thomas car is on the steamer Shawmut, and is expected to reach Yokohama on Friday, May 8. It will probably reach Vladivostok May 12 or 13. The German Protos car is on the steamer Gen. Logan, which sailed direct from Seattle to Vladivostok and has no regular schedule, but is expected to reach the Siberian port between May 10 and 15. The cars should be able to leave Vladivostok about May 15.

FEAR DISORDER IN PANAMA.

Secretary Taft Expected to Take Measures to Prevent It.

PANAMA, May 3.—Speaking of the coming of Secretary Taft to Panama, Ricardo Arias, Secretary of Foreign Relations, said to-day: "I believe that Secretary Taft's visit here signifies the friendly desire of the United States to settle once for all the differences now existing between Panama and the United States and between Panama and Colombia."

It is the general opinion here, however, that in addition to paving thhe way as far as possible for adequate treaties between these countries, Secretary Taft also will endeavor by friendly advice to prevent during the next Presidential election in Panama a repetition of such events as led to the occupation of Cuba by the United States. The campaign already has given evidences of passion, some of the political factions showing much bitterness, and nobody doubts as things are to-day that the elections will result in serious disturbances throughout the Isthmus.

It is felt here that the Government at Washington has some fears on this score, for it is currently reported that an American secret agent has been quietly visiting the interior towns investigating the true political situation.

RESCUE DROWNING CANOISTS.

Boatmen Reach Them Barely in Time to Save Them from Whirlpool.

Special to The New York Times.

CALDWELL, N. J., May 3.—Herman Frank of Singac and August Hamlin of Paterson had a narrow escape to-day from drowning in the Passaic River near Two Bridges. The young men had been out in a canoe, and paddled up stream as far as Two Bridges, where the Pompton River flows into the Passaic. They went up under the bridge over the Pompton River, and then turned to float down.

When the junction of the two streams was reached the canoe was caught in a swift eddy, and began spinning around like a top. A moment later it was capsized and the occupants pitched out.

Hugh Thompson of Roseland and three friends, who were rowing in a boat not far away, heard their cries and hurried to their rescue. They were barely in time to save the two, both being exhausted by the time the boat reached them.

DIED AFTER FALL ON STAIRS.

F. B. Van Every Met with a Similar Accident Ten Days Ago.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 3.—Frank B. Van Every, a brother of J. B. Van Every, one of the Vice Presidents of the Western Union Telegraph Company, fell backward down a flight of stairs this afternoon and died shortly afterward. Ten days ago he met with a similar accident.

Coroner Killip will investigate the cause of death. It is thought that death may have been due to dizziness resulting from the injury by the former accident. Van Every, who was a waiter, had been a resident of this city for several years.

OPERATION ON W. A. CLARK.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 3.—W. A. Clark, ex-United States Senator from Montana and President of the San Pedro, Los Angeles & Salt Lake Railway, arrived yesterday from the East suffering from a growth on the neck.

FILIPINO TOWN BURNED.

Four Hundred Houses in Antipolo Destroyed—Fire Due to Lightning.

MANILA, May 4.—Antipolo, in the Province of Moreng, was destroyed last night by fire.

Four hundred houses were burned, and hundreds of people are homeless. The famous shrine was saved. The fire was caused by lightning.

LIBEL ON THE PRESIDENT.

Colorado Preacher Charged with the Offense—Pleads Not Guilty.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, May 3.—Federal officers yesterday arrested the Rev. Ira D. Williams, preacher of Iliff, Col., on the charge of having sent through the mail libelous and defamatory matter reflecting on the President of the United States.

The matter upon which the complaint is based is a letter sent through the Post Office at Cheyenne in 1905.

At his preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Hinsdale, Mr. Williams pleaded "not guilty" to the charge preferred. He acknowledged the letter as one that he had written and mailed, but denied having made the paster or having seen it before it was presented to him by the Inspector for identification. In this he was corroborated by the Postmaster at Iliff, who also testified.

GIANTS' SKELETONS FOUND.

Cave in Mexico Gives Up the Bones of an Ancient Race.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 3.—Charles C. Clapp, who has recently returned from Mexico, where he has been in charge of Thomas W. Lawson's mining interests, has called the attention of Prof. Agassiz to a remarkable discovery made by him.

He found in Mexico a cave containing some 200 skeletons of men each above eight feet in height. The cave was evidently the burial place of a race of giants who antedated the Aztecs. Mr. Clapp arranged the bones of one of these skeletons and found the total length to be 8 feet 11 inches. The femur reached up to his thigh, and the molars were big enough to crack a cocoanut. The head measured eighteen inches from front to back.

FATAL SHOT THROUGH COAT.

Police Sergeant the Victim—His Assailant Hit by a Bullet.

TOLEDO, Ohio, May 3.—Sergt. James Boyle of the local police force and Fred Bechtel were shot seriously as the result of a disturbance here early this morning.

Boyle and Policeman A. L. Jackson caught Bechtel, George Rogers, and John Mack acting suspiciously in the Erie freight yards. They were handcuffing Rogers and Mack when Bechtel, whose hands were in his coat pocket, shot without drawing his pistol, and then ran. Boyle was struck in the abdomen and fatally hurt.

Jackson fired four times at Bechtel, the fourth shot taking effect. He got away, but was arrested an hour later.

CAR STRIKE IS AVERTED.

Differences in Cleveland Will Be Submitted to Arbitration.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 3.—The threatened street car strike did not come to-day and it now seems likely that there will be no tie-up of traffic. After Mayor Johnson had failed to get the union leaders and President Dupont of the Municipal Traction Company to agree and the conference broke up at 2:30 o'clock this morning the Grievance Committee of the Street Railway Union held a long session.

It was finally decided to submit all matters to arbitration, as suggested by Mayor Johnson. To-morrow the union leaders will name their arbitrators. President Dupont has already agreed to arbitrate all differences. It is believed all questions will be adjusted within a few weeks.

LOSSES THROUGH M'INTYRE.

Estimated That the Failure Cost New England $250,000.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 3.—It is estimated that the McIntyre failure has cost Boston and New England $250,000.

James M. Hudson, resident partner, admits that Boston and New York clients of the firm will lose fully $100,000. Mr. Hudson himself is the heaviest loser, having sunk about $70,000, mostly in notes given by his mother, which he had put in the business.

40 THROWN FROM STEAMER.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The river boat Trenton, which runs on the Potomac from Washington to Colonial Beach, listed heavily to port as she turned into her slip at Alexandria this morning and spilled forty passengers from her crowded deck into the river. By the quick and concerted action of the boat's crew, aided by people waiting on the dock to meet their friends, everybody was pulled out of the water except one baby boy, who was swept away by the current and drowned before a boat could be manned for his rescue.

The baby was Stanley Posey, son of E. S. Murray Posey of Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. and Mrs. Posey were on the boat with their two children going to visit relatives at Posey's Landing. Mr. Posey had charge of the oldest child when the accident occurred, and he held on to his son when he struck the water. Stanley, however, was out of reach of his parents and was caught by the current of the river.

The boat righted herself in time to avoid turning turtle.

The complete destruction of the interior of the hotel makes the work of recovering bodies a difficult task. A confused heap of charred wood, bricks, and twisted girders is piled up between the walls higher than the second story. Some of the bodies taken out are charred beyond recognition. Infantry Company D and Battery B of the National Guard are on duty and aiding the fire and police forces to clear away the débris.

Started in Elevator Shaft.

The fire was discovered at 3:30 this morning in the elevator shaft by Night Clerk Ralph Hipkins. He rushed to the upper floors, alarming the guests, until the flames, which had spread with great rapidity, drove him back. His efforts, however, saved many lives. The hotel was erected half a century ago, and the interior woodwork was dry as tinder. Within a few minutes from the time the fire was discovered the whole interior of the hotel was a mass of flames, and the only means of escape was by the windows.

The Fire Department rescued many with ladders, but some, frenzied by the rush of the flames, leaped from windows to the street.

R. S. Johnson of Pana, Ill., jumped from the fifth story. His body struck a balcony and bounded far into the street. He was badly crushed, and died a short time later in St. Joseph's Hospital. E. M. Mathews of Columbus, Ohio, jumped from a third-story window.

As the flames increased men and women were seen in the windows of their rooms pleading for help. Those who left their rooms before the flames cut off their retreat were able to make their way to the fire escapes and were saved with comparative ease.

Many Narrow Escapes.

There were many thrilling escapes. Claude H. Varnell of the Fort Wayne baseball team, his sister, Mrs. John Hendricks, and John Hendricks of Chicago, manager of the Fort Wayne team, barely escaped with their lives. Varnell lost all his personal belongings, valued at several thousand dollars.

Hendricks, with his wife ahead of him and his son in his arms, started down the fire escape from the fifth floor. At the third floor the fire below them at the turn on the iron stairs cut off their passage. He swung Mrs. Hendricks over the railing of the third floor platform, and she dropped to the platform of the story below, thus avoiding the blaze-swept portion of the fire escape. Then he dropped his son into the arms of his wife and followed them in this way to the ground in safety. Other similarly narrow escapes were numerous.

John P. Strohecher of New York, after a thrilling escape from death in the flames, reached the ground almost naked. He had no time to gather his apparel, the flames having burst into his room before he was awakened. Scores of men and women reached the ground with nothing on but nightclothes. None of the guests had time to save their effects. Dry goods and clothing stores were thrown open to all who needed apparel, and they were supplied without question.

From Window to Window.

R. S. Lewis of Chicago was driven from his room on the third floor to the window ledge. The guests were leaping out above him, and he swung down from window to window. Firemen hoisted a ladder to help him, but it became entangled in wires. Lewis became exhausted, his grasp loosened, and he dropped just as the ladder was raised under his feet. He seized a round of the ladder and escaped unhurt.

A. R. Sallot of New York had a similar experience. The flames were in his room when he awoke. He groped his way through the smoke to a window, crawled out on the ledge, and hung there edging away an inch at a time as the flames curled from the window. He was just about to leap four stories to the pavement beneath when a hand was thrust down to him from the roof of an adjoining building and he was pulled to safety.

A score of women employed in the hotel were in the upper rooms in the rear part of the building. Most of them escaped without injury, but some in their frenzy leaped to the alley.

J. C. Yingling, a traveling man for the Swigert Optical Company of Toledo, was one of two men who escaped by climbing down an electric light wire in the air shaft.

"I had a room on the fifth floor," he said, "and was awakened by a crash of glass. I faced a wall of fire in the hallway. I slammed the door and looked for other means of escape. My room was an inside one. In desperation I broke a window on the air shaft side and crawled out, clinging to the casement.

"I saw a thick wire, which at the time I thought was a lightning rod. I seized it and climbed down two floors. I burst in a window on the third floor, and the flames and smoke struck my face. I dropped two floors to a narrow casement, and thence into the bottom of the shaft, where I was hemmed in like a man in the bottom of a well with fire blazing on the other side of the walls.

"Through a window I saw into the barroom which looked less full of fire than elsewhere. I broke the window and dropped into the barroom, spraining my ankle. Through the plate glass window fronting the street a fireman saw me and broke the window, letting me out.

Lost $2,500 in Diamonds.

"I saved my trousers only. A satchel containing $2,500 worth of diamonds and fine jewelry was destroyed. My trunks had $14,000 worth of jewelry in them. I believe they will be found intact in the basement."

Miss Agnes Nadeau, head waitress of the hotel, is suffering from several broken ribs and burns. Part of her hair was burned off, and her hands were covered with bandages when she was interviewed.

"I jumped to the corridor of the third floor from the fourth," she said. "I had to crowd through a passageway about a foot wide before I could where I could be heard. I wanted to jump from a window, but a man held me. Finally I had to catch hold of a wire and hang outside until a ladder was placed for me."

Burford Killson of Kalamazoo, Mich., escaped in his night clothing. He was asleep in a dormer room above the fifth story, and was awakened by a choking smoke. Flames were licking the inside of the transom. Killson climbed along a cornice, and, shivering and half suffocated, was raised to the roof of the People's Store building adjoining.

David Davis of New York City, of the firm of Applebaum & Davis, was on the third floor. He rushed down the stairs part way, and dense smoke on the first floor drove him to the fire escape. He says the door leading to it was locked. He dashed through the smoke to the stairway and escaped.

The New Aveline Hotel was a six-story building of brick. It stood in the business centre of the city. Its erection was begun in 1852, but it was not completed as a four-story building until several years later. In 1895 the building was extensively remodeled and the two top stories were added. The hotel and its furnishings were valued at $80,000.

Other occupants of the hotel block and their losses are: Jones & Stevens, proprietors, hotel, personal, $5,000; G. H. Brown, saloon, $10,000; C. B. Woodworth & Co., drugs, $6,000; Postal Telegraph Company, $2,000; Strauss Brothers, bankers, $2,000; George Streicher, barber's shop, $2,500; Lee Ivins, cigars and newsstand, $6,000; Glass Block, adjoining hotel, $1,500.

All losses in the hotel block save the Strauss Bank are total. The bank vaults are intact. All losses are fully insured.

Hugo Fisher of New York, a brother of Harrison Fisher, the magazine artist, lost 350 original paintings, estimated to be worth about $10,000, in the fire. He had been exhibiting them for sale to individuals.

A Camden (N. J.) Victim.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., May 3.—Joseph W. Devinney, who lost his life in the New Aveline Hotel fire at Fort Wayne, Ind., lived in Camden, N. J. He was 47 years of age, and was returning from a nine months' trip through the West. Mr. Devinney served one term as a member of the Camden City Council. A widow and one daughter survive him.

FIRE ROUTS 32 FAMILIES.

Two Newark Tenements and a Stable Destroyed—Two Horses Lost.

Fire that did $35,000 damage started in the thickly settled "Hill" section of Newark, N. J., early yesterday morning, and before it was halted by the work of the Fire Department it had made thirty-two families homeless.

The blaze started in a stable in Charlton Street and spread through the building before it was discovered by Max Varansky. By the time the firemen had arrived the six-story tenement at 120 Montgomery Street, near by, was on fire. Policemen went through the house breaking in every locked door. Nearly fifty persons lightly clad were removed from the building.

Policeman Faherer was cut off on the fourth story, and was saved by jumping sixty feet into a fire net spread to catch him.

The horses in the stable broke loose and nearly stampeded the crowd in the streets. Two were burned.

Before the flames were got under control they had destroyed a three-story tenement house, in addition to the tenement and stable. Two other buildings were badly damaged.

HOTEL FOR WOMEN SUDDENLY CLOSES

TROUBLE OVER THE RENT.

Woman Manager Says That In Addition to an Excessive Rate She Had to Make Repairs.

One hundred and thirty women, many of them Southerners, have been notified that they must leave the Hotel Ratcliffe, a hostelry for women at Ninety-second Street and Central Park West, by noon to-morrow. The notification came Friday afternoon, and many of the occupants are finding difficulty in getting other places to go to.

The property, which consists of two houses, Nos. 4 to 6 and 12 to 14, separated by a Nurses' Club, 8 to 10 Ninety-second Street, belongs to Isaac V. Brokaw, who leases it to Miss Emilie Vaughn, who has used the two buildings as an exclusive hotel for women, after the fashion of the Martha Washington.

Some disagreement about the rent is responsible for the ejection of the guests. Mr. Brokaw has announced his intention of turning the property into apartment houses.

The two houses were rented four years ago by Mrs. M. H. Gibson, wife of ex-Senator Gibson of Virginia, from Carl Fischer-Hansen, Mr. Brokaw's son-in-law. Mrs. Gibson was well known through the South, and many mothers sent their daughters to her house when they came to New York to study music or for other purposes. Since then the hotel has enjoyed an excellent reputation as a quiet place for women, with Mrs. Gibson and her assistants to chaperone the younger guests.

About two years ago Mrs. Gibson took Miss Vaughn as a partner, and on May 1, 1907, Miss Vaughn assumed entire control of the house, although Mrs. Gibson still lives there. Miss Vaughn was ill yesterday when a reporter called, but through a representative she said:

"Mr. Brokaw has forced me to give up the house by making the rent prohibitive. I have nearly 130 guests and there are only 150 rooms, but I find it impossible to pay expenses while I am paying so high a rent and am forced to pay for all the repairs on the houses.

"I decided I could not keep the houses at the present rent unless Mr. Brokaw made some necessary improvements, and on Friday Mr. Stotesbury, his attorney, called and notified me that Mr. Brokaw would not meet my conditions. As a consequence the houses will be made into apartments, which they were before Mrs. Gibson took them.

"In the last two years Mrs. Gibson and I have paid out nearly $50,000 on rent and repairs. When Mrs. Gibson and I ran the house together last year we paid a rental of $31,000. This was found to be altogether too much, and when I took sole charge last May, or shortly after that, Carl Fisher-Hansen reduced the rent to between $24,000 and $25,000. There are very few vacant rooms now, but I find it difficult to make money on so high a rent. Mr. Brokaw, I believed, has been lessor of the house since last December.

"The house closes with over 100 tenants who are obliged to leave here by noon on Tuesday. Many of these are young women who are alone in the city."

"It is true that I have withdrawn the Ratcliffe Hotel from its present lessee, Miss Vaughn," said Mr. Brokaw last night.

the room of the burning building. He saw the members of the Potar family lying on the floor to escape the smoke. He called to them to come to the window. Philip Harris was the first to respond. He dragged his fiancée to the window and guided her hands into those of Keupp. The fireman swung her clear of the sill and dragged her into the window of No. 15. Harris was the next to be swung to safety.

The crowd in the street below and hundreds of persons at the windows across the street looked on breathlessly while this rescue was taking place. Sadie Potar and her little brother, Benny, were next rescued by Keupp and Cordes. Then came Mrs. Potar, and, last of all, the father of the family. He was greatly excited, and Keupp had some trouble inducing him to take the swing. But at last he consented, and, grasping the fireman's wrists, his feet left the window sill. While he was in midair one of his hands loosened its grip, and for an instant Keupp thought that Potar was about to fall. The man gave a gasp and clutched wildly to regain his hold. He managed to do so, and was pulled into the window by the two salvage corps men.

As there was no building on the right side of 17 Humboldt Street the salvage corps men could not reach the Abrams, who lived on the right side of the house. It was not until after the fire was out that the rescuers could enter the Abrams's apartment. While the Potars were being swung to safety, Anna Abrams jumped from the front window. She missed the nets and fell upon the paving stones. She died at 6 o'clock in the morning at St. Catharine's Hospital.

Deputy Fire Chief Lally arrived shortly after the fire began. Seeing that the whole row of houses adjoining No. 17 was menaced, he sent in two more alarms, and nine engines and three truck companies responded. It was a stubborn fight, and before the wall separating No. 17 from No. 15 was burned through a little damage was done to the latter building. No. 17 was burned from cellar to roof, only the frame and part of the top floor remaining. When the fire was out and the firemen were able to reach the top floor they dragged out the charred bodies and had them removed to the Bushwick Avenue Police Station. There they were identified later in the morning.

Assemblyman Gluck's Heavy Loss.

Assemblyman Gluck, who lived just up the street from the house which was burned, was aroused by the noise of the fire engines, and watched the blaze, unable to go to the assistance of his mother and her other children. He ran about in the crowd on the street, asking if his mother and brothers and sisters had been saved, and asking if no one would go into the burning building to save them.

When Keupp and his fellow salvage corps men reached the street after the work of rescue, Mr. Potar sprang out of the crowd, threw his arms about Keupp's neck, and began to cry on his shoulder.

"You are a brave man," he sobbed. "I have you to thank for saving myself and my family. May God bless you and the other brave men with you! But for you we would have perished there as the Abrams have done."

Yesterday, when a TIMES reporter visited the ruins, Mrs. Rosa Levy, wife of the janitor, told of her suspicions that the blaze was an incendiary one.

"A strange man was in the hallway of the first floor last night," she said, "and he certainly acted strangely. I heard some one out there on the landing about midnight, and opened the door to see who it was. I noticed at once that the lights had been turned off, which is unusual. I asked the man what he wanted.

Lights Out and a Prowler About.

"'I am looking for a doctor,' he replied.

"'Well, there is no doctor here in this house, and you had better go elsewhere,' I told him. Then I shut the door. But I continued to hear him fumbling about outside, so I called my husband. He went out, and the man was still there. The stranger told my husband that he wanted a doctor, and would like to use the telephone. My husband told him to go somewhere else, and then we went to bed again. I had never seen the man before, and in the partial darkness I am afraid I could not describe him. It is strange that the lights had been put out on all the landings. They usually burn all night."

It was learned from the Fire Department that four other basement fires were discovered Saturday night near the Humboldt Street house. At 7:02 o'clock in the evening there was a fire in the basement of 715 Flushing Avenue, two blocks away from the Humboldt Street house. At 8:01 another basement fire was discovered in 182 Meserole Street, near Humboldt, and seventeen minutes later another was discovered in 45 Throop Avenue. The last of the four, preceding the Humboldt Street fire, was at 57 Cook Street, and was discovered at 8:55 o'clock. None of these four fires got headway enough to do much damage. The police are investigating the incendiary rumors. The building which was burned was owned by Jacob Worth of 178 Lee Avenue, and the damage is estimated at $10,000.

15 FIREMEN OVERCOME.

In a little $10 fire in the basement of a building at 339 West Thirty-ninth Street last night fifteen firemen were overcome by a strange gas, the nature of which was not determined. It took almost two hours for Battalion Chief Devanney to get the fire under control.

Capt. Edward Sweeney of Truck 21 was so badly overcome that it was not until the firemen had worked over him for half an hour that he revived. Capt. George Cuss of Engine Company 26 was also overcome. Thirteen firemen were unconscious and affected more or less. All were revived after desperate work on the part of their comrades, and no ambulances were called.

The fire started in a woodbin in the basement. Dominick Rubin, who occupies a room in the rear sent in the alarm, but the fire had had a good start in the woodwork.

A squad of firemen dashed into the cellar and played a stream on the fire. A sensation not unlike that produced by illuminating gas crept over them, but none was seriously affected while inside the cellar. Just as soon as each sought the fresh air, however, he dropped to the ground unconscious.

Capt. Sweeney led his men into the place, and, seeing that the fire was of no consequence, started to go upstairs. He was found some time later lying unconscious in one of the rooms on the first floor. He was revived with difficulty. Meanwhile firemen had left the cellar one after another, and the rear yard was no sooner reached than they dropped to the ground and started vomiting. The yard was fairly dotted with the unconscious figures. Of Capt. Sweeney's men, who make up a double company, only half of which answered the alarm, all present were overcome. Substitutes took their places.

Battalion Chief Devanney, who made an investigation, declared that there was no illuminating gas in the cellar. He was unable to find a single gas pipe from which illuminating gas might escape. He said the whole thing was a puzzle to him. In spite of the fact that it took nearly two hours to get the fire under control, the Battalion Chief declared that the damage was not more than $10.

HEAD CUT OFF BY ELEVATOR.

Leaning too far into the main elevator shaft of the Singer Building while engaged in painting the doors on the thirty-fifth floor yesterday, Nicholas B. Howland was struck by a descending elevator and decapitated.

Lytle Pedrick of 90 Crystal Street, Jersey City, operator of the elevator, saw the car strike Howland, and brought it to a stop, but too late. Pedrick and Charles Shaw, the master painter, were arrested. They were taken before Magistrate Walsh, in the Tombs Court, and remanded to Coroner Acritelli. The latter released them on their promise to attend the inquest.

THE PIANOLIST

I grieve no longer. I have acquired a perfect technique, the technique of a great virtuoso—through the Pianola. It is a key that has unlocked for me the whole repertory of music. With it I can play the most difficult work ever written as easily as I can a five-finger exercise. It gives me the technique, but all that is summed up in the one word "expression," I am at liberty to put into the music myself.

In the whole world there are perhaps two, at the most three pianoforte virtuosos who really deserve to be called great. To listen to them is the acme of musical delight. But right next to this comes the performance of any musical person, whether a child or grown up, on the Pianola. It is better than the playing of any virtuoso not absolutely of the very first rank, and infinitely preferable to the playing of the most gifted amateur, while the performance of the average amateur almost is juvenile compared with it. Moreover there are pieces of which the Liszt "Campanella," the Mendelssohn "Rondo Capriccioso" and the "Rosamunde" impromptu of Schubert, are examples, that, when played on the Pianola by a musical person, sound just as well as if they came from under the fingers of the greatest living virtuoso—possibly better.

These are not dreams, they are facts; and discoverable in due time by everyone who is made musical through the instrument of which I am writing; and, in an incredibly short time by any one, already musical, who takes it up. Moreover they are facts readily susceptible of explanation, and here it is:—All technical difficulties being eliminated by the Pianola, the player is free to give his whole attention to interpretation, to that subtle something which we call "expression," and which constitutes the supreme quality of a musical performance.

DERAILED CAR HITS A PILLAR IN SUBWAY

Speeding through the Flatbush Avenue extension of the Brooklyn Subway at 8 o'clock last night, a car jumped the rails and crashed into a steel column, throwing the train into darkness and causing something of a panic among the passengers. None was injured in the scramble which ensued, but traffic on the section between the Borough Hall and the Long Island Station was tied up for hours, and that in the East River tube for half an hour. It was the first accident to occur in the extension of the Subway, which was opened on Friday.

The train, one of seven cars, had left the Nevins Street station and was rushing toward the terminus at Flatbush and Atlantic Avenues, when the last car lurched violently and its forward truck jumped the rails. As the steel car came in contact with the "third" rail a dazzling sheet of electric flame shot up, and the current in the rail was short-circuited. This caused all the lights in the cars to go out. The side of the car struck a pillar supporting the tunnel roof, but the motorman had already applied the emergency brakes and the shock was not a severe one.

Many of the passengers were badly frightened when the car jumped the track and the lights went out. They pushed and struggled to get to the doors, but the guards and cooler heads restrained those who were panic-stricken and prevented them from jumping off. In the meantime a signal had been flashed to the Atlantic Avenue Station and the third-rail current was shut off. A little later, when it was found that there was no further danger, the current was turned on again and all the cars but the one derailed were relighted. This served to quiet the excited passengers and they passed out of the derailed car into others.

The Superintendent of the division hurried down from Atlantic Avenue with a wrecking crew, and the derailed car was detached and the six others proceeded to the Atlantic Avenue terminal, where the passengers were discharged. It was found that one side of the derailed car had been badly damaged by striking the pillar. The police did not learn of the accident until the first of the passengers emerged from the Atlantic Avenue station.

As a result of the accident the service between the Battery and Brooklyn was interrupted for about thirty minutes. While the work of replacing the derailed car on the tracks was going on trains between Manhattan and Brooklyn were switched at the Borough Hall Station. It was several hours before the line above the Borough Hall could be cleared, and the service on this section was tied up until early this morning.

The interruption of traffic through the tube caused big jams of passengers to form in the stations along the line. The platforms at the Borough Hall became so crowded that the guards were forced to close the gates, and hundreds anxious to get to Manhattan had to take to the trolley and bridge elevated cars. There was also a crush of passengers at the Bowling Green station.

Many Brooklynites who had started for home from various points in Manhattan, finding traffic through the East River tunnel blocked, ascended to the street and made their way over the Brooklyn Bridge.

General Manager Hedley of the Interborough Company said last night that the accident had more or less affected the service in Manhattan for about an hour.

HIS HEAD A BATTERING RAM.

Hans Butted in a Plate Glass Window and Goes to Bellevue.

Hans Boch, 30 years old, of 361 First Avenue went to Hoboken yesterday for beer and pretzels. It was his first trip through the Hudson River tunnel, and he returned to Manhattan with the feeling that he should celebrate the occasion. He went to John Foley's saloon at Twenty-first Street and Third Avenue, but was refused admittance.

But Hans, who is six feet over all and carries 210 pounds, was determined. So he walked around to the front of the saloon and deliberately butted his head through the big plat glass window, and his shoulders stuck fast in the glass.

Policeman Schmidt of the East Twenty-second Street Station, who heard the crash, had a time trying to pry the giant out, and when he succeeded Hans gave him a tussle. Policeman Muller came along, and both policemen had their hands full getting him to the station house.

Lieut. Schrieber sent Hans to Bellevue with Dr. Lowthian and three policemen. Hans was found to be in a bad way, with lacerated wounds of the scalp and alcoholism.

He said he was a piano mover.

New Incorporations Fall Off.

There were incorporated in New York State during April 636 stock companies, with an aggregate capitalization of $29,167,000, as compared with 481 companies, capitalized at $30,777,000 during March. Companies chartered with a capital of one million or over were the following: Coronet Phosphate Company, New York City, $1,000,000; Star Seal Company, New York, $1,000,000; Terry, Fench & Proctor Tunneling Machine Company, New York City, $1,500,000.

In the country at large the total authorized capitalization of new companies during April chartered with $100,000 or more totaled $169,502,000, against $313,794,000 in March and $190,145,000 in April last year, according to the figures of The Journal of Commerce. From these figures it will be seen that the output of new concerns last month shows a falling off as compared with the March returns of $164,092,000. This decrease, however, is explained in considerable measure by the fact that in March the Great American Railway filed papers at Pierre, S. D., for an authorized capital stock of $150,000,000. Included in the grand total is the output of new companies in the Eastern States with a capital involving $1,000,000 or over. This output reached an aggregate of $82,405,000, which compares with $69,782,000 in March and $134,250,000 in April last year.

English Railway and Other Fatalities.

The number of deaths from industrial accidents in the United Kingdom reported in the year 1907 was 4,460, an increase of 341 over the year 1906 and of 277 on the average for the five years 1903-1907. With the exception of quarrying, each group of occupations shows an increase as compared with 1906. These increases were most marked in the shipping and mining groups, the fatalities in these having been 1,363 and 1,273, respectively. In railway employment 487 were killed.

Cheapening of Aluminium.

Statistics on the world's aluminium industry show that back in 1855 the average price for this metal in Germany was 1,000 marks per kilo. As production increased and the industry gained headway the average price year by year dropped, and the average price in the German market in 1907 was 3.25@4 marks per kilo.

IF ILL, SWITCH ON YOUR ELECTRICITY

It's the Life Current and We May Turn It On and Off at Will, Says Andrew McConnell.

CURE FOR THE DRINK HABIT

It Even Prolongs Life Indefinitely, Says Lecturer in Calvary Baptist Church.

Andrew McConnell, who "sings of the body electric," gave a fifteen-minute talk before the Current Events Class of the Calvary Baptist Church on Sunday morning, this being the first of three lectures on the subject, "How Christianity and Science Meet in the Laws of Health." Mr. McConnell is the founder of the Life Electric Institution at Washington, D. C., which has branches in Boston and Brooklyn. The doctrine is that the vital power is electric, and that by "producing, increasing, and controlling the life force, all disease can be cured and life indefinitely lengthened."

Mr. McConnell made his discovery as the result of a nervous breakdown three years ago. First he tried medical treatment, unsuccessfully; then mental healing, but failed to get well; next in order came courses in divine healing, Christian Science, physical culture, and the Hindu lines of breathing, but in spite of his catholicity of faith he failed to get well. Then he turned his attention to the material side, and as a result of his researches in physics, chemistry, physiology, biology, bacteriology, and all the other material "ologies," says he learned that the body is a "voltaic cell," with an alkaline mucous membrane and acid in the skin, while the body is more than half moisture, and that these three elements produce electricity.

"Moreover," he says, "all the bodily functions are electrical activities. Galvani's frog got to kicking just as though it were alive when he used an electric current on the leg."

In the same way, he says, breathing and all muscular actions are electric.

So Mr. McConnell concluded that electricity is the life power; lack of it is disease. Drinking, he says, is an attempt to add to the vital force. Men of strong vitality never drink. Supply a man with plenty of electricity and he will lose all desire for spirituous liquors. In connection with this Mr. McConnell said a building was to be put at his disposal for a sanitarium, to fight the curse of drink by teaching the patients to poke up their voltaic cells instead. The W. C. T. U. is taking up the matter, he says, and hopes to use it in their future campaigns.

The mind is to be the switchboard of this body electric, by which the votaries of life electricity may turn on and off the current as they wish. The production of strengthened voltaic currents rests on the stomach, Mr. McConnell said, but he added that this theory could only be learned by attending the lecture courses of his institute.

After the lecture Mr. McConnell explained to representatives of the press some of the further usefulness of his discovery. It was an especial value to the orthodox churches, he said, because it would keep their members from going abroad into the fields of Christian Science and Faith Healing. Now, he said, the churches had to be on their guard against these psychic sects, but by adopting Life Electricity they would be able to fight fire with fire. Several Christian Scientists even had become converts to Life Electricity, he said.

The spread of the discovery within the last six months has been remarkable, Mr. McConnell says, and, moreover, there is to be a school opened in New York shortly to train teachers in this line.

Before he took up his present line of activity, Mr. McConnell led a literary life. He is a graduate of several universities, he says, particularly that of Alabama, and was for twelve years a lecturer, but quit this to become editor of The Alhahest, the literary magazine of Atlanta.

The Rev. Robert Stuart MacArthur, the pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, where this talk was given, states that Mr. McConnell's doctrines are not subscribed to by the Church, but that the congregation was merely listening with an open mind to any aspect of truth which the lecturer had to present.

The talk next Sunday morning will be on "The Scientific Explanation of Mental and Spiritual Healing," and will begin half an hour earlier than usual, so that any one in the audience may ask Mr. McConnell questions. The title of the third and last lecture is "Health and Religion—One and Inseparable."

SCULPTOR IN POLITICS.

Runs for Office in Paris Because His Medallion Was Rejected by Salon.

PARIS, May 3.—In the municipal election here to-day M. Jean Baffier, the sculptor, entered the list as a candidate as a protest against the exclusion of his medallion of Mercier from the new salon and succeeded in splitting the Socialist vote, necessitating a second ballot.

Jeanne Laloe, an advocate of woman suffrage, contested one of the wards in Paris, but was heavily defeated in another ward.

Spalding's Cricket Guide Out.

Spalding's Official Cricket Guide for 1908 has just been published. This book is compiled and edited by Jerome Flannery, and is a most complete treatise on the game.

It contains the laws of cricket as amended by the Marylebone Club and many chapters of interest, among them being one on the tour of the University of Pennsylvania. The important part of the book is that devoted to records, bowling and batting averages. It is profusely illustrated.

Baseball for Firemen's Fund.

The next important benefit to be given for the Firemen's Memorial Fund will be a baseball game between the nines of the Police and Fire Departments at the American League Park on Monday, May 11. The Captain of the Police Department nine is Lieut. Charles Madigan and the Captain of the Firemen's nine is Capt. Frank J. Mauser of Engine 55. Both nines have been giving much time to practice work, and are in fine shape for an amateur baseball game. The use of the American League Park has been donated for the game, and as it will be the only important baseball contest in the city on that date it is expected that every one of the 15,000 tickets will be sold.

ANTI-TAFT ALLIES CLASH OVER SOUTH

Foraker Claims It for His Own and a Conference Causes Bad Feeling.

FAIRBANKS MAY JOIN TAFT

Rumor Permitted to Go Out Again That Taft Men Want Him for Second Place.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Dissolution seems imminent in the Fairbanks-Cannon-Foraker-Knox Presidential combination. The sorry state of the alliance was disclosed to-day when a rumor was permitted to start from the Fairbanks camp that the Vice President was being approached by the Taft boom, which was ardently seeking to attach him to the second place on that ticket. The Taft agents paused long enough in their labors to-night to insist that they didn't know anything about it.

The "Allies" for some weeks have been allies in name only. The breach in the combination developed immediately after the Florida convention. It was charged then that Hughes had been instrumental in sending Peabody Wetmore, a negro lawyer of New York City, to that convention in an effort to block instructions for Foraker. Hughes, while not an active member of the combination, was regarded as in sympathy with its objects.

When this evidence of interference was discovered Senator Dick, Foraker's manager, let out a yell of rage that brought Cannon, Fairbanks, and Knox up standing. Within an hour he had Representatives McKinley and Burke and Senator Hemenway, managers for Cannon, Knox, and Fairbanks, respectively, cooped up in his committee room. Senator Crane, general manager of the alliance, also was present.

Dick read the riot act to the quartet. He insisted that unless there were no interference with the pledging of Southern delegates to Foraker the alliance might as well take down its sign and go out of business. The negro delegates belonged rightfully to Foraker, he contended, and any attempt to split the strength in the South would end in disaster.

The scolding administered ended in Hemenway and Crane walking out angrily. It also brought a broadside from Knox, who announced that if the allies continued their campaign of fighting the President it would wind up in a complete wreck. The conference marked the beginning of the end.

An effort was made only a short time ago to strengthen the organization by enlisting the services of La Follette. Overtures were made to the Wisconsin Senator and good inducements held out to him if he would work in the general interests of the combination in certain territory. This territory was to include Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, and Kansas. La Follette refused.

Driven to desperation, the allies sought to make a strong show of activity and give evidences that all was harmony within their ranks. They engaged a press agent, jointly, and for several weeks have been actively striving to keep up with the output from the Taft typewriters. The publicity agent is practically the only tie that now binds the four aspirants.

An indication of the plight to which the allies are reduced is seen in their present willingness to throw up their hats and cheer for the principles laid down by Senator Bourne. They are willing to swallow even a second-elective-term argument if only they can beat Taft. All their efforts now are directed to this end. The defection of Fairbanks has caused a chill in the camp.

SAYS GRAY WOULD ACCEPT.

Chief Boomer Denies He Is Out of the Presidential Race.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Richard J. Beamish, who is in charge of the George Gray bureau in this city, was asked if the Pittsburg interview credited to Judge Gray would have any effect upon the Presidential movement in the Delawarean's behalf.

"The statement," said Mr. Beamish, "has been made by him several times, and is to be taken literally. He is not seeking the nomination, and has neither aided nor encouraged the activities of those friends who see in him the foremost exemplar of Democracy.

"Some time ago it became known that Judge Gray would not be a candidate, but that if nominated he would not refuse the call of his party. This stand is well known to all his supporters, and the Pittsburg declaration in no way conflicts with his past attitude. His friends believe they have a right to call upon him as a Democrat notwithstanding his personal desires in the matter, and every one having knowledge of the Judge's sound party fealty is absolutely certain that if nominated he will accept."

HOW JOHNSON MIGHT WIN.

His Boomers Give Figures of a Majority of the Electoral College.

CHICAGO, May 3.—"Do we nominate a Presidential candidate to win or to lose?" is the question asked in a circular issued by the John A. Johnson headquarters here arguing for the nomination of the Minnesota Governor at the Denver Convention. "Nominate Johnson and win," it says, and gives these figures to show how he can win:

	Electoral Vote.
The South, (including Oklahoma and Maryland)	166
New York	39
Minnesota	11
Total	245
Necessary to elect	242

BAKER CHARGES BRIBERY.

Exciting Federated Union Meeting Over the Robinson Franchise Bill.

Ex-Congressman [No Pass] Robert Baker got the floor at yesterday's meeting of the Central Federated Union to urge that the central body protest against the Robinson bill, which has passed both houses of the Legislature, and extends the time for city franchises. He denounced the measure as in the interest of the corporations.'

"You have been buying gold bricks right along," he said. "The predatory forces of capital have got hold of part of the public untilities, and they are reaching for all the others. You and I may sleep, but the predatory forces that want to get all your public utilities never sleep. The city officials tell you there is no money, but they can use millions to buy park sites which are lying idle."

Baker said he knew the Robinson bill was bought in the Senate. One after another he said had yielded to the moneyed politicians. The Mayor had to bow the knee to prevailing sentiment.

Ex-Assemblyman Prince, delegate of the Cigar Packers' Union, sprang to his feet, and, turning to Mr. Baker, said:

"I demand to know how much the Senators got, and the names of the Senators who got money for passing the Robinson bill. I want to know why you did not report about this alleged money."

Mr. Baker began to say that he could not legally prove his statement, upon which jeers arose.

"Oh, you may jeer and hoot as much as you like," he said, "but you may know a thing and not be able legally to prove it. Would any self-respecting man kill his political aspirations, if he had any, by going to that creature Jerome and giving evidence, thus making himself a target for the moneyed politicians?"

The corporations were also attacked by William A. Coakley of the Lithographic Apprentice Union, and an uproarious scene followed. Herman Robinson, the Financial Secretary, advised the delegates to go slow in protesting against the Robinson bill, as it was apparent that if the idle workmen were to obtain employment the Robinson bill would have to be accepted.

"We thought it was better to take what we could get rather than allow the people to starve," said Thomas Curtis of the Rock Drillers' Union, Chairman of the Unemployed Committee. "The unemployed must have work. There are 800 members in my union and less than 150 are employed. God help the man who comes to a meeting of my union to talk municipal ownership at this stage of the game."

The Socialist delegates said the Robinson bill was a trick to help capital only. An exciting argument followed, and it was finally decided to send a protest against the Robinson bill to Gov. Hughes.

$2 FINE FOR NAHAN FRANKO.

Nahan Franko, musician and orchestra leader, paid a two-dollar fine in Jefferson Market Court yesterday, on a charge of disorderly conduct made by Patrolman Edward Xenodochius of the Traffic Squad, although he protested to Magistrate Steinert that he had done nothing wrong. According to the policeman, Mr. Franko tried to pass through the police lines at Twenty-fourth Street and Broadway during the parade on Saturday afternoon, and became abusive when ordered back.

"I think you had better apologize to the policeman, Mr. Franko," said Magistrate Steinert.

"I would gladly apologize if I thought I had done anything wrong," the conductor replied. "I went through the police lines at the direction of another policeman, and my shoulder is still sore from the blow he gave me in stopping me. I can hardly lift my arm from my side."

"But he says you made threats against him," said the Magistrate. "He only did his duty in arresting you."

Mr. Franko paid the fine.

Through his attorney Mr. Franko inserted the following advertisement in to-day's NEW YORK TIMES:

> Any person who witnessed the arrest of a gentleman in front of the Fifth Avenue Hotel on Saturday afternoon about 4 o'clock will greatly oblige by communicating with C. A. R., Room 1,402, 141 Broadway.

In connection with this notice Mr. Franko's counsel said that his client intended to bring charges against the policeman who arrested him at Headquarters.

ARTIST HERTER FINED $10.

Albert Herter, an artist, was fined by Magistrate Steinert in Jefferson Market Court yesterday charged with disorderly conduct in the downtown Subway Station at Thirty-third Street on Saturday night. Herter paid the fine.

According to Detective Capone of the Detective Bureau he arrested Herter in the company of two negroes, his attention having been called to the trio by the ticket chopper at the staion.

When asked if Mr .Herter intended to appeal the case his counsel said:

"Mr. Herter feels very badly, of course, at having this unjust charge brought against him, but he has no witnesses and of course it is merely the detective's word against his. I think he has no recourse but to let the matter drop where it is. I do not believe he will care to take an appeal."

CRUSADE AMONG BAKERS.

Jewish League Organizing Them to Stop Baking on Saturdays.

The Young People's League of the Sabbath Observance Association held a meeting last night at the Brith Sholen Synagogue, 6 Avenue D, for the purpose of getting recruits to the young army of workers who are trying to organize the bakeshops on the east side into a sort of corporation pledged to bake no bread on Saturday, the Jewish Sabbath.

When the bakeshops are organized the attention of the workers will be turned to other east side industries, the whole object of the movement being to curtail as much as possible all sorts of work on the Jewish Sabbath. They are to make up the following day.

More than 100 recruits are working in the district between Houston and Prince Streets, from Avenue B to the river. The league hopes to have the bakers organized within a week.

Wellington, Corporation Counsel of Troy, N. Y., also spoke in the same vein.

In many of the churches in the towns and villages of the Forty-seventh District to-day the ministry praised Gov. Hughes and commended his stand.

FORCE CONCESSIONS IN VREELAND BILL

HE FINDS REBELS STRONG

Even More Amendments May Be Made to the Currency Measure in Tuesday's Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The action on the part of Speaker Cannon in calling a conference for Tuesday night to consider the Vreeland Currency bill unmasked a solid and well-organized opposition to the House substitute for the original Aldrich measure. Many prominent Republicans refused to attend the conference on the bill as it now stands.

The Speaker when he learned of the facts held a hurried consultation with his lieutenants, and then sent word to the insurgents that he was ready to make two concessions. They are in the form of two amendments to the Vreeland bill, which has undergone radical changes in almost every paragraph since it was introduced three weeks ago.

The first amendment provides that only one association of National banks for the purpose of issuing an emergency currency shall exist in the same municipality at the same time. The second, which is in line with the most severe criticism made on the bill by Representative Hill of Connecticut, at the hearings on Mr. Vreeland's measure before the Banking and Currency Committee, provides that the same National bank shall not be included in more than one association.

Representative James Watson, the Republican whip, encountered the opposition in the first instance. Representative J. F. Burke, assistant whip, conveyed the Speaker's overtures to the unsatisfied Republicans. As a result of his soundings he declared to-day that he was confident that the promise of the two amendments had practically put an end to the opposition in the Republican ranks. The bill, he said, would go through the conference on Tuesday without a hitch.

The features of the Vreeland measure that would be changed by the adoption of the amendments now promised by the Speaker have been under fire ever since Mr. Vreeland introduced his substitute. Mr. Hill pointed out three weeks ago that the same bank might belong to any number of associations simply by making different combinations.

At that time Mr. Vreeland attempted to defend his measure in all its provisions, though he admitted that he had not quite finished the details. The strength of the opposition manifested yesterday is shown in the fact that to-day Mr. Vreeland expresses himself as willing to submit his bill to any changes the conference might suggest. The Speaker decided to make concessions, and Mr. Vreeland and the Speaker's lieutenants are simply yielding with him.

Considerable emphasis has been laid on the need of a third amendment, and it is quite possible that those favoring it will insist upon its insertion when the bill is taken up in conference. This is the geographical limitation of associations. As Mr. Hill pointed out to the committee, the bill permits the formation of associations among banks separated by the whole width of the continent. It would be possible, he declared, for one controlling interest owning a chain of banks in the important cities of the country to form an association of its own banks, and thus dictate the emergency issue.

This was one of the points in his bill that Mr. Vreeland was anxious to defend, declaring that the Secretary of the Treasury would use his discretion in such a case and refuse to issue the currency. To-night, however, in face of the open revolt in the House, Mr. Vreeland declared that, while he thought an amendment on this point unnecessary, he would leave it to the conference to make the decision.

Mr. Vreeland will go to the conference ready to yield any point to which there seems serious objection in the Republican ranks, rather than face the smallest revolt after the measure comes up on the floor of the House. The Democrats are ready to line up with any recalcitrant Republicans, and Mr. Vreeland has no intention of risking the final success of his measure against any such combination.

TO SELL RARE GOLD COINS.

Specimens of Those Privately Issued in the Early Days Will Be Auctioned.

Rare California gold coins of private issue are coming forth from their hiding places every few days. The latest specimen of this much-sought series of coins to be offered for sale is one of the finest known specimens of a circular fifty-dollar gold piece, struck at the private mint of Wass, Molitor & Co., at San Francisco, in 1855, which will be sold on May 6 at Elder's Auction Rooms, in this city.

This coin shows the head of Liberty on the obverse, surrounded by thirteen stars. On the reverse the inscription reads, "Wass, Molitor & Co., San Francisco, California," with "50 Dollars" inclosed by a wreath, and the fineness of the metal in the coin, "900 Thous.," stamped on a band.

Also will be sold a good specimen of the octagonal fifty-dollar gold piece struck in the same city by Augustus Humbert in 1852. A twenty-dollar gold piece issued by the United States Assay Office of San Francisco, before the United States branch mint began operations, similar to the design of the octagonal fifty-dollar piece above, is also catalogued. Several specimens of the private gold coins issued by the private Rutherfordton mint of Christopher Bechtler in North Carolina in the early thirties, of the denominations of $1, $2.50, and $5, are also to be offered.

BELLEVUE MINUS ITS LIFT.

Patients Have to be Carried Up Stairs Since Elevator Broke Down.

The only elevator in Bellevue Hospital broke down at 8 o'clock on Saturday night, and it may not be again in running order until Tuesday. In the meantime patients have to be carried up and down the long winding stairs on stretchers, and food has to be carried up to the wards in buckets. The physicians and nurses, also, are obliged to run up and down the stairs in attending to their duties.

The gravest phase of the situation is the carrying of patients to the operating amphitheatre on the seventh floor, which in certain cases might be a serious matter, as it is impossible for the attendants always to hold the stretchers on a horizontal plane.

There are 913 patients at present in the hospital, of whom 269 are women, 547 men, and 97 children. More than 100 patients have been admitted since the elevator broke down.

TO STOP WIFE DESERTION.

Educational Alliance Will Try to Settle Cases Out of Court.

Owing to the increase of abandonment and desertion cases on the east side, where husbands appear just now to have a mania for quarreling with their wives and families, the Educational Alliance Legal Aid Society has opened a bureau on the top floor of its building at 197 East Broadway to settle matrimonial disputes without taking them to a Police Court.

The new department, which has already been named the "Court of Broken Hearts," consist of three women, who hear the complaints, and is presided over by Bernard Rabbini, chief attorney for the legal branch of the society.

Women go there with their domestic troubles from 3 to 5 and 7 to 9 P. M., and after hearing the case a messenger is sent out to find the husband and bring him back to the "court" to get his side of the dispute. If he cannot be found the case is adjourned for twenty-four hours. In many cases a reconciliation takes place, and the couple leave the court to live happily ever afterward.

CAUGHT KILLING OLD ENEMY.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 3.—Surprised in the act of killing a man with whom he was involved in a blood feud, George Popkostroff, a Turk, to-day shot and killed the man who caught him, and then later acted as interpreter for the police while they were investigating the death.

For several hours he was not suspected of the crime. Finally he was arrested on the charge of murder. The victims are Penie Minchoff, a Bulgarian, and Edward Molewan, a Hungarian, and the murders followed a wedding celebration at a boarding house for foreigners. The Turk and Bulgarian had been engaged in a political feud in Turkey, in which several had been killed.

The old quarrel was renewed after the wedding. Popkostroff is alleged to have shot Minchoff while he slept. As he did so he saw Molewan looking in the window. He is alleged to have then shot the Hungarian.

GERMAN REACTION LIKE THAT HERE

WATCHING UNITED STATES

Expect Revival Here Will Lead to Return of Prosperity—Some Statistics.

In addition to the German hunt for gold there have been many signs pointing to the conclusion that Germany is undergoing at the present moment a lull in business and a financial check not unlike our own in character, although less decided.

Gold which has been going out from this city for several weeks, amounting in all to nearly $12,000,000, has ostensibly gone to Paris, but the general understanding is that the French capital is only a distributing point, and that the money actually went to Germany. The Imperial Bank of Germany has been doing all in its power to facilitate imports of gold from points as far away as Australia.

Curiously enough this position of affairs in Germany follows directly on the heels of great prosperity there in 1907, as was the case in the United States. Some of the facts regarding this prosperity and its present halt are told in an interesting way by our Consul at Cologne, H. J. Dunlap, in the following report:

"The annual reports made to the Chamber of Commerce in the various cities of the German Empire show that 1907, with few exceptions, was an unusually prosperous year. During the last two months of the year, however, since the beginning of the financial panic in the United States, many branches of manufacturing lessened their output owing to the decreased demand for their finished products from the United States. This may be said to be more general among those factories engaged in making articles of luxury, such as jewelry, torchon laces, and the finer qualities of fancy goods.

"Reports from such industries as coal mining, iron and steel production, woolen goods, cotton goods, electric appliances, breweries, oil mills, fertilizer factories, and the like all show increased production. The annual dividends run from 4 up to 25 per cent., and more in some branches. In few instances have the Directors of works and factories omitted a dividend, and where such action has been taken it has been because of extraordinary outlays for improvements or some unusual reason. In all instances the amount set aside for reserve and contingencies has been greater than in any previous year.

"Just at present both labor and manufacturing appear to be waiting on the outcome of the financial conditions in the United States. So many industries are dependent upon the market of that country to dispose of their goods that they naturally feel a hesitancy about further outlay for material or production in advance of orders.

"The season was not an especially good one for agricultural products, but in spite of many drawbacks the yield of all small grains was an average one, and the same may be said of tree fruits, apples and pears being in abundance in the local markets and at prices that compare favorably with those of preceding years.

"At a recent meeting of the National Association of German Manufacturers of Iron and Steel it was stated that the industry had been unusually prosperous during the past year, and that the output had been materially increased, caused principally by the home demand, which was created by the favorable trade conditions of the country. The business of Germany had increased immensely. In over 1,500 savings banks of the German savings bank union there are deposits of over 9,000,000,000 marks, ($2,142,887,138.)

"During the past few months the scarcity of money and the high rate of interest have caused a lessening of new undertakings and also a weakening influence on industry. The financial panic in the United States has had an unfavorable effect on all industrial undertakings in other lands as well and caused a hesitancy in placing orders. There is, however, no question about the iron and steel industry being as yet fully employed. The increase in pig iron during the ten months of the year has been considerable, and during October, 1907, the consumption of 1,183,676 tons equaled that in October, 1906. Should the present unfavorable conditions continue, it is within reason to expect that the iron and steel industry will shrink to some extent.

"Much loss to both the iron and steel and the coal mining industry, which is closely related, has been caused by the scarcity of cars, which has increased largely during the past year, and a large wage has been lost through enforced idleness.

"Although a census is taken in Germany every five years, the last one being in 1905, an industrial census was taken in 1907, in which the inhabitants were also enumerated. The entire population amounts to 61,697,277, against 60,641,278 in 1905."

GERMAN CURRENCY INQUIRY

By Commission Formed Along Lines Suggested for Study of Question in This Country.

The recent pressure in the international money markets has led to an inquiry by the German Government on a scale somewhat similar to that proposed by the House Committee on Banking in this country—by means of a large commission. The Government, having been interrogated in the Reichstag as to the reasons for the recent high rates of discount, the Secretary of State for the Interior has announced an inquiry through an expert special commission.

In order to make up such a commission of competent members, the governments of the several federated German States have been invited by the Chancellor of the Empire to indicate to him those persons whom they consider qualified for such an inquiry and whose aid will be of value. The experts in question have been chosen from banking as well as from industrial, commercial, and agricultural circles. In addition to the appeal to the States, the Imperial Government has addressed itself directly to the Central Union of Banks and Bankers, to the Permanent Bureau of Commercial Congresses, to the Central Union of German Manufacturers and the other allied industrial associations, and also to the Federation of German Agriculture, asking that persons qualified to act as experts in the inquiry be suggested by these bodies.

LIGHTERING THE RICKMERS.

Tugs Trying to Float Oil Ship Aground in Zach's Inlet, L. I.

Wreckers were at work all day yesterday on the ship Peter Rickmers, which grounded in Zach's Inlet, L. I., near Fire Island, soon after leaving this port last Thursday with a cargo of case oil for Rangoon, Burmah. Most of the day was spent in lightering the cargo.

At high water two tugs tried for half an hour to pull the ship into deep water. They succeeded in moving the vessel twenty feet, and the wreckers will renew their efforts in this direction at high tide to-day.

OPTIMISM CRUSADE FINDS GREAT FAVOR

Many Organizations in St. Louis Will Accept Prosperity Platform This Week.

OTHER CITIES ARE AIDING

Merchants May Make a Personal Canvass—Large Amount of Literature Is Being Sent Out.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, May 3.—Forty-four labor, financial, industrial, mercantile, and civic associations of St. Louis will accept this week the platform and prospectus of the "Give Us a Rest and Sunshine" campaign of the National Prosperity Association of St. Louis. Ninety-eight of the foremost similar bodies of the United States have practically signified their willingness to participate in the movement against pessimism, and it is assumed, judging by messages already received, that others will respond promptly and enthusiastically.

Detroit, Mich., recommends a personal campaign also. It suggests that a group of prominent St. Louis business men make a tour of all the large cities and at public meetings expound the principles and objects of the "Give Us a Rest and Sunshine" crusade. The proposal will be taken under advisement, and there is probability that it will be one of the devices used for reviving confidence from one end of the United States to the other, suppressing the generation of injurious radicalism and preventing pernicious agitation.

Organizations in New York City whose assistance has been practically pledged are:

The Merchants' Association, Board of Trade, Chamber of Commerce, Board of Trade and Transportation, City Club, Cotton Exchange, Drug Merchants of America, Furniture Association of America, Manufacturers' Association, Merchants and Manufacturers' Board of Trade, National Association of Manufacturers, and Produce Exchange.

The association is communicating by mail with 10,000 of the 80,000 industrial, trade, and financial bodies in the United States. Printed circular letters, platforms, and addresses were delivered yesterday at the headquarters of the St. Louis Business Men's League, in the Mercantile Club Building, and forty clerks were kept at work that morning and afternoon addressing envelopes. This whole mass of prosperity literature will be mailed by to-morrow night, when a force of clerks will begin getting ready 500,000 to 1,000,000 copies of the platform and address for transmission to corporations in all parts of the country.

More than 25,000 newspaper clippings on the subject have been mailed by business men to associations and corporations throughout the country.

CZAR'S COUSIN WEDS WILHELM OF SWEDEN

MARRIED AT TSARSKOE-SELO

Ceremony, Which Takes Place in the Chapel of the Imperial Palace, Is Characterized with Great Pomp.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 3.—Prince Wilhelm of Sweden, second son of King Gustave, the popular sailor Prince who visited America in 1907, was married this afternoon to Grand Duchess Marie Pavlovna, the cousin of the Emperor of Russia and daughter of Grand Duke Paul Alexandrovitch. The ceremony took place at Tsarskoe-Selo, and was conducted with a pomp and brilliancy characteristic of the most stately Court in Europe.

The beginning of the nuptial ceremonies was announced by the firing of five guns simultaneously at 9 o'clock in the morning by the battery at Tsarskoe-Selo and from the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul in St. Petersburg. This was but the beginning of the noisy acclamation, for the thunder of salutes was heard almost uninterruptedly throughout the afternoon and the evening.

The wedding guests assembled at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon at the great palace at Tsarskoe-Selo. Premier Stolypin, the members of the Cabinet, the President of the Duma, and the President of the Council of State, the principal Ambassadors to Russia and their wives and a few of the highest dignitaries of the empire found place in the small blue and gold chapel of the palace, where the orthodox ceremony was performed. The other guests were stationed according to their rank in the various salons and halls through which the bridal procession passed.

Robed by the Empresses.

The robing of the bride was performed in accordance with court custom in the private apartments of the Empress. She was dressed by the Empress and the Dowager Empress, assisted by their maids of honor and their ladies in waiting. The bride wore on her head a jeweled diadem, and from her shoulders hung a long-trained mantle of strawberry velvet lined with ermine. In the procession the train of this garment was borne by five Court Chamberlains.

As soon as the bride had been completely arrayed Prince Wilhelm was notified by the master of ceremonies and conducted to the inner apartments, where the Grand Duchess Marie was in waiting. A salute of twenty-one guns and a blare of trumpets announced the start of the procession. At its head came the Dowager Empress on the arm of King Gustave, the Emperor of Russia escorting Queen Olga of Greece, the Empress escorted by the Grand Duke of Hesse, Crown Prince Ferdinand and Crown Princess Marie of Roumania, the party being attended by the court ushers and marshals and other functionaries.

Then arm in arm came the bridal pair. Behind the young couple marched Prince Nicholas and Prince Andrew of Greece and their wives, Prince Christopher of Greece and Prince Carl of Sweden and his wife. The guests from foreign courts were followed by more than a score of Russian Grand Dukes and Grand Duchesses, including the three oldest daughters of Emperor Nicholas, Grand Duchess Olga, Grand Duchess Tatiana, and Grand Duchess Marie, the eldest being 13 years old. This was the first time the Emperor's daughters ever appeared in State. The little Crown Prince, who was too young to be present, and the Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch, President of the Commission of National Defense, who had been summoned to the Caucausus because of the war cloud on the Turkish frontier, were the only members of the Imperial family absent. The Grand Duchesses, like all the invited ladies, wore the picturesque court costume of high pearl-encircled caps and low cut dresses, with ancient Russian lace embroideries.

The imperial party was received at the chapel doors by the Metropolitan of the Court and a number of priests. After the Emperor had been blessed and sprinkled with holy water he conducted the bridal pair to the dais before the great golden gates of the high altar. The wedding rings were brought from the altar on golden salvers and placed upon the fingers of the bride and the bridegroom by the Emperor's confessor. The Metropolitan then completed the rites of the Russian marriage service, two of the bride's nearest relatives holding crowns over the heads of the bridal pair during the ceremony.

While the Te Deum was being chanted an imperial salute of 101 guns was fired. The procession then returned to one of the ante-salons, where the Lutheran marriage ceremony was performed by the Swedish Bishop of Lund. This brought the afternoon programme to an end.

Elaborate Nuptial Dinner.

A nuptial dinner was served at half-past 7 o'clock in the evening. Chamberlains and gentlemen of the Court stood behind the chairs of the imperial and royal guests and presented the various dishes and wines to them. Toasts were drunk to the Emperor and Empress of Russia, to the bridal pair and to their parents, to the imperial family, and to their loyal Russian subjects.

After the dinner the members of the imperial family and their royal guests participated in a polonaise. This stately progress around the great reception hall had something of the nature of the "Hohenzollern torch dance." After this function the guests were taken in state to the Alexander Palace, the private residence of the Emperor, the bridal pair riding with their sponsors in a gala equipage. The Emperor, the Empress, and the Dowager Empress were surrounded by torchbearers and escorted by a company of the Emperor's Cossack Guard, in brilliant blue and scarlet uniforms.

At a late hour in the evening the bridal pair took a special train for St. Petersburg, where the honeymoon will be passed at the palace of the late Archduke Serge.

During the day there were services in all the churches of the empire, and in St. Petersburg church bells pealed throughout the entire afternoon.

The day at Tsarskoe-Selo was marred by frequent heavy falls of snow, which, however, failed to chill the enthusiasm of the great crowds that gathered around the palace to catch a glimpse of the Emperor and other royal personages and the arriving guests. The crowds stood for hours in the bleak and muddy palace square until the conclusion of the ceremony.

One hundred guests were present, representing members of the various political parties. Gen. Gomez and others made speeches, that by the Presidential candidate creating an excellent impression.

GUAYAQUIL, May 3.—There have been forty-eight new cases of bubonic plague in this city since April 22. During the month of April there were 130 deaths from the plague, and sixteen deaths from yellow fever.

BUENOS AYRES, May 3.—Arthur M. Beaupre, lately the American Minister to the Argentine Republic, sailed from here to-day on the German steamer Cap Arcona for Hamburg, en route to The Hague, where he will succeed Dr. David J. Hill as the American Minister.

CONCESSION TO RUSSIA.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 3.—It is announced by the Minister of Finance that the United States has agreed to recognize the Russian Bourse committee's certificates fixing the customs value of Russian goods imported into America.

AFGHANS ATTACK BRITISH.

Large Force Attempts to Seize Blockhouses in Khyber Pass.

LONDON, May 3.—India is a source of considerable uneasiness to the British Government at the present moment. The difficulty with the Mohmands seemed on the eve of settlement, when, on Saturday, according to reports received here, a new danger threatened in a movement made by a large Afghan force, numbering from 13,000 to 20,000, which crossed the border, divided into two bodies, and attempted to seize the blockhouses in Khyber Pass, near Landikhotal. The attacks were repulsed with trifling casualties on the part of the British, but the Afghans remained in front of Landikhotal and another body is reported moving into Bazar Valley by way of Lisote Pass.

Gen. Willcocks, who is in command of the British forces recently dispatched to quell the trouble, has gone to Jamrud, a fort ten miles west of Peshawar, at the entrance of Khyber Pass, and is hastening forward his troops to meet the new development.

All frontier telegrams are severely censored at Simla. From Calcutta comes the news of the discovery of a plot to murder Europeans by means of bombs. The conspiracy appears to be of an extensive character, and many arrests have been made. The responsibility for the plot is placed on the natives, a number of incriminating documents having been seized, together with a supply of bombs and other explosives.

The discovery of the plot was made through the arrest and confession of the author of a bomb outrage at Mozufferpur, the capital of the province of the same name in Bengal, in which two Europeans were killed.

CAN'T FIND THE REVOLUTION.

Peruvian Troops Vainly Hunt for Alleged Body of Insurgents.

LIMA, Peru, May 3.—Government troops were sent out from Lima by President Pardo on the receipt of reports here that insurrection was brewing not far from the city. Considerable alarm was felt Friday night when it was rumored that the insurgent leader, Dr. Durand, with 200 of his men, had attempted to cut the wires of the electric lighting plant that supplies the current for the lighting of Lima and the suburbs. If an attempt was made it was not successful, and the troops have not yet succeeded in locating Durand.

President Pardo passed Saturday night in the barracks, and this morning additional troops were sent out in search of the alleged insurgents. A number of arrests were made in the city of persons suspected of complicity in the movement, but Lima itself presents no unusual aspect, and the idea of any extensive movement looking to a revolution is not generally believed.

There is no doubt, however, that insurgent bands have been at work in the vicinity of Lima. Soldiers who are now moving both north and south have found quantities of cartridges and dynamite along the railroad lines. It is reported, also, but the report has not been confirmed, that a railroad bridge was recently blown up. The troops have been ordered to take the utmost precaution, in order not to give the insurgents any opportunity to take them by surprise.

SAN FRANCISCO IS READY.

Preparations for Welcoming Evans and His Ships Are Now Complete.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 3.—San Francisco is eagerly awaiting the arrival of the Atlantic battleship fleet. Flags, navy pennants, and streamers and Rear Admiral Evans's picture are everywhere. Market Street is a long vista of bunting. The National colors and flags wave from white poles fifty feet high, set one hundred feet apart.

On each side of the tall ferry tower, stretched on long wire cables, are the words, "Welcome to the Atlantic Fleet," while on Telegraph Hill the word "Welcome" stands in letters 50 feet high, which at night will be illuminated by 2,500 electric lights. Festoons of incandescent lights run on both sides of the principal streets, and prominent buildings are outlined in electric bulbs.

Rear Admiral Evans has so far recovered his health that he will resume command of the fleet at Santa Cruz Tuesday afternoon, just before it sails for this city. The fleet will arrive off the Golden Gate Tuesday evening, where it will be joined by the Pacific squadron of armored cruisers of the West Virginia type, under Rear Admiral Dayton, the following morning at 9 o'clock. At noon the flagship Connecticut, flying the flag of Rear Admiral Evans, will lead the way into the harbor with forty-eight warships in her wake.

It is estimated that there will be between 700,000 and 800,000 persons in San Francisco on the day the fleet arrives.

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., May 3.—The visit of bluejackets to the big trees was a feature of the Sunday programme at Santa Cruz for the entertainment of the Atlantic fleet. More than 300 sailors came ashore during the morning and boarded special trains for the grove, six miles distant. Hundreds of civilians also took advantage of the opportunity to visit the park, and the grounds were thronged with visitors all day.

The bluejackets spent an hour wandering among the great redwoods. Arriving at the tree called "The Fremont," after Gen. Fremont, seventy-five sailors crowded into the hollow at its base at one time. The sailors carried away with them thousands of souvenirs of the visit.

SUBMARINE FLOTILLA COMING.

Viper, Tarantula, Cuttlefish, and Octopus to Rendezvous Here This Week.

The finest flotilla of submarine boats the United States has ever got together will assemble in New York Harbor in a few days on the arrival here from Annapolis of the submarines Viper, Tarantula, and Cuttlefish. These three vessels will be reinforced here by the famous Octopus, that mare so many submarine records in the Newport trials, and that boat for the first time will become an active unit in the flotilla.

The Viper, Tarantula, and Cuttlefish will make the run from the Chesapeake to New York under their own power, and the voyage is expected to add additional prestige to the flotilla, which is commanded by Lieut. Charles E. Courtney. The Octopus is expected to arrive at New York from Newport at about the same time as the other vessels from the South. In the first week in June the flotilla will visit Kingston, N. Y., to take part in the festivities arranged there for that week.

Melbourne Will Fete the Sailors.

MELBOURNE, Australia, May 3.—Referring to-day to the visit of the American fleet to Australian ports Sir William J. Lyne, Minister of Trade and Customs, who is Treasurer of the Reception Fund, said that the bulk of the expenditures would be on the sailors. "We are determined," he said, "that they must leave with a good impression."

Lawyer Removed to Bellevue.

Charles J. Hubbell, a lawyer, began to throw the furniture about in his apartment at 1,028 Simpson Street, the Bronx, yesterday, and alarmed his wife. Policeman Kuntz of the East 159th Street Station was summoned. Hubbell was taken in an ambulance to Lebanon Hospital, whence he was sent later to the psychopathic ward at Bellevue. He has been in ill health for some time.

PASTOR DENHAM BACK IN HIS OLD PULPIT

RECALLED BY HIS FLOCK

Mrs. Elizabeth R. Grannis, One of His Accusers, Not at the Church to Welcome Him.

The Rev. Benjamin Q. Denham, who resigned the pastorate of the Fifty-sixth Street Church of the Disciples of Christ three years ago under charges, again took charge of his pastorate yesterday. Since leaving the old church at 323 West Fifty-sixth Street he has been managing an orange plantation in Florida, doing evangelistic work at the same time.

The First Church of the Disciples of Christ is the oldest United States church of the denomination, known popularly as the Christian Church, and sometimes as the Campbellite Church. It was "planted and watered" by Alexander Campbell himself. Before his resignation Mr. Denham had occupied the pulpit there for six years.

Mr. Denham had come to New York from North Tonawanda, N. Y., where charges had been made against him, he always said, by enemies. Charges were made against him here also, and he was arrested, and his case was submitted to the Grand Jury.

Mrs. Elizabeth R. Grannis, a member of the church, at the time wrote a letter to the Grand Jury saying that she believed the pastor guilty, but Mr. Denham's friends asserted that he was the victim of a plot of his enemies. The evidence submitted was not strong enough to satisfy the Grand Jury, and the preacher was discharged.

The affair served, however, to split the congregation, and a great deal of hostile feeling was displayed by the factions. Finally it was put to a vote whether the pastor should leave or not, and the majority voted in favor of his remaining, but it was not unanimous, so Mr. Denham went South with his wife and three children and settled in Auburndale, Fla., taking charge of an orange plantation owned by a Mrs. Simons, a parishioner. Besides, this work he found time to do a good deal of preaching.

This Spring the question came up in the church whether or not the pastor should be asked to resume charge of his old pulpit, which had been without an occupant for some time. Mr. Denham wrote that he would come back if a majority of the congregation wished it.

This question again plunged the congregation, which has a membership of about 400, into another hot discussion. The friends of the pastor had a substantial majority, and it was voted by the congregation and official board of the church to recall Mr. Denham. He came to town last week, filling his pulpit for the first time yesterday morning. The church had its biggest audience for months. If the pastor made any reference to the circumstances under which he left it was deeply veiled.

Last night he preached again, this time in the small basement room. There were perhaps 100 people present. His sermon, though evidently not intended to refer to the split in the congregation, contained the clause that "people with hell in their hearts attribute hellish motives to people with pure hearts."

The returned pastor seemed to be just a little embarrassed yesterday. He was quoted as saying privately to friends that he was glad to get an opportunity to live down the charge made against him in the church where it had originated. His friends were enthusiastic yesterday, saying that the old church would now take on new life. Mr. Denham has to his credit more than 1,300 converts.

Mrs. Grannis is still, it is claimed, technically a member of the church, though her fellowship has been withdrawn. It was she who secured some notoriety for the church by bringing a little negro girl to service and Sunday school. But now she has sent the child to Tuskegee, and, besides, doesn't attend church as often as formerly.

She wasn't present last night.

AND THE CAT CAME BACK.

Can't Lose Schnitzel, Not Even on the Broad Atlantic.

John Schweitzer, a cook employed by Otto Knabe, a restaurateur at 538 Grand Street, may now be considered an authority on the homing instincts of cats, but he sadly laments the $25 he had to pay to gain the experience.

One of the appurtenances of the place for the last five years was a Thomas cat. Knabe tried in vain to get rid of the cat on account of his piratical habits. No steak or chop was safe for a moment when "Schnitzel," as the cat was called, was around.

Six months ago Knabe put the cat in a bag, took him up to Bronx Park, and let him go. Three days later "Schnitzel" walked into the restaurant, thinner and hungrier than ever. Then the proprietor, not wishing to kill the cat, which had been given to him by an aged aunt in Hamburg, conveyed him across the bridge and deserted him in Prospect Park, Brooklyn. A week passed and no cat. Knabe was receiving the congratulations of his old cook one Saturday night when "Schnitzel" walked in gaunt and hungry.

Driven to desperation by the jeers of his friends and the threatened resignation of the cook, Knabe took the cat over to Hoboken and left him on the deck of the steamer President Grant of the Hamburg-American Line just before she sailed.

"Ach der poor Schnitzel! Ve shall see him no more," Knabe said when he got back to the restaurant that night, and the cook was jubilant. Two weeks ago Schnitzel arrived safely back at home in the care of Herman Spielplatz, one of the assistant cooks in the steerage of the liner, who knew Knabe and his aunt and recognized the cat.

Then the old cook quit, and John Schweitzer was engaged in his place. Immediately steaks and chops began to disappear. The new cook soon discovered that the thief was the big gray cat. He went to Knabe and offered to bet $25 that he could take the cat away and leave him where he would never find his way back.

With Thomas in a bag, the cook took him to a building at Seventh Street and Avenue B, where he left him just two miles away from home. The agreement was that if Schnitzel did not return in ten days the cook was to get the $25. The time was up at 4 P. M. on Saturday.

Just an hour earlier Thomas turned up in the wake of a strange cat that had been drawn to the restaurant by savory odors. Thomas flew at him, and in the melee two waiters fell down a cellar stairway, the cook hit Knabe with a potato masher he threw at the cats, and four customers escaped, leaving unpaid bills.

HE SWINDLES PAWNBROKERS.

Jewelers Also Victims of a Man with a New "Short-Change" Trick.

A detective agency has sent out to jewelry stores and pawnshops notices warning them against a new "flim-flammer," accompanied by a woman. He is said to have worked half a dozen cities for nearly $7,000 from December to March. He first appeared in Third Avenue, between Twenty-third and 100th Street, on April 2, and since then has swindled two or three places on both the east and west sides.

His swindle is an ingenious variation of the short-change game. He calls at a store or pawnshop and asks to look at diamonds. Sometimes he is accompanied by the woman. If he is not shown valuable stone the first time he often makes a second visit.

He selects a number of stones, handing over a roll of bills with a rubber band around them in payment, remarking that the proper amount, he believes, will be found in the roll. But he waits, ostensibly to make good if the roll happens to be a dollar or two short. The seller finds in the roll a goodly number of bills of large denomination, with some small bills. The seller finds the roll $1 short. The swindler takes the roll back into his possession, and, after acknowledging the error, puts it down on the counter with a silver dollar on top of it. He then walks out.

On counting over the money a second time the seller finds that when the swindler took the money back to recount it he abstracted all the big bills, leaving only the bills of small denomination.

In Jersey City the swindler got $600 worth of diamonds for $21 in small bills. In Minneapolis he got $1,075 worth for $15, and in Philadelphia $1,885 for $25.

The man is described as about five and a half feet tall, 27 years old, and one hundred and forty pounds in weight. His nose is long and thin, and his complexion sallow. He usually wears spectacles.

The woman who sometimes accompanies him is about five feet two inches tall, with dark eyes and hair. She appears to be about 30 years old.

WEDS HIS FIRST WIFE'S NURSE

Charles V. Bergh, President of the Commercial Coal Mining Company of Philadelphia, and Miss Mabel E. S. Ireland, a nurse in the private hospital of the Private Hospital Association, in East Thirty-third Street, have obtained a marriage license from the bureau in City Hall, and will be married in June.

A year ago Mr. Bergh's first wife was a patient in the East Thirty-third Street Hospital, and Miss Ireland was her nurse, and Mr. Bergh met her in that capacity.

Later Mrs. Bergh died in Philadelphia, having received her injuries on a steamship while en route for Mr. Bergh's home in Sweden.

Mr. Bergh sued the steamship company, and ultimately secured a verdict of $10,000.

Pleger Refused Medical Aid and Walked Streets Till the End Came.

After having refused the services of a surgeon from Harlem Hospital, Henry Pleger, a German laborer, aged 50 years, living at 120 East 120th Street, was found dead yesterday afternoon on the stoop of a house at 265 East 122d Street.

Early in the afternoon Patrolman Sheehan of the East 126th Street Station noticed Pleger, who appeared to be ill, walking in 125th Street, near Lexington Avenue. He took the man to the stationhouse, and in answer to a call Dr. Healy came from the Harlem Hospital and began to examine Pleger, who declined assistance, insisting that he was not ill. After vainly trying to induce Pleger to accept treatment the surgeon and police allowed Pleger to depart.

Three hours later Pleger was found dead on the stoop. Again the ambulance was called, and Dr. Ross, who responded this time, said that pneumonia had been the probable cause.

BOOTBLACKS DIVIDE BOWERY.

Armenians Keep the East Side, Italians Have the West.

Amenians have been flocking steadily into the east side from Constantinople for the last year, and the young men have taken to the shoe shining industry with such success that the Italians have been gradually driven to the west side of the Bowery by the newcomers. Few of the Armenians speak anything but their native tongue, Armenian and Turkish, but the shoe shiners have a guild of their own, and an official interpreter named Rafael Komicho who does all their business for them.

Since the advent of the Armenians numerous fights have taken place between them and the Italians.

Through their interpreter, Komicho, who claims to speak every language but Irish, the Italians have agreed to evacuate all rights to the shoe shining industry on the east side of the Bowery, on the distinct understanding that the Armenians do not cross to the west side.

BODY IN PARK RESERVOIR.

Found to be That of Saloon Man Who Disappeared Last October.

The body of John P. Heins, a saloon keeper, who lived at 875 Park Avenue, was found yesterday in the Central Park reservoir. It had evidently been in the water a long time. Heins's widow, who identified the body at the Morgue, said her husband disappeared from home on Oct. 21 last. It is supposed that he threw himself into the reservoir.

Morris Beyer of 47 East Eighty-fourth Street was walking through the Park when he saw a black object floating in the reservoir. He called the attention of Patrolman McKenna of the Park police to it, and the two succeeded in getting it ashore. Then it was found to be the body of a man. There were several cards in one of the pockets bearing Heins's name and address, and 85 cents.

JUBILEE YEAR FOR METHODIST CHURCH

TO ELECT EIGHT BISHOPS

Many Important Questions Will Come Up for Adjustment Before the Delegates.

Arrangements are being made by large numbers of the Methodist clergy and laity to go to Baltimore for the opening of the twenty-fifth General Conference of the Church, which begins there on Wednesday morning. They expect to elect the Rev. Dr. William F. Anderson, Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Education, one of the eight Bishops to be chosen.

The meeting of the General Conference this year will be the one hundredth anniversary of Methodism in this country, and will be marked with some of the most important features ever undertaken at a conference since the days of John Wesley. Before the delegates will come the questions of change in the Book of Discipline affecting dancing, theatregoing, and other amusements which have been indorsed especially by the New York Conference at its recent session, as well as by other important conferences.

More than usual interest prevails in the selection of Bishops. Bishops Merrill, Joyce, McCabe, Fitzgerald, Andrews, and Fowler have died since the last General Conference, and it is expected that in addition to successors to these two additional Bishops will be chosen on account of the increase in the work of the Church. The 80 0delegates to the conference will come from every section of the United States and the Methodist missionary fields.

Many sections of the country are urging their candidates for the Episcopacy. It is expected that the Rev. Dr. R. J. Cooke, from the Houston (Texas) Conference in the Southwest, will be elected on the first ballot.

There is complimentary mention of more than thirty men. Dr. F. D. Bovard, editor of The California Christian Advocate, who has given thirty years to the work on the Pacific Slope, and Dr. Homer C. Stuntz and Dr. David G. Downey, both representatives of missions and Sunday schools respectively, are prominently mentioned.

The Rev. Dr. George E. Reed, President of Dickinson College; the Rev. Dr. William H. Crawford, President of Alleghany College; the Rev. Dr. Edwin H. Hughes, President of De Pauw University; the Rev. Dr. W. S. Lewis, President of Morningside College, Iowa; the Rev. Dr. H. C. Jennings, book agent in Cincinnati; the Rev. Dr. Claudius B. Spencer, editor of The Central Christian Alliance of Kansas City also are in the field.

Among the pastors, only three are prominently mentioned for the Bishopric. They are the Rev. Dr. W. A. Quayle of Chicago, the Rev. Dr. Daniel Dorchester of Christ Church, Pittsburg, the strongest church in Methodism, and the Rev. Dr. C. B. Mitchell of Cleveland. A few Presiding Elders are named, among them the Rev. Dr. W. S. Matthew of San Francisco.

The General Conference represents a constituency of nearly 3,500,000 members and 14,000 ministers; parsonage and church property amounting to about $180,000,000, educational institutions valued at $25,761,574, an endowment of about $25,000,000, and a large number of philanthropic institutions, such as homes and hospitals, amounting to several millions more. The Methodist Conference is divided into fourteen districts, which cover territory throughout the world, and the interests of each will be represented at the conference.

With the New York branch leading in the publishing institutions, this part of the Church work will come in for considerable discussion. The commission appointed four years ago to readjust and unify the publishing establishments has not been successful. The New York house has made such advances as to surpass the record of any other establishment, the net profits for the four years having reached $735,999.30.

Other questions that will be discussed are itinerancy, boundaries of districts, temporal economy, state of the Church, temperance and prohibition, foreign missions, home missions, Church extension, education, Sunday schools, deaconess work, and evangelism.

On May 16 all of the members of the conference will go to Washington, where they will be the guests of the American University and will be received by President Roosevelt.

DR. SLICER ON SOCIALISM.

The Rev. Alexander Irvine preached at the Church of the Ascension, at Tenth Street and Fifth Avenue, last night, and the Rev. Dr. Thomas R. Slicer, at the conference which followed, said a few things about Socialism that brought retorts from several of the Socialists present. The conference was held in the parish house, in Eleventh Street.

In his sermon the Rev. Mr. Irvine said that the Lord's Prayer was a good basis for the religion of a democracy. "In its very beginning," he said, "we have a whole social philosophy. Can any one build a fence around the phrase 'Our Father'? If that phrase were alive, and not merely dry bones, what a revolution it would create! 'Our Father' means 'My Brother' and 'My Sister.' I will not rob my brother, nor exploit him, nor permit him to work himself to death. When Jesus told us to ask for our daily bread He did not contemplate that some of us should have bread enough to last for a thousand years. And when the next panic, launched by some social bandit, comes, we should provide that men should not fight in the streets for bread. In a democracy bread ought to be at the disposal of everybody."

Dr. Slicer said in part:

"I read Bellamy's 'Looking Backward' some time ago, and I nearly broke a leg trying to get forward. I don't want to live in a world like that. I'd rather go to heaven, much as I dread going there. I want to live in a world where the individual shall have a chance. I have no right to exploit anybody but myself, but I have a right to exploit myself to the full, to work as hard as I please and as long as I please, without interference from anybody.

"There is a modern tendency to underrate the individual. It is true that the economic condition is wrong and needs change. It is true that it is the Weary Willies at one end and the Reckless Reginalds at the other that make our burden heavy. I saw a blue hawk in the Adirondacks last Summer get up from his perch and slant down the toboggan of the air and light straight upon his prey. And I thought he must be a silent partne rin a New York business firm. He was all hawk—there was nothing in him. It is the development of the human in the individual that we need."

The Socialists, parlor and otherwise, then had a chance to make two-minute speeches. Sol Fieldman said he "could not see how parts of an organism can compete with one another. The eyes don't compete; they co-operate. Neither do the heart and lungs compete. Competition only exists where there is lack of organization."

A continuation is announced for to-morrow evening, when Charles Johnston is to speak on "The Cause and Cure of Human Misery."

SQUADRON A CHURCH PARADE.

Major Gen. Roe, commanding the National Guard of the State, with his staff, attended the annual church parade of Squardon A yesterday afternoon at the Church of the Heavenly Rest at 551 Fifth Avenue.

All four troops of the squadron, numbering in all about 250 men, came from their armory at Madison Avenue and Ninety-fourth Street. Bandmaster M. J. Ryan with the squadron's band joined forces with Organist J. C. Marks in the service that followed.

The sermon was preached by the rector of the church, the Rev. Herbert Shipman, Chaplain of the squadron. He spoke of the alliance which should be effected between the Church and all soldiers.

"A man who thinks it necessary to be a milksop to be a Christian is wrong," the Chaplain said. "I say that the military life is allied with the Christian ideal. The soldierly ideal and the Christian ideal stand side by side, and it is back to the soldierly ideal that the Church must go. Now what are these standards of soldiers' morality? Truth, first of all. Next, courage. Are there no business tricks that we should sweep away, no social customs that we should destroy, no double standards of morality by which men and women are judged?"

PLEA FOR BIG NAVY SCORED BY PASTOR

Dr. Jefferson Declares Roosevelt's Militarism Makes Him Most Un-American President.

RANKS IT WITH SOCIALISM

As One of the Country's Greatest Dangers—Urges the People to Resist the Militant Spirit.

The Rev. Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, pastor of the Broadway Tabernacle, Fifty-sixth Street and Broadway, in his sermon yesterday declared that President Roosevelt is the most un-American President who ever occupied the White House, and added that it was the duty of an enlightened and aroused public opinion to resist, with unyielding pressure, the naval and military schemes of the President and his supporters. Dr. Jefferson's subject was "Militarism and the Christian Church," based on the text from the fifty-seventh verse of the twelfth chapter of the Gospel of St. Luke, "Why even of yourselves judge ye not what is right?"

"The three great problems," said Dr. Jefferson, "with which the men of our day are called to deal are the race problem, Socialism, and militarism. Militarism is a spirit, a creed, and an institution. As a spirit it is the spirit of Caesar, and its creed is that 'the strength of a nation lies in its military equipment. The foundations of national security and greatness are bayonets and battleships. National prestige is proportionate to naval tonnage and national rank is determined by the number of a nation's guns.'

"As an institution it is finely organized; it is ably officered; it is highly honored, and it is as sure and as proud of its position as the Christian Church itself. For the last ten years it has been growing in size and prestige and expenditure of money at a rate which the Church of Christ has not begun to equal. Eight nations to-day spend on their armies one billion dollars yearly, while twenty-five nations support 30,000 officers and 450,000 sailors upon the sea, at an annual expenditure of $580,000,000.

Militarism a Country's Burden.

"What has the Church to say about this? What should the attitude of Christians be to it? It is a gigantic leech sucking the lifeblood of republics and empires. It is a burden crushing the hearts and homes of men into the dust. Until recently we knew nothing of militarism in this country. The founders of the Republic hated and feared it, so that it never got a foothold in their day or that of their immediate descendants.

"In the last fifteen years, however, we have been leaving the traditions of our forefathers by leaps and bounds, and within twenty years we have spent a billion and a quarter dollars on our navy. Senator Hale told the Senate the other day that when the vessels now authorized are completed we would have in the Atlantic a fleet larger than the one now in the Pacific, and notwithstanding all this, the militarists, led by the President, have been moving heaven and earth to secure an immediate and enormous increase.

"When before did a President tell the leaders of Congress that if they refused him four new battleships he would veto their bills for public buildings? How far is the squandering of National treasure on naval display to go? Decide yourselves what is right, and do not be misled by the newspapers, the religious editors, or the President. Do not follow the President without thinking. What ground have we for thinking that any foreign nation will attack us? In every one of our wars we declared the war. We had no navy, yet no nation dared attack us. Why, then, do we think now that we have a mighty navy, the world is going to swoop down upon us?

A Big Navy Is Not Insurance.

"Do not be misled by the argument that a big navy is insurance. A man who does not want his house to burn does not first soak it in kerosene. Multiplying battleships and cruisers is only piling up inflammable material for a fire. A sensitive people, a yellow press, an excitable Congress, and a restless navy are the ingredients of a compound which can produce a tremendous explosion. These are questions which all Americans are bound to consider. The pulpit of America must awake, 33,000,000 professing Christians must arouse themselves. It is a moral question that affects the homes and lives of men.

"Is it right to squander our money in such astounding sums for naval equipment when it is needed for internal improvements? Is it right to ape foreign nations in a breakneck race for naval supremacy? Is it right to provoke other nations to still wilder expenditures in preparation for war? Why not lead these nations out of the morass into which they have wandered? Is it right to crush men, or to stand by and refuse to lighten their burden?

"We are responsible, to the measure of our influence, for the well-being of the peasants of Russia, Italy, France, and Japan, and of the great mass of impoverished humanity in East London. Our own cities need attention. The militarist has his gun pointed in the wrong direction. It is out of the caves of our great cities that the winds are going to blow which may tear the American flag to tatters. Swollen navies are more dangerous than swollen fortunes.

"In his militarism Mr. Roosevelt is the most un-American President who ever occupied the White House. In his military and naval schemes, he and those who think as he does, ought to be resisted by the unyielding pressure of an aroused and enlightened public opinion. In the creation of this public opinion all good men ought to perform their part."

Surgeons at Richmond Convention.

A number of well-known New York surgeons will attend the meeting of the American Surgical Association in Richmond, Va., whose sessions begin to-day and continue Tuesday and Wednesday, and some of them will read papers on subjects connected with the progress of surgery in the last year. Prof. Sauerbruch of Marburg, Germany; Prof. A. Chipault of Paris, and Prof. Maynihan of Leeds, England, are foreign surgeons who will contribute. Among the New York surgeons who will attend are Drs. Abbe, Brewer, Bryant, Bull, Coley, Dennis, Gibson, Johnson, McCosh, Meyer, Walker, and Woolsey.

DEFENSE OF ROCKEFELLER.

Church Audience Hears That He Is Simply an Outgrowth of a System.

That John D. Rockefeller is not personally a bad citizen, after all, but the result of a system, was the opinion expressed by several men last night at the new "open pew" service of Christ Presbyterian Church in West Thirty-sixth Street. It developed, too, that many in the audience were Socialists.

Prof. William Rockwell of Union Theological Seminary, who preached, explained the attitude of Jesus toward taxation and tributes to Caesar, as well as that of the early Church toward communism, when its members sold out their possessions and lived from a common fund.

"This is the difference between Communism and Socialism," said the speaker. "Communism is a division of production only; Socialism is also a division of labor."

The pastor, the Rev. James M. Farr, invited questions.

"Is not the earth a desert to miners who have to go down into the earth to work? Is it not a desert to the women and children of the South who have to work in factories?" asked one.

Before pausing for his answer the questioner said he knew it might not be a desert for those who had money, but that Socialism would cure the evil for all.

Prof. Rockwell said the earth was in reality a desert to many such as his questioner had mentioned, but, he said, the conscience of the Church was awake to the suffering of women and children in the South and was doing what it could for them.

"How about Rockefeller and the Church taking 'tainted money'?" asked another.

A negro in the audience replied in this way:

"Mr. Rockefeller is not to blame. It is the system that produced him which should be held responsible. He is nothing but an outgrowth of the system. By making gifts to the Church and colleges Mr. Rockefeller is doing what he can to correct the results of the system."

The minister also defended Mr. Rockefeller to the extent of saying that Mr. Rockefeller was alive to the needs of those in distress and was trying to correct evils.

A RESCUE HOME'S BIRTHDAY.

25th Anniversary of the Florence Crittenton Mission Celebrated.

The twenty-fifth aniversary of the establishment of the Florence Crittenton Mission was celebrated at Metropolitan Temple, Fourteenth Street and Seventh Avenue, last night, when the founder of the missions, Charles N. Crittenton; his chief aid, Mrs. Kate Waller Barrett, M. D., and the pastor of the church, the Rev. John Wesley Hill, addressed the vast crowd that filled the temple.

The first rescue home of the mission was started in April, 1883, by Mr. Crittenton in memory of his daughter Florence, and so successful was the experiment that a chain of similar institutions under the same name were established throughout the country, so that now seventy-four are in active operation in the United States and the movement has spread to Europe.

ANOTHER HIT AT BETTING.

Harlem Presbyterian Church Scores Senators Who Opposed Racing Bills.

The congregation of the Harlem Presbyterian Church listened last night to addresses from their legislative representative, Senator Alfred R. Page, and their pastor, the Rev. Dr. John Lyon Caughey, on "Who Governs the State of New York, the People or the Gamblers of the Race Track?" in the church, 122d Street and Mount Morris Park West.

After the services the Men's Club passed resolutions assuring Gov. Hughes of its support in his fight against race-track gambling and "deprecating the action of those Senators who failed to obey the mandate of the Constitution of the State and also forgot their oath of office to uphold the laws of the State."

The resolution called upon the Senators to reconsider their vote and position in the matter, "and in the coming special session of the Legislature act with all good citizens of the State by repealing the Percy-Gray law and thus remove the iniquitous conditions now prevailing at the race tracks."

Senator Page said that it was not for the legislator to consider whether gambling of any sort is wrong or not, but to carry out the wish of the people, and that was that gambling be abolished. He said the Legislature absolutely defied the will of the people in defeating the Agnew-Hart bill, and that the responsibility for its defeat must rest upon those who are in the majority.

STRANDED AT CONEY.

Trio of Youngsters Got There Free, but Getting Home Was Different.

Katie Brown, aged seven, her brother, Ellis, eight, of 258 East Forty-sixth Street, and their cousin, Addison Telley, five, of 250 East Fifty-first Street, decided yesterday afternoon while they were playing in the street that they wanted to go to Coney Island. An inspection of their finances revealed that they had just five cents all told. Nevertheless, they decided to go.

The children walked to Madison Avenue, as Ellis Brown, the eldest, pointed out that Madison Avenue cars went to the bridge without transfer.

"It's easier to get one kind conductor than two," said he.

There was a long file of passengers getting on the pay-as-you-enter car when the children climbed aboard.

"We're going to Coney Island," said Ellis, "and we havn't much money. Let us ride free."

"Can't do it," said the conductor, "you see I have to ring up a fare for each passenger."

"Why didn't you ring your bell every time you got a nickle from those people that just got on?" demanded Ellis.

The conductor blushed.

"Here get inside quick," he said gruffly.

So the trio reached the bridge. Here they took a direct car for the Island, whose conductor happened to be kind and paid their fare out of his own pocket. They arrived early enough to see nearly everything that could be seen free. Also they invested the five cents in candy.

About half past seven Katie began to think of home. To her inquiries as to how they were to get there the other two were only able to answer that they hadn't thought of that. So Katie cried as they stood forlorn on Surf Avenue.

A policeman took them to the Coney Island Station, where they were waiting last night for their parents to come and take them home.

THRONG ATTENDS MASS AT CATHEDRAL

Mgr. Lavelle Tells of the Importance of the Centennial Celebration.

BISHOP BROWNE'S EULOGY

Cardinal Logue, Archbishop Farley, and Other Clergy Going to Washington To-day.

The attendance at high mass in St. Patrick's Cathedral yesterday was one of the largest of the year. The Rev. Father Hughes was the celebrant of the mass, with Father J. J. O'Connell as deacon and Father J. J. Murphy as subdeacon. Mgr. Lavelle was the preacher.

"We have been thanking God all week," he said, "for the graces He has conferred on us. The importance of the centennial just celebrated cannot possibly be exaggerated, considering the demonstrations of faith that have been in evidence for the whole time of the celebration and culminating with the magnificent parade of yesterday.

"If we look into the future we cannot put a bound to the extent that the Church will reach in the next hundred years, that is if we are worthy of our forefathers. Their main strength was in the practice of the virtue of gratitude."

In the Church of the Holy Cross, in West Forty-second Street, Bishop Robert Browne of Cloyne preached the sermon. It was a day of dual celebration, the celebration of the finding of the cross that Christ died on and the celebration of the consecration of the church. The church was filled, and after mass hundreds of the parishioners called at the house of Mgr. Charles McCready, their parish priest, to meet the Irish Bishop.

Bishop Browne will accompany Cardinal Logue to Washington this morning. With their secretaries and Archbishop Farley and his secretary they will leave New York at 11 o'clock. They will attend a meeting of the Archbishops of the Catholic University at the capital to-morrow. The Cardinal and Bishop Browne will meet President Roosevelt during the week.

"I have never seen anything to equal the faith of the Catholic people of New York," said the Bishop at the close of the service at Holy Cross. "The magnificence of the mass on Tuesday in the Cathedral was beyond anything I have ever beheld. Again, on Wednesday, when the Cathedral was filled with children and 6,000 of their fresh, young voices sang together the effect was such as I have never experienced before. Another thing that has impressed me is the knowledge that Catholic laymen have of their dogma."

Mgr. McCready, who is entertaining Bishop Browne, was a college mate of Cardinal Logue at Maynooth, Ireland, and was two years his senior in the Catholic theological institution.

"The Cardinal," said Mgr. McCready yesterday, "came to the college as a young man, and did not appear very promising the first year. But the second year he was at the head of the class, and he stayed at the head to the end. He is just the same as a Cardinal as he was as a student. We both came from the same diocese—Raphoe. We were much together, and whenever I get a chance to return to Ireland we always renew our friendship.

"The centennial has been a most striking religious event. It has impressed the New York priests as much as it has the visiting priests. This faith in the Church means a great deal for the citizenship of America, I believe. A good Catholic means a good citizen. Catholicism means much for public honesty. We hold our faithful to the commandment, 'Thou shalt not covet.'"

Cardinal Logue attended St. John's Church, Willoughby and Lewis Avenues, Brooklyn, in the afternoon. The feast of the transmission of the relics of St. Vincent de Paul was celebrated. There was high mass, which began at 11 o'clock, Bishop Colton of Buffalo being the celebrant, with Mgr. McNamara as assistant priest, Father McGoldrick as deacon, and Father Woods as sub-deacon. After the mass Cardinal Logue said a few words to the congregation, and gave his blessing.

Following a parade of the society of St. Vincent de Paul of the church and other parochial organizations a luncheon was served in honor of Cardinal Logue. At the luncheon Mgr. Hayes spoke on behalf of Archbishop Farley, and Mgr. McNamara spoke for the Bishop of Brooklyn. Father McCarthy spoke for the priests of Brooklyn, and Father Munderlein responded to the toast "The Holy Father."

MASS FOR NIGHT WORKERS.

Celebration of the Seventh Anniversary in St. Andrew's Church.

The seventh anniversary of the establishment of the mass for night workers was celebrated in a fitting manner in St. Andrew's Church, in Duane Street, at 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning. A big congregation was present, including many women who came by invitation.

A solemn high mass was celebrated by the Rev. Luke J. Evers, pastor of the church; the Rev. Thomas Owens was Deacon, and the Rev. Antonio Palisi, sub-Deacon. An excellent musical programme was rendered, beginning with a hymn to the Pope and ending with the Nativity march. The choir consisted of six sopranos, three altos, eight tenors, and fourteen bassos, assisted by a string band.

Father Evers told of the establishment of the mass seven years ago. He said its need had been proved so conclusively that the example had been followed all over the world. He introduced the Rev. Thomas A. Judge, who delivered an address of an hour, in which he talked particularly to newspaper men. He asked them to direct their efforts for good, and advised a strict code of ethics.

UNIONS HELP SUFFRAGETTES.

Mrs. Commander Complains to Federation of Hostility at Meetings.

Mrs. Lydia K. Commander, who headed a committee from the Progressive Woman Suffrage Union, which came to ask the co-operation of labor in the suffragette movement, made an appeal for support at the meeting of the Central Federated Union yesterday.

"Not long since, when we met in Wall Street, where nobody seems to be well treated except those who prey on the lambs," she said, "we found we were lambs. Among other indignities which were perpetrated, water was thrown on us, but water is not an unknown quantity in Wall Street. We had trouble the other night at 125th Street and Seventh Avenue from a lot of hoodlums. We found that while we were long on enthusiasm, we were short on friends. We know, however, that you are our friends, and we want this body to be represented at our open air meetings."

The Central body decided to write to the Police Department to ask for protection for the Suffragettes, and the following resolution was adopted:

> Resolved, That the Central Federated Union heartily indorses the object of the Progressive Woman Suffrage Union, and offers these women its full sympathy and support in their courageous open air campaign for political liberty.

It was also decided to appoint a committee to attend a meeting of the Interurban Woman Suffrage Council on Tuesday evening, May 12, at the Hotel Martha Washington.

PAID $2.50 FOR PENNY STAMP.

Some One Dropped Gold Coin in Slot Machine Instead of a Cent.

Some one in New York paid $2.50 for a one cent postage stamp last week, whether that some one knows it or not. The officials of the United States Automatic Vending Company made the discovery. This company, up to a few days ago, had three penny-in-the-slot stamp machines in the New York Post Office, to show the Government how much easier it is for busy people to buy stamps in the slot machines than wait in line at the stamp windows.

The machines were removed last week to the offices of the company in the Metropolitan Life Building, at 1 Madison Avenue. There the stamps were taken out, and several quarts of pennies removed and packed away in boxes until they could be sent to a bank to be exchanged for money of larger denomination.

When one of the company's clerks began to count the pennies a $2.50 gold piece was discovered. It had apparently been inserted in the one-cent stamp machine in place of a penny, and owing to the similarity of size between the gold coin and a copper penny, the gold coin did the trick, and the purchaser evidently went his way with the stamp.

THE INJUNCTION.

Mr. ROOSEVELT's latest message says they are blind who fail to recognize the extreme bitterness caused by the misuse of the injunction process, and that in a democracy like ours it is idle to expect permanently to thwart the determination of the great body of our citizens. Mr. ROOSEVELT regrets that the injunction process should be liable to "reckless use, for this reckless use tends to make honest men desire so to hamper its execution as to destroy its usefulness."

And we may add that when the injunction process is attacked because it has been wisely used in the public interest it is a duty to defend it against misrepresentation or crippling. The Supreme Court is on record as approving the injunctions which Mr. ROOSEVELT cites as the cause of his remark, and he himself cites no other cases to justify his words. He speaks as one of those who interpret Democracy as the enactment of what the majority want. This may be popular, but it is practical error. No public law is effective which does not command practically universal approval of all good citizens, the disapproval of bad citizens being negligible. The theory of our Government does not abandon the minority to the whims of the majority. A majority of the people is not the people, and the unanimous vote of the entire two million trades unionists is not public opinion, although some may truckle to it as such.

The Constitution was established as the standard of right, as a barrier between the excesses of individualism on the one hand and the encroachments of usurpation on the other. Nothing is so alarming as the attacks upon our Constitution and courts, not even the Executive and legislative errors by which it was sought impatiently to check corporate abuses. Most of them were amenable to the laws which would have checked them if they had been enforced, instead of requisitions being made for fresh laws, which, having been given, have been found for the most part inapplicable or injurious. And economic checks would certainly have applied themselves automatically if given opportunity. But a cataclysm was precipitated, giving every sufferer a grievance such as he could not have felt if he had suffered the same results as the result of his own errors of judgment.

It behooves us all to be attentive to a sound public opinion, and it is the duty of all teachers and leaders to keep opinion sound. To bow to the storm instead of checking or directing it is opportunism at best, and may be something worse.

STUBBORN FACTS.

Whether the conclusions of Mr. WINTER of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system, with regard to the transit problem in Brooklyn, are correct or not, the facts on which he bases them are not to be ignored. He is a candid man, with wide experience and great ability, and on these grounds alone his views are entitled to respect. But quite apart from this, his general statements are practically matters of common knowledge.

It is true that subways are an expensive form of transit construction, that their maintenance is also expensive, that their highest usefulness, perhaps their sole usefulness under all conditions, is confined to through routes of compact and continuous traffic, and that, therefore, they are not suited to the needs of a population scattered over widely ramifying lines. And it is undoubtedly true that elevated railways, running through public streets, are far cheaper to build and can handle equal, or greater, traffic at less cost. The conformation of Brooklyn, as it has thus far been determined, does not lend itself apparently to the subway construction, with the conditions noted, though it is quite conceivable that three or four lines might be made to pay in the course of a few years.

But what is entirely plain is the point made by Mr. WINTER that, if these or other lines are to be built or run by private capital, they must be made attractive to private capital. On what terms that can be done is a matter for careful inquiry and negotiation, but it is obviously physically and morally impracticable to force capital into confessedly unprofitable undertakings. Undoubtedly it is the duty of the City Government to see that the public is served as well as it can be consistently with fair returns to capital, but the returns must be fair and fairly secure, or the people must either give up the service or pay for it out of the taxes.

ADVICE TO MR. BINGHAM.

It is the plain duty of every good citizen to familiarize himself with the work that is being done for the better government of his own city, and personally to do all that is possible to help that work along.—THEODORE A. BINGHAM, Police Commissioner, in The North American Review for May.

Mr. BINGHAM complains that through the lack of interest of good citizens less money is now being spent to maintain the Police Department, in proportion to inhabitants, than was spent in 1899, although during this period the expenditure on the public schools increased by 108.07 per cent.; upon the Fire Department, 68.5 per cent., and upon the Department of Correction, 67 per cent.

If the Commissioner will consult the police blotters, he will there discover the names of the citizens most interested in the enforcement of law by properly policing the city. There were last year some 187,000 arraignments for gross and petty crimes before the Magistrates of New York; there must have been at least 20,000 crimes undetected. The Commissioner is in a position to know the names of the thousands of citizens whose rights were invaded and whose injuries were unredressed. From these citizens might be formed an earnest, determined, and well-organized body which would afford him the support he needs. The Commissioner wants the patrolmen increased in proportion of 1 to 400 inhabitants, and he wants a small secret service for special purposes. His proposals, presented by 10,000 men whose lives have been threatened and whose property has been taken, would not be ignored by the Board of Aldermen, and the Board of Estimate would no longer turn a deaf ear to his importunities.

HIGH SCHOOLS AND TRADE SCHOOLS

There were two reports in yesterday's NEW YORK TIMES bearing on subjects that have a closer relation to each other than is generally recognized. One referred to the investigations of a committee of the High School Teachers' Association with regard to the notorious, and apparently increasing, tendency of pupils in the High Schools to quit them before completing the full course, and, indeed, often before completing one-half the full course. The other referred to the work of the National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education, a very strong organization, in which some of the most experienced and authoritative educators of the country are engaged, such as Dr. PRITCHETT of the Carnegie Foundation and Dr. MAXWELL, Superintendent of Schools in New York.

If we are asked what in our opinion is the relation between these two movements which should enlist special interest, the answer would be that the High Schools fail, in some marked degree, to retain their pupils because they do not provide instruction needed by, and attractive to, the mass of pupils, and the trade schools advocated by the above named society would, in a very marked degree, remedy that defect. We are not, of course, prepared to say at present that all our High Schools should be devoted to industrial training, but we are quite convinced that the reason there are relatively few pupils in these schools is that their teaching is suited, and, indeed, intended, for a few only. On the other hand, we are persuaded that industrial training in its most highly and intelligently developed form, with the mental training possible and really requisite for its best results, can be adapted to the wants and tastes of the great mass of pupils whom it is desirable to instruct at public expense.

At the very outset of the High School course we are met with the fact that only a small percentage of the boys and girls who have been in the preparatory schools can cross the line, because their families cannot afford to forego their earnings and to furnish the money to maintain them longer. For every year of the High School the pressure for withdrawal of pupils from this cause naturally and inevitably becomes greater. Moreover, with every year the failure of the High Schools to prepare their pupils for increased earning when they leave is more obvious. The sacrifices demanded of the families of the pupils are made heavier, and the prospect of adequate recompense in the training of the pupils becomes dimmer. It may be said—we have heard High School teachers say it—that this is a sordid view of education and ignores the intellectual and spiritual benefits to be got only from the "higher" education. But, on the one hand, it must be remembered that whether the view is or is not sordid, it is one that stern necessity compels the great majority of parents to take. On the other hand, it must further be remembered that substantially all the benefits which are really benefits of the present high school training can be had as readily, or more so, from a training directly addressed to the development of industrial efficiency. Indeed, so far as discipline of character and the culture of the mental faculties are concerned, the latter training may be made more thorough and more fruitful than the best of the present High Schools give. In saying this, we do not at all wish to depreciate the value of what, for lack of a better term, may be called literary schooling. But, in the first place, such schooling is not the best for the greatest number, and, in the second place, those who have the bent for it that makes it possible for them to get the best from it can, in the great majority of cases, with reasonable patience and perseverance, secure it for themselves. Taking the population as a whole, these are decidedly the exceptions, and our system of education at public cost cannot fairly be devoted mainly to the exceptions.

SARGENT'S EYE.

Dissatisfaction with some of the most striking portraits of that wonderful painter, JOHN S. SARGENT, has been growing of late. Posterity, however, which will know and admire SARGENT'S work, will feel no dissatisfaction with it. His portraits will live. The errors of his manner, therefore, are the more regrettable. Sometimes, not always, he seems determined to portray only the worst traits of his subject. He sees the soul of his sitter, his admirers say, and puts it on canvas. That savors of overpraise.

A wag once called SARGENT the Pinero of the fine arts. It would be high praise, and less droll, to call PINERO the Sargent of recent playwrights. He, like the great portrait painter, has his spells of seeing the worst, the meanest side of humanity, and portraying it vividly. But BEN JONSON and a few others of higher rank had the same failing, and the comparison, if amusing, is unimportant.

SARGENT'S new portrait of the Right Hon. ARTHUR J. BALFOUR is exciting amazed comment among visitors to the London Royal Academy. To his thoughtful contemporaries this statesman is a kind-hearted, thoughtful, learned, and aspiring man, a man of benignant aspect, failing occasionally in high endeavor in the bewilderments of a crisis. SARGENT'S piercing eye has seen only the failures. Mr. BALFOUR is depicted as a drooping, hopeless, worn-out man. He is not that. But the work of SARGENT'S wonderful brush will live longer than the most eloquent words of Mr. BALFOUR'S literary contemporaries, and, of course, the picture is a likeness. SARGENT makes likenesses.

AMERICAN CLUBS IN LONDON.

There is much talk of another American club in London. The cable dispatches in THE SUNDAY TIMES contained details of a scheme in which the Duke of RUTLAND, widely known in the world of sport and fashion until quite lately as the Marquis of GRANBY, is interested. RUTLAND complains that he cannot "put up" his American friends at his London clubs, but by enlarging his list of clubs and spending some of his time in town away from the respectable shadows of Pall Mall he can "do" his friends from this country very well indeed. A member may "put up" a foreign visitor at the Devonshire, the Bath, the Garrick, and half a dozen other clubs of good quality.

Neither the visiting nor the resident American needs an American club in London. He is generally well enough cared for in the existing clubs, which meet every want of club life. American clubs, hitherto, have generally gone to pieces because of some scandal connected with the gaming tables. They have not been the favored resorts of respectable Americans. In the last seven years several attempts have been made to establish an expensive American club in London. One, which was to occupy a building on the site of the old Avondale Hotel, at Dover Street and Piccadilly, was to charge an admission fee of 50 guineas and annual dues of 25. The annual dues in most of the world-renowned, exclusive clubs of Pall Mall are about 10 guineas.

None of these plans, which expired before fruition, had the backing of so illustrious and energetic a nobleman as RUTLAND. But we venture to predict that a so-called American club, established on the proprietary system, in the house of the late Baroness BURDETT-COUTTS, at Stratford Street, in the centre of civilization, will not attract the best kind of Americans. Good Americans do not go to London to associate with Americans of the boastful, extravagant kind. The Duke of RUTLAND will best satisfy his desirable American friends by putting them up at real English clubs.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Test Rides Again Condemned. President ROOSEVELT should read some comments on his riding tests for elderly army officers that appear in The Medical Record. Only in the warfare of savages, it says, are the leaders expected to endure the strains of actual fighting. That, since the development of a military system worthy of the name, has been left to young men, and even they wear out with frightful rapidity when the utmost exertion of their physical abilities is prolonged through many months.

The mental work of war is of necessity imposed upon men of training and experience, and in them highest efficiency of this sort is often, if not usually, displayed only when they are spared bodily exertion in every way that circumstances will permit. None of the elderly officers who won the Manchurian campaign for Japan, asserts The Medical Record, were subjected to any such trial as the ninety-mile ride which the President proposes to impose, and if they had been the war would have had to be fought by somebody else, probably with different results, for OYAMA and his Generals could not have stood tests of such severity.

"If it is required here," continues the article, "our army will be deprived of many of its valuable officers fit for campaigns, and many of those who do take the test will be ruined for the less strenuous exertions of actual war. In other words, the test is beyond human endurance, except for freaks or cowboys less than 40 years old. Even the former test was too severe and rumor credits it with having done more or less damage to some of the officers."

While men must be trained to endure the strains of war, there is no use in dilating their hearts beyond the recuperative point, and the endurance of hardship is often the poorest of preparation for enduring it. He is not most ready for battle who has been killed or wounded, though when the battle comes he may have to encounter either of those calamities, and the soldiers who had been kept long in the Southern camps before the Spanish war began were in nothing like as good condition for campaigning in Cuba as those who went direct to the island from the North.

"There must," concludes the article, "be something wrong with the army when medical science is so ignored." If the President's plan is anything more than a device to clear the higher grades of old men and open the way for the promotions of younger ones, it would seem to be a pretty bad one.

Trouble with Transfers. One among the minor, but still sufficiently annoying, consequences that have followed the breaking up through the recent receiverships of the single system into which our surface car lines had been formed is due to the fact that certain transfers are accepted on only one of two or more lines that use the same tracks over a part of their routes.

For instance, the passenger on a Fifty-ninth Street car demands and gets a transfer "for Broadway." Alighting at the proper place, he takes the first Broadway car that comes along and rides a block or two, only to find, if he happen to be unlucky in his choice, that his transfer is not good on that particular car, though it would have been in the car that went before or came after the car he took. His alternative is to get off or pay another fare.

This is a serious matter for some, and it has its embarrassments for all, since conductors are not always as kind and patient as they might be in presenting the facts in these cases, and even those to whom the extra fare is not a matter of moment have a feeling of having somehow been "done" as they hand out the second nickel. Of course, it is the passenger's duty to know what he is about and his privilege to learn the intricacies of the new dispensation in the transportation world, but strangers abound in New York, and of the residents, some are just a bit stupid, and a vastly greater number are more than a bit careless. Even for the best instructed and most careful it is not always either easy or convenient to distinguish between cars that look much alike and are differentiated only by small and not very legible signs.

The remedy for this trouble would seem to be, first, an increase in the size of the signs indicating line and route, and, second, in so printing, numbering, and coloring the transfers that they could readily be associated with the particular cars on which they are taken.

Servants Out of Work. Householders have not noticed any startling increase of late in the number of competent domestic servants out of work and seeking it at reduced wages, but the figures presented in the report of the Commissioner of Licenses on present conditions in the employment bureaus are definite and presumably accurate. There must, therefore, have been a change of some sort in the servant situation, and the one he describes is exactly the one that would naturally result from the known tendency to reduce expenditures that followed the financial troubles of last October.

Presumably, however, it is only servants with the least training in their duties and the least inclination to perform them well that are now crowding the bureaus, and with chastened mien submitting to the inquisition of mistresses instead of themselves acting as inquisitors. Their anxieties will not cause very cruel disquietude in the minds of those whom they formerly questioned with such haughty severity and abandoned on any or no excuse, and it may be that the present difficulty, if it exist, may give the "girls" a realizing sense of the fact that good wages should be well earned, and that good "places" are not always to be found next door or around the corner.

Of course, the conditions of domestic service are not those to attract women of intelligence and ambition, and we never felt the astonishment so often expressed by feminine orators at the preference shown for work in stores and factories at lower wages, all things considered, than can be obtained in kitchens. But the solution of the problems involved lies after all, in the hands of the servants, and if they would take the pains to make themselves competent they would not have much trouble in improving the conditions of their service.

Tipping Blackmail.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

For over a year I have been on the lookout for something in the leading New York newspapers on the practice of tipping, and I am therefore in a mood to appreciate keenly your recent editorials on this pernicious habit. I have yet failed to find notices in public places in New York forbidding gratuities, which is very common out in the "Wild and Woolly West." I knew tipping existed to a greater or less extent, but I did not think that this false idea of generosity had fastened itself like a vampire on our cosmopolitan public.

In the eyes of common sense there is no difference between the man who writes "Black Hand" letters for the money there is in it and the hotel waiter who refuses to give you decent service unless his every turn of the body is to be moved by the hope of a tip. The one may be open blackmail for $100 once in a year; the other is undisguised blackmail for 10 cents, 25 cents, or $1 a thousand times every year. Speaking for myself, and I know I voice the sentiments of others, I want to say that I would much prefer to pay 50 cents for a noonday lunch and not be expected to tip the waiter, than to pay 25 cents for the lunch and be expected to tip some indefinite amount.

Socialist Negroes' Blunder.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a negro, permit me to say, that while I do not entirely agree with your editorial in reference to the dinner of the Cosmopolitan Club, I do believe that the affair was a very serious blunder. The level-headed negro does not seek social equality or intermarriage. No man would want to see his wife subjected to the criticism and ostracism that would follow such a union, and the ostracism is just as determined on the part of the negro as it is with the Caucasian.

The Household Treasurer.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Should the husband, who earns all the money, or the wife, who spends a large part of it, act as the household treasurer? This question, though often raised, seems to be yet unsettled unless some reader of THE TIMES can hit upon the proper solution, for which the writer would be greatly obliged.

"STUDYING THE JAPANESE."

Have We Calmly Studied Our Own Position in the East?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"Studying the Japanese," in to-day's issue, is an article of philosophic depth and worldly wisdom. Years of residence in several foreign countries (in fact, of four continents) has impressed on me the profound importance in all instances of what you advocate in that of the Japanese, who have studied us, but have we studied ourselves in anything like the same measure? A Frenchman high in the service of his Government said to me that "the American neither criticises nor permits criticism of himself nor of his country." I replied that he had not read our pessimists of party nor our political philosophers.

"The possibilities of no remote future," which loom to you, are not due to the fear that the open door may be shut so much as to American possession of Asian islands. With those eliminated from our jurisdiction even the hottest of our patriots would deprecate war with 50,000,000 of triumphant Asiatics in their own region, whose expenses therefor would not be 25 per cent. of ours. The situation is by no means so unequal as it seems. If the flag-wagger could be persuaded to take a few minutes' nap we might see the physical relation without any "colors" at all. But we, descended from many generations of lawyers' sons and parsons' daughters, have not yet learned to put the proper circumscription on the man who "loves his country first, last, and all the time," &c. He is as yet in the majority, though I would hope in a diminishing one. Possibly our unique combination of ancestors bequeathed us a progressive development of ethical fertility, intellectual dexterity, and pietistic and secular oratory, which enables us to justify anything we have done or may do or desire. The old "fait accompli" of Talleyrand remains at once the basis of our actions and the text of our sermons. Despite abstract professions, it is with us a concrete condition wherein nothing is altruistic per se, nor is anything necessarily just unless by accident.

I do not wish to crawl out of a difficulty through an epigram, but would like to remark that while the Philippines belong to us we do not belong in the Philippines. There are a few islands in the Pacific about 600 or more knots west of Ecuador, at practically the same distance therefrom as is Manila from Hongkong. Would we allow Japan to hold and fortify them at the close of a victorious war with Ecuador? When we get ready to look at the Philippines without any flags at all we shall be prepared to confess that we shall not fight for the open door on its bare merits, and that therefore the "big navy," with its continual expense for maintenance of alien interests and its temptation to "bang somebody," is a superfluous and too costly proposition. Fortifications not afloat, no matter how strong and numerous, do not convey the power of attack. But they do carry the power of defense, and they carry also the consistency of American pretensions to "peace with honor," which Statesman Burton of the Twenty-first Ohio recently found as good for this Nation as Lord Beaconsfield found it for Great Britain thirty years ago.

Let us beware of continually holding up to mankind "that immortal instrument" as an ironic conundrum.

"SKIDDING" MOTORCARS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of Monday, April 20, appeared on the first page the following news item:

TRENTON, N. J., April 19.—Charles Balligum, aged 18 years, of 246 Grand Street, was crushed to death against a house by an automobile late last night on South Broad Street. He was walking on the sidewalk, when an automobile driven by Corwin Nichols of Wilmington, Ohio, a freshman at Princeton University, skidded to the sidewalk. Balligum was caught between the auto and the building, and almost every bone in his body was broken. He died instantly. * * *

Nichols was in no way to blame, as the pavement was wet, making it almost impossible to keep the wheels from skidding.

Eyewitnesses of the accident state that the automobile was not speeding, but was proceeding within the legal limitations; that because of the wet and slippery condition of the street surface, and because of the unwise provision of the Frelinghuysen motor vehicle statute, forbidding the use of anti-skidding chains, the operator of the automobile lost control, the death of an innocent user of the streets resulting.

No better demonstration could be had of the senselessness of such a provision of law as that referred to, and of the ordinance recently passed by the Park Board of this city similarly legislating against the use of tire chains. There will be other deaths and other accidents resulting in injury to person and property unless such groundless legislation may be done away with. It has been stated to President Smith of the Park Board many times that he was standing for an ordinance which would result in serious accidents to users of the highways and driveways, with probable loss of life or irreparable injury, but he has persistently denied that any such thing was possible. Now he has proof of the untenability of his position.

It is but a very lame defense for the Park Board to say that non-skidding devices injure the surface of the roads. They might just as sensibly contend that, because the sharp calks of the steel shoes of horses and the narrow-rimmed steel-shod tires of carriages injure the driveways, therefore they should be excluded from the streets and parks; and that would force a return to the use of oxen and broad-tired wheels. Of course, slight injury to the roads and the consequent expense for maintenance is negligible compared with the value of safeguarding human life and limb.

I am not a lawyer, but it seems to me that, in case of death or injury resulting from skidding in places where the Park Board has prohibited the use of tire chains, the Park Board and the City of New York should be made liable to answer in damages for such injuries. As your paper has said, automobilists are entitled to be safe, while other users of the streets and driveways are entitled likewise to be free from accident resulting from skidding of motor vehicles.

Long Distance Typesetting.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May it not be that Hans Knudsen's long-distance typesetting machine, on which you commented this morning, will, if workable, find use in a future species of journalism—hourly bulletin, differentiated from the edited daily newspaper? It may gradually dawn upon us that we cannot have reliability and the greatest speed together, and we may be glad to have them separate in order to choose between them.

NATIONAL ARTS EXHIBIT.

Club Shows 39 Paintings of Various Schools Loaned by C. C. Ruthrauff.

At the National Arts Club is an exhibition of 39 paintings lent by C. C. Ruthrauff. Most of them belong in character to the Dutch and Flemish schools; the others are English, Spanish, French, and Italian. Among the English pictures is one ascribed in the catalogue to the little-known Henry Robert Morland, who was the father of George Morland, and whose "Laundry Maids" is in the National Museum in London.

The present example, which is called simply a "character study," is a portrait head, warm and rich in coloring and expressive in characterization, altogether a beautiful specimen of early English portraiture.

The dark little sea piece by which the great name of Turner is represented has plenty of dramatic action, and the motion of the waves is tumultuous. Among the Spaniards is put an "El Greco," a composition in which St. Veronica's compassionate attendance upon Christ bearing the Cross is the theme. The figure of the saint has an elongation and structural twist that suggest the idiosyncrasy of Theotokopoulos, but the other figures and the color are more Italianated than any examples of his riper period which have found their way to this country.

The French group includes a "Portrait of an American," by Louis Claude Pagnest, a thoroughly alive and vigorous painting, fresh in color and definite in drawing. A composition of seven figures in a sylvan landscape is given to Watteau. The figures are plump and full colored, and the trees lack the shimmering atmospheric tone characterizing Watteau's noble and mysterious scenery. However, the picture is to be put to the test of exhibition in Paris the latter part of this month, and no doubt will provoke illuminating discussion.

The Italian group contains one admirable sketch, a "Madonna in Glory by Tiepolo," painted with authority, bold and crisp in drawing, and quite worthy of the Renaissance master. Paul Bril of Antwerp has a little landscape with the figure of Elijah praying, charming in its precise landscape feeling, a feeling that is lacking in the two round pictures by Abel Grimmer.

Perhaps the best work in the collection is the portrait given to Pieter Van der Werff, and supposed to be of his brother Adrian's wife. The delightful modeling of the face and the distinguished passages of color in the gown and the dim flushed drab of the scarf gathered together by a pallid hand fix the picture in mind as a triumph in elegance of execution.

A portrait of Mrs. Ruthrauff, by Paul Louis Dessar, is the only example of the American school. It is rich in color, and painted with frank brushwork and in ample style. It is an admirable idea to include it in the exhibition, where it appears to excellent advantage among its surroundings.

Rules for Pupils' Vision.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Probably not one parent in a thousand has the slightest idea how large an object—say a capital letter—a child should be able to see at a given distance, say, at twenty, forty, or eighty feet.

Acuteness of distant vision is the proper standard of the function. At forty feet letters should approximate one inch square, at twenty feet one-half inch square.

When blackboards are used for object lessons they should be placed opposite windows, never between, and should be of a dark, lustreless color, kept scrupulously clean, and not made gray with chalk. They should be placed at a distance of not less than fifteen or, better, twenty feet from the nearest pupil, for beyond or at this distance the rays of light from the object to be looked at are brought to a focus upon the retina, and produce a clear image with the minimum effort or strain of accommodation or vision on the part of the normal eye. It would be best to divide the class into such a number of pupils as can be placed directly in front of separate boards.

Lessons placed upon blackboards for pupils to copy are injurious to the eyes by reason of the rapid change of focus required from the distant board to the paper on the desk, hence these should be avoided.

The use of glasses is not in itself objectionable, on the contrary, to be commended; but the increasing demand for glasses among those who have hardly passed their first youth is a different matter. So far as this depends upon causes that are preventable—not by the reckless and injudicious use of unsuitable glasses—it calls for serious consideration.

Hamilton's Last Gum Tree.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The last of the famous thirteen trees stationed by Alexander Hamilton to guard his home on Washington Heights departed this life May 1, 1908. The obsequies were attended by a number of the fellow-citizens of the deceased, though no public notice was given. For some time he had been failing, and of late his condition was so critical that the end was feared at any minute.

The deceased has been a resident of the Heights for over a century, being the oldest inhabitant of his neighborhood. The next in age fell before Time's scythe on the 14th of January of this year. They "were lovely and pleasant in their lives," but in their death they are divided. As a witness thereto I send you a fragment taken from this, the last of the gum trees.

The City of New York has no occasion to point with pride to its treatment of these venerable and historic trees, for they have been scorched and scarred by fire and sword.

Requiescat in pace.

New York, May 2, 1908.

YEARS AGO.

Its limbs were monstrous things to me, its trunk amazing tall;
Its apples were near twice as big as any they can grow
On apple trees to-day—but that was years and years ago;
They were so juicy, red, and sweet, and I have tried in vain
To get me some such apples now, and tried and tried again,
But not an apple I can buy has flavor such—I know

I used to know a bubbling spring, upon whose graveled brink
I lay stretched out on Summer days to drink and drink and drink;
No nectar e'er was half so sweet, no springs like that one flow
In any spot I find to-day—but that was years ago.
The water bubbled clear and cold, the music of it yet
Is in my ears; the taste of it I never shall forget;
They do not have such clear, cold springs as they had years ago.

I used to know a melon patch, where melons lay so thick
And luscious it was hard to tell which one you ought to pick;
And when you split one open wide, the richest red would show,
There are no melons like that now—but that was years ago.
The heart of it was firm and sweet, the juice of it would run
In crimson streams—a good-sized boy could hardly carry one,
But it seems strange—I look for them no matter where I go
To find there are no melons now like we had years ago.

I used to know a cider mill, where sweet ambrosia ran Through many an hour down many a throat from many a cup or can,
I guess because no apples now like those big red ones grow
They do not make such cider as they used to years ago;
There is no maple sugar now like that we used to eat,
No shellbarks like we used to get, so crisp and full of meat,
For I was back there not long since to see and now I know
The things they have are not like those we boys had—years ago.

CLEVELAND BETTER, HIS WIFE DECLARES

3 NURSES NOW AT BEDSIDE

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. Y., May 3.—In response to repeated inquiries for an authoritative statement concerning the condition of ex-President Cleveland, Mrs. Cleveland finally sent the following message from the sick room in the Lakewood Hotel late to-night:

"I have given two or three statements about Mr. Cleveland's health through The Associated Press, and what I have said each time continues to hold good and there continues to be improvement."

Despite this, Dr. Joseph D. Bryant of New York, who has been with Mr. Cleveland since Friday, remained at the bedside, and a third nurse has been engaged.

During the day the same secrecy which has characterized their attitude since the commencement of Mr. Cleveland's illness was continued by the management of the hotel. It was impossible to even get a card sent up to Dr. Bryant.

Many Princeton friends of Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland drove over in automobiles in the afternoon, but they fared no better than the newspaper representatives. None of them was admitted to the hotel. The big front doors of the deserted resort were locked all day. Any attendant who was induced to come to the entrance had always the same story of "Orders not to disturb Mrs. Cleveland or Dr. Bryant."

All other approaches to the hotel were locked. Telegrams and messages of sympathy have begun pouring in upon the hotel from all over the country. John D. Rockefeller, who is at his place here, sent over a message by a boy. Even Gov. Fort has been unable to get any answer to his queries, his executive secretary having telephoned the hotel for him and failed to get a satisfactory reply.

It was learned to-night that Dr. Bryant has been in consultation with Dr. I. H. Hance, a local physician, but he refuses to discuss the case. It is also understood that Dr. Bryant will be reinforced to-morrow by Dr. Lockwood of New York, in whose care he will leave the patient as soon as there is a marked improvement.

Mrs. Cleveland and Dr. Bryant went for a drive this afternoon, but remained away from the hotel only a short time.

The impression that the ex-President is suffering from cancer of the stomach is current among the residents of Lakewood.

MR. CLEVELAND ON INSURANCE

Companies More Strongly Intrenched in Public Opinion Than Ever.

In the current issue of The Spectator, an insurance magazine, ex-President Cleveland has a lengthy article on the subject of life insurance, of which he has made a serious study for several years. He calls attention to the position the public has taken in regard to many of the life insurance companies, and says:

"The recent outcry against life insurance companies in general was born of sudden, though not unnatural, indignation resulting from the exposure of breaches of trust and bald malfeasance on the part of a few insurance officials, who were deservedly swept out of office by a wave of popular resentment; but in the face of the fact that approximately one-fifth of the entire population of this country now are, and long have been, paying premiums to these same companies, the disposition to indulge in undiscriminating criticism of life insurance companies in general should have no permanent significance, but should only be regarded as a not uncommon but undesirable incident of a moral awakening, whose general trend is in the direction of wholesome reform.

"In all the adverse comments that have been written and spoken during this awakening there has not been a serious impeachment of the basic principles upon which American life insurance rests, nor a single suggestion of doubt as to the ever present ability, and ever present inclination, of all reputable, honestly managed American life insurance companies to make prompt and full payment of all legitimate claims on their policies.

"It must be conceded that these companies are now managed and conducted by those in whom we can have implicit trust. To recklessly or flippantly impugn the honesty or ability of their present management in wholesale fashion and in a single breath because of past individual shortcomings is a most unjust and unpatriotic thing to do.

"In the recent life insurance investigations, it was neither the principle nor the beneficence of American life insurance which was tried and found wanting; what legitimately fell under condemnation were only a few of the individual managers of the business, together with certain pernicious and unsafe methods and practices in which they had indulged or which they had permitted to attach to the great interests intrusted to their care.

"The mehods and practices in question have, for the most part, been eliminated, along with those responsible for their introduction.

"American life insurance has just been subjected to the most trying tests in its entire history; and as an economic system mathematically sound and of far-reaching beneficence, it stands before the country in a stronger position to-day than ever before.

"Under present conditions life insurance companies of this country are required to report their transactions and financial condition with a wealth of detail never before dreamed of. As a result of this unprecedented publicity of life insurance information, our people carrying or seeking life insurance are now in a position to know vastly more than heretofore about the operations of the companies upon which the future welfare of themselves and their families may largely depend. And I have no hesitation in saying that the 15,000,000 of our fellow-citizens who carry policies with companies of approved standing may now rely, with greater confidence than ever, upon the security of life insurance protection which they maintain—often at great self-denial—against a rainy day or against the want that may threaten the loved ones who survive them."

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Addresses eulogistic of the late United States Senators Stephen R. Mallory and William J. Bryan of Florida were delivered to-day in the House of Representatives, Mr. Dalzell of Pennsylvania presiding by designation of Speaker Cannon.

CAME HERE BY WAGON FROM ALLENTOWN

Mr. Harland Wanted to See the Sights and Brought His Own Supplies.

A TUSSLE WITH THE LAW

He and a Policeman Have an Argument Over the Right of a Wayfarer to Camp Out.

Walter Harland of Allentown, Penn., is spending a few days in this burg. He may stay longer if he likes the lay of the land—also if he sells his bay mare and single buggy.

It was four or five days ago when Walt hitched up Bess to his single, topless buggy down near Allentown, and, saying good-bye to the boiler shops and other show places in Allentown, started for New York City.

He had only a few dollars in his pocket, but he had those things in his buggy which would carry him along the route. There were three half-gallon jars of mother's peace marmalade, a jar of quince preserves, and another of strawberry jam. He had four pounds of country butter, a peck of potatoes, a slab of bacon, coffee and sugar, salt and pepper, and four or five huge loaves of mother's bread.

There was a sack of mixed feed for Bess, and a bucket out of which he could water her at passing brooks. As for himself, he wore all three of his suits of clothes, and in addition carried two big blankets as supplemental protection from chill night airs. Harland, 30 or thereabout, he says, is a blacksmith. He brought a kit of tools with him in the buggy.

What may have been the adventures of Harland along the road from Allentown is not now known, for he is a taciturn young man. At any rate he reached Harlem yesterday at the very popular and proper Sunday hour of 4 A. M. He swung Bess under the Central Railway elevated structure at Park Avenue and 133d Street and prepared for a short rest before penetrating further into the strange country.

He gave Bess a bucket of water, tied a bag of feed over her head, loosened her harness, and then began on a little snack for himself before turning in. He was munching bacon, boiled potatoes, bread and butter, and preserves when Policeman Shevlin of the East 126th Street Station walked up to the side of the buggy and asked Walt what he thought he was doing.

Harland was just about ready to pull the two blankets over him and go to sleep and was in a peevish mood, so he answered Shevlin thus:

"I don't know as thet's any of your business, whoever you be."

He then curled up on the seat for his snooze. Shevlin got up on the buggy seat. He told Mr. Harland that he couldn't camp in the streets of the metropolis, whatever he could do out in the country.

"Huh! think I'm from the country?" asked Harland.

"I do," quoth Shevlin; "just got in."

Well, what with Shevlin trying to enforce the majesty of metropolitan law upon Walt and his desire to sleep in his own way, there came about what must have been a great fight. When it was over Shevlin had whip marks all over his face and Walt had club dents on his head.

With assistance, Shevlin got Walt to the East 126th Street Station, where he was locked up as a disorderly person. Bess and the buggy were put in a stable at 153 East 126th Street.

Mr. Harland was much incensed when he told his story to Magistrate Harris in Harlem Court later in the day. The Magistrate himself thought that if Walt had needed punishment he had already got it, and so he turned him loose.

Mr. Harland went back to the stable, had a good dinner out of his supplies, and then started out to hunt a room. He said that, in spite of the police, he thought, taking one thing with another, that New York City was "a purty good sort of a place to live in—leastways for a while."

He left word at the stable to try to find a purchaser for Bess and the single buggy. He left the stable with his three suits on and two $2 bills stowed in them. He got back to the stable last midnight for a cold snack. He said confidently to one of the stable boys:

"Well, bub, I guess I've seen a little bit of this yer town to-day. She's great."

MANY AUTO SPEEDERS CAUGHT

One, Said to be a Supreme Court Justice, Paid Fine and Hid Identity.

Brooklyn and Queens Borough were the scenes yesterday of many automobile arrests for alleged violation of the speed limit. The police of Pelham Manor, New Rochelle, and several other nearby towns in the Sound country were also active, bagging a dozen automobilists, among them a man said to be a Supreme Court Justice.

An automobilist who went from Ossining to Ardsley said yesterday that the police traps at Newcastle and Ardsley, where the Magistrates hold court under the trees to try offenders, have been done away with. Tarrytown did not have any police on duty to watch automobiles.

In Brooklyn and Queens there were frequent chases after machines by motorcycle police. One automobile, driven by a former jockey, Richard C. Doggett of 567 Ninth Street, Brooklyn, was chased far into Nassau County by Policeman George Sheppard on a motorcycle from Jamaica. Doggett, who was taken back to Jamaica at the end of the chase, said that he did not know that Sheppard was a policeman, as the latter was in plain clothes. He gave $100 bail for his appearance to-day in the Far Rockaway Police Court.

Others arrested in Brooklyn and Queens were John J. Frick, chauffeur for Warren S. Adams of 110 East Thirty-eighth Street; Eugene Denton, a lawyer of New Hyde Park, L. I.; Emil Villard, chauffeur for Charles A. Rushmore of 9 East Thirty-ninth Street; Percy Helman of Cedarhurst, L. I., who was also charged with having a fictitious auto number; Walter B. Norman of 256 Garfield Place, Brooklyn; Edward Lauer of 16 Hill Street, Brooklyn, who led Policeman Grace a merry chase in a sixty horse power runabout; John C. Cords, a hotel keeper of 123 Russell Street, Brooklyn; Frank Schwartz, chauffeur for John Leonard, 38 West Seventy-second Street; Alfred Burns, merchant of 81 East Forty-ninth Street; Vincent Borcelly, chauffeur for H. C. Holter of 710 Fifth Avenue; Louis F. Johnson, chauffeur for John H. Boyle of 204 West 139th Street; Peter M. Coco, a merchant of Meyers Avenue, Winfield, L. I., and Frank Mulchay, chauffeur for R. Cohen of Central Park West and Eighty-eighth Street. All were bailed out.

In New Rochelle the police stretched a rope across Pelham Road. In the resulting trap it was said that a Supreme Court Justice of Manhattan was caught. His identity did not come out, however, as he directed his chauffeur to plead guilty, and the fine of $10 was paid at once.

Those arrested in New Rochelle were Louis J. Engler, of 1,714 Eleventh Avenue; Hobart Trovell, of 309 East Seventy-eighth Street, New York; Joseph I. Carney, of 1,985 Broadway; John Bray, 619 West 143d Street, all of Manhattan; Judge Schlesinger fined all of the prisoners except Engler, who demanded a trial.

In Pelham Manor the police marked off a course near the entrance to the New York Athletic Club's grounds and caught three victims. It was said that five machines a minute passed over this course. In the last week twenty-five automobilists have been arrested at this point. In Rye Chief of Police Elsmere directed his men to stop cars on the roads and warn their drivers not to go faster than the law allows. Forty-five cars were cautioned.

Chief Elsmere believes that better results will be obtained in this way than by resorting to guns and a sudden appearance from a roadside bush.

Magistrate Karbach of Pelham Manor denies the story printed yesterday that he tried a speed law violator in the woods. He says he used his courtroom.

REALTY MAN DIES SUDDENLY.

Martin Diehl Returns Home and Two Hours Later Is Found Dead.

Martin Diehl, 52 years old, a real estate broker of 338 East Thirty-fourth Street, was found dead by his brother Andrew in his room at that number at 10 o'clock last night. He had come home about 8 o'clock, and, according to his brother, complained of feeling ill. He lay down on a couch in his apartments on the second floor. Two hours later he was dead.

The dead man was a bachelor and owned the two five-story tenements at 338 and 340 East Thirty-fourth Street.

SMALL GAIN IN COMMERCE.

The movements of internal commerce in the United States during March showed a slight improvement in some departments according to the figures of the Bureau of Statistics compared with the earlier months of the year, though trade continues to fall off in comparison with the same period in 1907. In live stock movements, however, larger returns are shown than in March, 1907.

Traffic operations of the railways, while considerably below those reported for March of last year, show a slight improvement since the earlier months of the year. Grain, coal, and iron and lumber show a reduction in volume as compared with conditions at this time last year.

Receipts of live stock at seven interior primary markets during March were 3,379,678 head, and while below the January and February totals compared favorably with March receipts in 1907 and 1906, 3,088,978 and 3,286,693 head. Receipts of all classes of live stock for the first three months of the year were 11,590,250 head, compared with 10,265,956 and 10,480,149 head reported for the first three months in 1907 and 1906. Increased receipts for the first quarter of the year are shown principally in the case of hogs while the receipts of cattle and sheep were lighter than during the first quarter in 1907.

Grain receipts during March at 15 primary markets, 65,910,171 bushels, while in excess of the unusually small February receipts, were below the March, 1907, receipts of 72,289,547 bushels, the decrease being due mainly to smaller receipts at Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Milwaukee, and Duluth. With the exception of oats all classes of cereals showed lighter receipts than during March, 1907. Grain receipts at the same markets during the seven months of the crop season beginning Sept. 1, 507,258,846 bushels, were below the corresponding 1907 and 1906 figures of 527,683,041 and 561,863,704 bushels, smaller receipts as compared with 1907 totals appearing under the head of wheat, corn, and rye, while the receipt of oats and barley show slightly larger figures.

Sight receipts of coton for the seven months of the season beginning Sept. 1, 9,928,063 bales, show a decrease of over 17 per cent. compared with the 1907 season receipts, although being about half a million bales in excess of the 1906 figures. American spinners' takings are stated as 2,955,439 bales, or about 30 per cent. of the total sight receipts, while the corresponding percentages for the 1907 and 1906 seasons were 32 per cent. and 37 per cent. respectively. Of the total takings, 54.7 per cent. are credited to Southern mills and only 45.3 per cent. to Northern, including Canadian mills.

Anthracite coal shipments from eastern producing territory for the month totaled 4,766,158 gross tons, being below the totals reported for March of the three preceding years. Shipments for the first quarter of the year, 14,888,253 gross tons, are but slightly below the corresponding 1907 total of 15,049,480 gross tons, though about 7 per cent. below the corresponding 1906 shipments.

Irene Franklin Wins Contest.

The ballot which has been in progress at the Colonial, Alhambra, and Orpheum Theatres, owned by Percy Williams, during the last week to determine who was the most popular vaudeville woman singer in New York City, was decided last night in favor of Irene Franklin, who got 7,414 votes, against Eva Tanguay, who came next with 6,083 votes. Alice Lloyd received 2,948 votes; Veta Victoria, 2,141; Gertrude Hoffman, 1,768, and Marie Dressler, 1,702. Up to Saturday night it looked as if Eva Tankuay would be the winner.

MISS COHAN ELECTED QUEEN OF FRIARS

MISS WEASEL A CANDIDATE

Josephine Cohan was elected Queen of the Friars' Festival at the convention held yesterday afternoon in the Circle Theatre by the unexampled vote of nine and one-eighth ounces. Her nearest competitors, May Vokes and Miss Spotted-Weasel of the Wild West Show had to their credit about five ounces of ballots apiece. As each person who cast a vote was obliged to come upon the stage in view of the entire audience there could be no cheating. Moreover, these most extraordinary ballots—bits of tin cut to resemble pennies—were carefully weighed in the presence of many newspaper men.

It is certain that no political convention was ever more hotly contested, and it is doubly certain that no political gathering ever caused so much innocent merriment. Several times the Sergeant at arms had to throw people into jail for speaking more than the allotted three minutes or persistently rising to points of order and information. This jail, which Tim Cronin, the Chairman, named the Bastille, was the space behind the piano on the right side of the stage.

One offender, a young gentleman from "A Waltz Dream" Company who was always "butting in," on behalf of Mildred Rogers of that organization, his nominee, was arrested no less than three times. In fact, before the end of the meeting, the moment he dared to rise to his feet shouts of "arrest him" would ring through the auditorium, and he would again find himself in duress vile, behind the piano.

This young man from "A Waltz Dream" was such a desperate character that on one occasion he stubbornly refused to be arrested until Maud Lambert, who was the Third Sargeant at arms appointed to assist the male officers of the law, took off her coat, went down into the auditorium, and gently but firmly led him into captivity.

Another person who caused much uproar was one George Beban, actor of alleged French rôles, now with Lew Fields at the Herald Square Theatre. He nominated Louise Dresser of the "Girl Behind the Counter" company, and then, when the Chairman called the different delegations, insisted that all the absent delegations had instructed him to cast their votes for Miss Dresser. This bred contention, for another gentleman insisted that he had authority to cast all the votes of absentees for May Vokes of the "Knight for a Day" company. No committee on credentials could be organized in the hilarious turmoil, and so it was decided that only the actual tin ballots of those present should pass muster.

For a time rivalry ran high between May Vokes's adherents and the supporters of Mabel Hite, now the star playing at the Circle. Miss Hite's spokesman, who also came within an ace of being arrested for his valorous persistency, explained that his candidate was not present, but that a picture of her would be placed on the stage. When the picture appeared it revealed the features of Harry Lauder, and the Hite partisans loudly protested that the Vokes partisans were responsible for the substitution.

Miss Spotted-Weasel, the nominee of the Wild West Indian delegation, which attended in war paint and feathers, was named in the Sioux language by one Sam Lone Bear. A "translator" persisted in declaring that Lone Bear had described her as the only "real American beauty" present. Though the other nominees made only brief speeches before taking their places on the platform, Miss Spotted-Weasel did herself proud by singing one of the Sioux ditties popular among the inhabitants of the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation.

When the time for the voting came all the Indians, many of whom had been observed to laugh in spite of the old belief that no true Indian ever cracks a smile, filed upon the stage and cast their tin votes for Miss Spotted-Weasel with admirable loyalty. In fact, there is no telling but that the squaw would have triumphed had not Miss Dresser, Miss Aurora Platt of "The Merry Widow," and Miss Hite all withdrawn in favor of Josephine Cohan.

The only woman to make a nominating speech was Neva Ayman of the "Nearly a Hero" company, who called the attention of the convention to Ada Lewis. Tim Cronin was a great success as Chairman, as was Maude Wynne in the rôle of Secretary. Mr. Cronin received a round of applause every time he committed an offender to jail and scored a personal hit when, in appointing the "time keepers," he called for two men fortunate enough to have watches in these hard times.

G. A. R. to See Battle of Port Arthur.

Many New York members of the Grand Army of the Republic will witness "The Battle of Port Arthur" at the Hippodrome to-morrow night. Gen. Horace Porter, Gen. Frederick D. Grant and staff, Gen. Borden, late of the Philippines; Gen. C. Anson McCooke, Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, and other distinguished veterans will attend. The Legion of Honor, which includes soldiers wearing the Congressional Medal of Honor, will be present in a body.

Brotherhood Benefit at the Casino.

The Emanu-El Brotherhood, of which Dr. Joseph Silverman is President, held a benefit performance last night at the Casino Theatre. A large audience was present. The theatre was placed at the disposal of the Brotherhood through the courtesy of Lee Shubert, and the vaudeville programme, including numbers by many prominent players now in the city, was provided by Mr. Shubert and Hurtig & Seamon.

Majestic Closed This Week.

"The Flower of the Ranch," which has been playing at the Majestic Theatre, closed on Saturday night. There is no attraction at that theatre this week.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Mme. Fuji-Ko, the Japanese actress, is to give a reading of her translated Japanese drama, "The Vampire Cat of Nabeshima," this evening at the studio of Edmund Russell. Mme. Fuji-Ko will go to England and France soon to fill vaudeville engagements that have been made for her.

Because of the growth of his enterprises Henry B. Harris has found it necessary to enlarge his executive offices in the Hudson Theatre. Plans for five new offices by Charles Burge have been accepted and contracts for the work have been awarded to the Ranald H. MacDonald Construction Company, builders of the Hudson Theatre.

The Shubert press representative announces that by arrangement with Director Hornaday of the Zoological Gardens in Bronx Park an attempt will be made at noon to-day to get a phonographic record of the howling of wolves. The record, so it is said, is to be used in the last act of "The Wolf," the drama by Eugene Walter, now running at the Lyric Theatre.

KREISLER-HOFMANN CONCERT.

Fritz Kreisler, violinist, and Josef Hofmann, pianist, having already given two joint recitals at Carnegie Hall which were aimed, more or less, at the lovers of serious chamber music, gave a third concert of a more popular character with the aid of the Russian Symphony Orchestra, Modest Altschuler, conductor, last evening at the Hippodrome. The huge auditorium was nearly filled, but the audience was quite a different one from the usual concert audience, as may be evidenced by the fact that it was necessary for the orchestra to repeat the latter half of the Overture to "Mignon."

Both artists were in fine form. In fact Mr. Kreisler has not played so well before here this Winter. His reading of the Mendelssohn concerto was a beautiful one. Later he was heard in two short numbers by Hubay and Vieuxtemps, to which he added the extra number which it seems inevitable for him to play at each concert, Dvorak's "Humoresque."

Mr. Hofmann played Rachmaninoff's Prelude in C sharp minor, the Mendelssohn "Spinning Song," taken at a dazzling tempo, and Liszt's Rhapsodie No. 2. He added another Liszt Rhapsodie to satisfy his audience. The evening closed with his performance of Rubinstein's D minor concerto. This pianist has made great strides in his art, and all of his recitals this Winter have afforded much pleasure to the musical public.

GEN. STEPHEN TURR DEAD.

Was Garibaldian Veteran and Confidential Adviser of Kossuth.

BUDAPEST, May 3.—The famous revolutionary General, Stephen Turr, died here Saturday. He was a Garibaldian veteran, and at one time a confidential adviser of Louis Kossuth.

Gen. Stephen Turr was born in Baja, in Hungary, in 1825, and became a Lieutenant in the Austrian Army in 1848. His regiment was stationed in Italy, and his dislike of the House of Hapsburg inspired him with a strong sympathy for the Italian cause.

In the Italian war in 1859 he was appointed a member of Garibaldi's staff with the rank of Colonel, and was always at the General's side during this campaign until he was seriously wounded at Brescia. He again served Garibaldi in his Sicilian expedition in the capacity of aide de camp, and before Palermo was promoted to the rank of General of Division.

The brilliant part he played in the war of liberation was acknowledged by the Government of Victor Emanuel, who promoted him to the rank of General of Division in the army of Italy in 1861, and confided to him the military command of the town and province of Naples.

He married the Princess Adaline Wyse Bonaparte, a cousin of Napoleon III., in 1861. He returned to Hungary after the war of 1866.

He was a member of the City and State Bar Associations, of the Harvard and Republican Clubs, and of the Society of Medical Jurisprudence and the American Geographical Society.

Randall H. Ludlow.

Randall H. Ludlow, son of the late Brigadier General Benjamin C. Ludlow, died in Plainfield yesterday while visiting at the home of a friend. Death was due to acute Bright's disease and congestion of the heart. Mr. Ludlow was 33 years old, and a lawyer with offices at 100 Broadway, Manhattan. He lived at 110 West Eighty-fourth Street. He was at one time a well-known football player in the University of California, and was a member of the Lambs' Club of New York. Mr. Ludlow was single.

ANDREW FREEDMAN'S PICTURES ON VIEW

ALL BY EUROPEAN ARTISTS

Fantin-Latour, Corot, Troyon, Jacques, Henner, Thaulow, Dieterle, Ziem, and Other Canvases Are Shown.

On exhibition in the large gallery of the Lotos Club are thirty-one paintings from the collection of Andrew Freedman. All are by European painters and comprise examples selected with consistent taste and a predilection for quietness of effect. In consequence the room containing them wears a pleasantly harmonious aspect, and the visitor becomes aware by moderate degrees of the special treasures that enlist close attention.

Among these are the two small canvases by Fantin-Latour, the painter of dreams and symbols, of flowers and heroes, whose unremitting study of the old masters in his prolonged student period furnished him with a technique of amazing flexibility and subtlety. No. 13, "The Bathers," shows particularly the rhythm of the painter's composition and his feeling for balance in color and in light and shade. A blonde girl with a bit of white drapery knotted about her waist is in full sunlight, the flesh quivers with life, the noble outline of the figure is as tender as it is classic in its beautiful proportions and sensitive curves; against some green foliage a dark girl is sitting, with a drapery of Titian red. The shadow on her dusky hair and brunette skin is filled with light, the foliage behind her shimmers, the whole picture is seen as if in a mist of radiant atmosphere.

The Barbizon men are represented in the collection chiefly by a large Corot, "Nymphs Bathing," and by two forest pictures by Diaz, both brilliant and characteristic, and one, (No. 14, "In the Forest,") a triumph of the style he acquired after falling under the spell of Rousseau. The architectonic construction of the scene with its avenue of trees, forming an arched roof of branches, its open space of sunny sward in the middle of a bright setting of striking silver birches, or some other white-barked tree, grouped like columns of shining marble about the sunny vista, is worthy of Rousseau's own powerful intelligence.

Troyon also is there, with a canvas entitled "Going to Market," a vivacious composition showing an old woman on the back of a donkey, driving her meek white cow and her flock of sheep along a road which the former at least pursues reluctantly. There is a vigorously barking black dog in the picture, which has much fresh delightful color, and that intimate knowledge of the beasts of the field for which the painter was early famous. Dupre also is there with a small but handsome little canvas, a dark green landscape with a little hut and a sky filled with fleecy clouds.

An excellent Jacques is—it goes almost without saying—a sheep picture in which the characteristic attitudes of the awkwardly picturesque creatures seem to be observed with even more than his usual scrupulous care for character. There are several figures by Henner, whose art since his death awakens fresh interest among critics and collectors; there are three Cazins, the smallest of them having especially the characteristic color note of his wan brown grasses and sad skies. In striking contrast with all the French pictures, although in harmony with their frank attitude toward nature, is a landscape called "The River Farm," by Fritz Thaulow, a glowing example of his sturdy sunlit houses with their vermilion roofs, and his briskly flowing streams. The moving water in this example is rendered with especial care for the weight and texture of the element, and the red reflections are as fine as possible in color.

"Two cattle pieces by Mme. Marie Dieterle have conspicuous merits which are not minimized by the neighborhood of Troyon's more learned drawing. Ziem's pictures of Venice, that of "The Campanile" in particular, are characteristic in the beauty of their aerial perspective. The "Alma Tadema" is a representative study of a handsome English girl holding up a vase of white flowers against a background of architectural ornament.

AUTO ENTHUSIASTS STUDY BRIARCLIFF

SPEED FROM MANY VIEWS

American Manufacturers Declare That the Home Product Had the Better of the Contest.

There are as many ways to figure out the results of the Briarcliff race as there are different makes of cars represented, if one may judge from the many analyses that have appeared since the race. These figures are extremely interesting and tell their own story. The variety of forms they take serve to make them the more interesting. The student of automobiles will find plenty of food for study in them. The many comparisons of characteristics have been pretty thoroughly understood by enthusiasts. The horse power of the contestants, as worked out by the manufacturers' formula, shows the winning Isotta was the highest powered car and the little Maja the lowest powered. The ratings according to the formula were:

Simplex	52.9	Renault	44.1
Thomas	52.9	Bianchi	41.6
Fiat	48.4	A.-K.	40.0
Apperson	48.4	Hol-Tan	36.8
Stearns	46.2	Maja	30.0

Isotta had the largest bore, 5.7087 inches and the shortest stroke, 4.7245 inches. Its normal revolutions were 1,800. The Maja had the smallest bore, 4.3308 inches, the Bianchi the longest stroke, 5.9056 inches. The high speed Isotta motor picked up quickest and could take the curves slower than the other cars, and still lose no time. In wheelbase Apperson, Hol-Tan, and Fiat were the only cars between 100 and 110. The Isotta's were 118 inches, Stearns and Bianchi, 120, the Renaults and Thomas 112, the Loziers and Simplexes 124.

The speed per hour for the 240 miles, including the two cars which finished unofficially, was:

Strang, Isotta	46.15	Sartori, Bianchi	40.40
Cedrino, Fiat	44.44	Seymour, Simplex	*43.37
Lytle, Apperson	42.24

The speed of the fastest laps showed:

Strang, Isotta	47.30	Mulford, Lozier	41.86
Lytle, Apperson	45.54	Michener, Lozier	41.60
Seymour, Simplex	45.50	Bergdoll, Benz	40.45
Leland, Stearns	45.45	Bloch, Renault	39.65
Poole, Isotta	45.65	Roberts, Thomas	39.56
Watson, Simplex	45.00	Hilliard, Hol-Tan	39.56
Parker, Fiat	44.44	Bernin, Renault	38.71
Murphy, Maja	43.91	Robertson, Panhard	37.60
Harding, Isotta	43.50
De Palma, A.-K.	42.85

There are other ways to figure it all out than these. Various makers have been trying them out, and here is the way Sidney Bowman sees it. "The comparisons based on the race should take into account the cars that finished poorly in the race as well as those that finished well. There is as much reason when a double or triple entry was made why the low score should be accounted as the high. On this basis, if every car had finished at the same average speed it maintained on the laps it ran, Apperson would not only have led the single entries, but the others as well. This would have been the average finish times: Appersons 5:39:15, Isotta 5:39:34, Stearns 5:47:09, Lozier 5:11:19, Renault 6:33:23, Fiat 6:36:21, Simplex 6:47:00."

C. F. Wyckoff of Wyckoff, Church & Partridge has still another view. He figures the cars as they would have finished if able to complete the last lap without interference from the crowd on the basis of average speeds. He places the cars thus:

	Elapsed Time. M.	S.		Elapsed Time. M.	S.
Isotta	314	13	Isotta	358	59
Fiat	321	5	Lozier	360	39
Stearns	328	29	Stearns	368	55
Simplex	332	22	Hol-Tan	375	7
Apperson	339	15	Renault	377	36
Stearns	344	3	Benz	386	57
Isotta	345	32	Thomas	391	33
Bianchi	353	45	Renault	409	14

C. A. Singer believes the seven laps of the race show the relative value of the cars better than the eight laps in view of the crowd's interference. He places them as follows:

	M.	S.		M.	S.
Isotta	273	47	Isotta	314	07
Fiat	284	17	Lozier	315	34
Stearns	285	39	Stearns	322	48
Apperson	287	36	Hol-Tan	328	14
Simplex	290	50	Renault	330	22
Stearns	301	03	Benz	338	32
Isotta	302	20	Thomas	342	30
Bianchi	311	46	Renault	358	03

Newark Cycle Track Ready.

The new six-lap board track at Newark will open on Sunday, with a series of bicycle races. The professionals will meet in a half-mile open and a three-mile handicap, while the amateurs will have their innings in a third of a mile novice, one-mile miss and out, and a two-mile handicap. As a special feature a five-mile "helter-skelter" scratch for motorcycles has been added to the card, and as this is the first track in America, banked steeply enough to permit a speed of a mile a minute, it is likely that the record for these vehicles will go by the board. Jimmy Moran and a string of riders, including Logan, MacLean, Butler, Lake, Root, and Wiley, came down from Boston last night.

American Rifle Team for London.

America will be represented probably at the Olympic games in London this Summer by a rifle team. The Executive Committee of the National Rifle Association of America is considering the proposition to send an American team to compete in the international matches which will form part of the programme of the great sporting meet.

In caring for the upper branches of our business we never forget that the growing strength is down below.

We now sell lots of suits for $35, $40 and $45 to men who used to pay twice that.

But the man who has only $18, $20 or $25 to invest in a suit has never been better provided for. We realize that the less a man can afford to spend, the more important it is that he get every penny's worth.

CHICAGO, May 3.—Chicago won both games from St. Louis to-day. Brown pitched his first full game of the season in the opening game, and was invincible until the last two innings, when three singles, a double, and a triple were bunched off him for two runs. Beebe pitched for St. Louis in the second game, and allowed only one scratch hit in seven innings. He passed the first man in the eighth, was hit safely three times, and made a wild pitch that scored three runs and lost his game. Scores:

Timely Hitting Gives Newark an Eighth Inning Victory Over Rochester.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, May 3.—By timely hitting in the eighth inning the Newarks turned an apparent defeat into victory to-day, the Rochesters being their victims. De Vore beat out a bunt and scored the tying run when Drake hit to the scoreboard for three bases. After Engle had been retired at first by Henley, Sharpe laced out a single sending in what proved to be the winning run. The game was one of the hottest contested and most exciting ever seen on the local grounds. With the exception of Engle's wild throw, which was responsible for the Broncos' first run, the tallies were all made on good, timely hitting. The score by innings:

Rochester	1	0	0	0	0	1	1	0	0	3	8	0

Fully 7,000 persons witnessed the game between Jersey City and Montreal at the Cricket Grounds, Hoboken, yesterday. Lafitte, who was in the box for Jersey City, pitched great ball up to the ninth, when he weakened and Montreal pounded him for four hits for a total of 2 runs. This was the only inning in which the visitors scored. The score by innings:

No Betting at Louisville Track.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 3.—The Spring meeting of the new Louisville Jockey Club opens on Tuesday, May 5, with the historic Kentucky Derby as the attraction. There will be a large detail of police on hand to arrest any person who attempts to make a bet on the races, either through auction pools or parimutuel machines, which have been installed for the meeting. This policy of the Mayor was announced to-day. As the race course is outside the city limits, Mayor Grinstead was in doubt as to the power of the police to make arrests, but the City Attorney declared that the police had full constabulary power within the limits of Jefferson County to make arrests.

FIRST REAL BRUSH ON THE SPEEDWAY

EACH HORSE WON ONE HEAT

After the excitements of the annual parade and horse show on the Speedway Saturday afternoon there was very little doing yesterday forenoon on the drive beyond work-outs and occasional brushes between horses the majority of which were not in any way matched for speed.

So far this Spring there has been very little brushing on the drive, and the prospects are that there will be still less between now and the time when the members and their best steppers go to Mineola for the Driving Club's matinées, as the road drivers will soon open their cup matinées on the Speedway, for which the winning candidates and prospective starters are being saved.

One of the early arrivals yesterday was John Ryan, President of the Guttenberg (N. J.) Driving Club, with a pacer named Cuba, which showed a good turn of speed, although it won only one brush from Ed J. La Place's Kate Nelson, 2:10¼. The latter was also beaten by T. G. Hinds's Solstone. A. H. Biggs, driving Crown Prince, 2:17¼, lost a brush to Dr. Semon's Virginia Belle, but won handily the repeat and the rubber.

Joseph F. Gibbons, with his double gaiter Claro, was much in evidence, and won every brush he started in. He beat Peter Simmons three times, twice alone and once in a three-corner event, in which Fannie Q. was the third, and finished second to Claro. Harry L. Toplitz won two good heats, beating in turn Fannie Q. and Norrie, 2:09¼, with Judge Boardman.

The only interesting event of the day was the contest between Ackley C. Schuyler's Mona Wilkes and Walter M. Jermyn's Charley Beldon, 2:08½, in fact, the two heats between these two fast trotters were the only real, old-fashioned fight seen on the drive this Spring. After a few warming-up heats the two came together at a good start and sailed down to the quarter almost neck and neck, but on account of a short break Beldon lost a little ground. He is an easy breaker, and after getting to his gait, gained steadily, and about 100 yards from the finish was again lapped to Mona Wilkes.

Both were going at their best when Beldon went on a break again and lost the heat. In the repeat the pair were close to each other some distance after the start, but Jermyn's trotter again broke, and his opponent turned back for another start. At full speed the two came down to the quarter, with Mona Wilkes slightly in the lead, and although Beldon made a break, yet it was a short one, and he was soon at the wheel of Mona Wilkes. At the three-eighths the Wilkes mare slacked up a little, but, answering the urging of her driver, the two were paired up near the finish, where Charley Beldon made a nice burst of speed and just nosed out the mare. Both owners declined to start again, so the honors were even.

This was the last appearance of Mona Wilkes on the Speedway this year, as she will be shipped to Poughkeepsie on Wednesday to Trainer William Andrews, who will train her for a fast record. Few of the regulars were out yesterday.

Week-End Shoot of Larchmont Y. C. Attracts Good Fields in Each Event.

The week-end shoot of the Larchmont Yacht Club was held at the club traps at Larchmont yesterday under favoring conditions of wind and sunshine, and good scores were rolled up—the five men on the club team averaging actual hits of 84. An exceptional attendance of club members and friends, including many women, witnessed the sport and encouraged the marksmen's efforts. H. T. Shruar won the leg on the Sauer Gun and the Weekly Cup, and A. C. Bostwick the leg on the Hubbard Cup. The partnership event was a tie, and will be shot off on Saturday, when the club members will compete for the championship gold medal and cup and wind up the shooting season with a dinner. FRISBIE DOUBLE WINNER.

The athletes of the Pastime Athletic Club opened the outdoor season of 1908 with a closed set of members' games yesterday afternoon at Pastime Oval, Ninetieth Street and the East River. The competitions were practically the same as those which will be contained in the dual meet between the Pastimes and Mohawks on May 24, and in all the finishes were close and exciting. R. Frisbie proved the dark horse of the meet, and his performances were very good. Frisbie captured the 300-yard run in good shape from the twenty-yard mark, and then won the running broad jump with an actual jump of 19 feet 9 inches. A handicap of twenty inches easily put him in the lead in this event. The summaries:

Seventy-Five-Yard Dash, Novice.—Won by F. E. Betz; A. Brasch, second; C. W. Turbott, third. Time—0:08 4-5.

100-Yard Run, Handicap.—Won by Leroy B. Dorland, (scratch;) R. E. Goggin, (3 feet,) second; H. Kaiser, (15 feet,) third. Time—0:10 4-5.

LORZ WINS LONG RACE.

As a preparation for its big dual meet on May 24 against the Pastimes the Mohawk Athletic Club held a closed set of games yesterday at Macomb's Dam Park.

What was probably the best race of the day came in the 300-yard run, in which the limit handicap was set at fifteen yards. W. Cooke, the club's crack sprinter, figured on scratch. He caught the field after some good sprinting and then came home in the lead in a good manner. Cooke, after being caught in 0:10⅖ for his heat of the century dash, had the misfortune to pull a tendon in the final and was not placed. It was, however, a fast race, being captured by Von Elling, who ran from the eight-yard mark in 0:10 2-5. Summaries:

100-Yard Dash, Handicap.—Won by E. H. Von Elling, (8 yards;) H. Hansen, (2 yards,) second; H. Lott, (9 yards,) third. Time—0:10 2-5.

300-Yard Run, Handicap, (15-Yard Limit.)—Won by W. Cooke, (scratch;) E. H. Von Elling, (7 yards,) second; S. J. Savage, (10 yards,) third. Time—0:33.

1,000-Yard Run, Handicap.—Won by H. Gissing, (40 yards;) O. C. Dalmer, (50 yards,) second; J. F. Reherman, (15 yards,) third. Time—2:20.

Three-Mile Run, Handicap.—Won by Fred Lorz, (100 yards;) P. Meyer, (160 yards,) second; Eugene Smith, (120 yards,) third. Time—16:07.

Putting 12-Pound Shot, Handicap.—Won by R. Roberge, (10 feet,) with 38 feet 4 inches; C. Presley, (8 feet,) with 38 feet, second; J. Zur Nieden, (10 feet,) with 34 feet 10 inches, third.

Running Broad Jump, Handicap.—Won by H. Harris, (3 feet,) with 19 feet 1 inch; H. Reis, (2 feet 6 inches,) with 18 feet 11 inches, second; J. O'Leary, (2 feet,) with 19 feet 3½ inches, third.

DEMAREST IS FAVORITE.

The international amateur 18.2 balkline billiard championship tournament will be resumed to-night at the Liederkranz Club. The games thus far have brought out the best amateur billiard playing ever witnessed in this city. Calvin W. Demarest of the Chicago Athletic Club has shown himself to be in a class above the other entrants. He has an unbeaten record, with the best average and high run. In his three games the National amateur champion has outclassed his opponents and won easily. He has demonstrated his superiority in every department of the game, and unless he should strike an off night he should be returned an easy winner.

Lucien Re Rolle, the French champion, has not developed the strength he was expected to. His defeat by C. F. Conklin of Chicago was unexpected, and his prospects of winning from Demarest are not of the brightest. His run of 103 shows him to be at all times dangerous, and despite the handicap of playing on strange tables, with climatic conditions different to those to which he has been used, he has made a creditable record. He is tied with Conklin for second place. The latter will meet E. W. Gardner, whose cue work has not been of the highest order in the final game, and he should finish second in the tournament. Re Rolle is scheduled to play Champion Demarest to-morrow night, and will find a much harder proposition than he has met so far in the tournament.

J. Ferdinand Poggenburg of the Liederkranz Club and E. W. Gardner of Passaic, N. J., have played fairly consistent billiards, but neither are any match for the three leaders. Under the new conditions of play both men have performed well, and against players of lesser calibre than Demarest, Re Rolle, and Conklin would have appeared to better advantage.

Two more games remain to be played. To-night Conklin will cross cues with Gardner, and in the final match to-morrow night Demarest and Re Rolle will meet.

Jamaica Bay was filled with fishermen yesterday, and in the face of a strong wind and lumpy water a good day's sport was the result. At Canarsie the busiest day of the season was experienced. Fishing boats were in demand and guides were constantly required to point out the favorable points for fishing. Members of the Ekwanok Fishing Club were in evidence at this point, and flounders were caught with much regularity. Capt. Hansen picked up sixteen of good size and President Larkins contributed twelve. At many places in the bay blackfish and porgies were caught, although the former was very wary of the bait. At Goose Creek, one of the most popular points for fishing in the bay, an unusually big delegation of anglers was on hand. "Toppy" Smith, Ed Harkins, and Frank Everson of the Aldine Fishing Club of Harlem were conspicuous for their catches, Smith getting five blackfish, five porgies, and two nice striped bass. Harkins's contribution was six flounders and four porgies, while Everson collected five blackfish, four porgies, and quite a big mess of crabs. The latter are very prevalent now at the creek, good hauls being reported every day. At Hammel's Station, on the flood tide, fishermen found fluke in profusion, and a few sea-bass were landed. At Bergen Point flounders made up the largest part of the catches, but the feature of the day was the performance of Charley Eustis of the Red Rover Fishing Club of South Brooklyn, who caught six striped bass weighing at least two pounds apiece.

During their fishing trip in Gravesend Bay yesterday "Darby" Matheson and Dave Gerkins of Staten Island caught eight codfish, with clams as bait, close to the Ulmer Park Pier, that averaged four pounds in weight.

A number of local fishing enthusiasts went with Capt. Foster on the Angler down off Seabright yesterday. Not satisfied with the deep-water fishing, Foster took his charges away in close to the shore, and good catches were plentiful. Quite an extraordinary thing for this time of the year was the catch of sixteen blackfish, averaging a pound each, by J. Maxwell of New York City. The water was very rough, caused by a hard wind, but many good catches were reported.

ELEVEN COLLEGE CREWS IN REGATTA

OARSMEN ON THE RIVER

Local Rowing Clubs Actively Preparing for Series of Aquatic Events Beginning Memorial Day.

Although there are now eleven distinct college crews entered for the sixth annal regatta of the American Rowing Association at Philadelphia on May 23, a number which breaks all previous collegiate records, the Board of Stewards is making a special effort to increase this by securing the entry of Cornell. The crews of which the Stewards are sure are Harvard, two; Yale, two; University of Pennsylvania, four; Columbia, one; Georgetown, one, and New York University, one.

There is only one drawback to the entry of Cornell. Cornell is promoting a regatta of her own at Ithaca, one of the features of which is to be a dual race between the junior eights of Cornell and Pennsylvania. But the Stewards think that if Pennsylvania can enter a crew in the American Rowing Association regatta and then send an eight to Ithaca a week later Cornell can do likewise. The Philadelphia-Cornell Alumni Club wants the Ithacans to be represented in this regatta, and is aiding the Stewards.

The Stewards have been virtually assured within the last two days that they will receive the entry of the St. John's Military Academy eight of Delafield, Wis., for the interscholastic race. The crew has been training for the event for several weeks, and its formal entry needs only the approval of the school's Directors. With crews already entered from Cascadilla, Georgetown Public School, and McKinley School of Washington, and the Central High and Central Manual of this city, and the St. John's eight, there will be six starters, twice as many as at any previous regatta. The Stewards expect to receive within the coming week the entries of Stone School of Boston and De Witt Clinton of New York. Both of these eights wish to compete, and declare that if the funds can be raised they will be here. With six of the best school eights of the country on the starting line this race will carry with it the American interscholastic championship.

The Stewards have not been able to make out a list of the club entries, because these crews always get a later start than the college men. There is no doubt, however, that New York, Baltimore, Brooklyn, Washington, and Boston will have a good representation. This city, which invariably gives the regatta strong support, will be on hand with a big entry list.

YACHTING NOTES.

Cornelius Vanderbilt's fifty-seven-footer Aurora, which has been fitted out at City Island for the coming season, will be put in commission this week. She will be raced in all of the important events of the New York Yacht Club.

The following yachts have been sold through the agency of Stanley M. Seaman of this city: Eleanor, owned by George F. Sawyer, Jr., Boston, Mass., to Frank Hughes, Passaic, N. J. She is now in Boston, and will be used in Buzzard's Bay, where her new owner has a Summer home. Dione, owned by Tarrant Putnam, New York Yacht Club, to G. H. Gudebrod, Greenport, N. Y. The launch Dorothy, owned by F. Riker, to J. A. Hogg, New York. The cruising launch Lobster B, owned by C. L. Barker, Chicago, Ill., to M. P. Gould, New York. Presto II., owned by J. R. Blake, to A. R. Archer.

The Erie Basin Yacht Club will be formally opened for the season on May 24, and the College Point station will be opened at the same time. The annual regatta will be held on June 28. Several of the club members are preparing to enter the race around Staten Island late in the season. Charles W. Cooper is Commodore of the club.

The conditions for the power boat race to Block Island to be held in connection with the New York Athletic Club's sailing race to the same place on June 20 will be issued this week. Several entries are assured, three or four motor boats having already been entered.

OARSMEN ON THE RIVER.

Notwithstanding the choppy condition of the Harlem River yesterday, there was a good turnout of oarsmen. The clubhouses along the river presented a lively appearance, and many oarsmen were in active preparation for the regatta season, which opens on the Harlem River Decoration Day. That the season will be a lively one was evidenced by interest displayed in the sport and the number of oarsmen in active training. All the local clubs will be represented in the Decoration Day regatta, although several of them will not attempt to put out their eight and four shells until after the middle of June.

The Harlem Rowing Club turned out the biggest representation of the day. With Hoben as stroke, the junior eight rowed several miles in the morning in the shell, and later went out in the octuple sculls boat. The men are rounding to in good form. Two doubles and several singles also left the clubhouse. Capt. Jack Nagle devoted his attention to the De Witt Clinton schoolboy crew, which has been working under his supervision for several weeks. The crew rowed to Morris Heights and return at a good speed.

The Nassau Boat Club will not send out any crews until late in the Summer. Several singles and doubles will be entered in the early regattas, but the eights will not be put on the river until July. Mekerhof will represent the club in singles in the big regattas. He was out twice yesterday. The club colors were worn by several single scullers and two doubles. The Metropolitan Rowing Club made a good showing, and was one of the most active clubs during the day. In addition to the eight-oared shell, three four-oared boats, half a dozen doubles, and several singles were seen on the river.

David Roche, coach, of the Lone Star Boat Club had his intermediate double out twice. He is working hard to get together an intermediate eight, but the crew he had out yesterday was not very promising. It is early in the season, and he expects to make a better showing later on. Among the other clubs represented were: Crescent, one four and a double; Wyanoke, one double; Bohemian, one four and a double; Union, junior eight, junior four, two doubles, and three singles; Atalanta, junior eight and a four; Nonpareil, several fours, doubles, and singles, and Friedship, a four and two singles.

Yale will be represented at the Decoration Day regatta on the Harlem River. The Livingston brothers yesterday notified the Regatta Committee that they would row in the junior double event. They are entered from the Yale Boat Club.

The date for the National Regatta has been officially announced for July 14 and 15. A change to July 7 was requested, but as this was in conflict with the St. Louis regatta the Executive Committee of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen decided to hold the National event one week later.

The annual election of the Middle States Regatta Association will be held at the Harlem Casino May 11. It is expected that nearly all the present officers will be re-elected. Washington and Philadelphia will apply for the association regatta on Labor Day, but the event will probably be awarded to Washington.

Chairman J. J. F. Mulcahy of the Regatta Committee of the Harlem Regatta Association stated yesterday that an important meeting of the committee would be held to-night at the Harlem Casino.

The present month will be an important one for golf competitions abroad. The first notable championship will be that for the women's amateur title of Great Britain at the Royal and Ancient St. Andrew's Club, Scotland, May 18 to 22, and the British Amateur championship will be played from May 25 to 29 at Sandwich.

CAMERONS WIN AT SOCCER.

Weakness when playing in front of their own goal was the chief cause of the defeat of the Clarendons by the Camerons in the final match for the championship of the New York Amateur Association Football League at Van Cortlandt Park before a crowd of several thousand people yesterday afternoon. The Camerons won by 4 goals to 1 after leading in the first half by 3 to 0, thereby vindicating their title to the premiership of the league. The champions, in addition to finishing first in the Saturday series of the league this season, won the cup in the "cup tie" for the third time, but were placed below the Clarendons and Portchester in the Sunday series. The Clarendons were the leaders at the close of the Sunday series, after winning and losing a game with the champions. The line-up:

T. D. Lane	Goal	W. Williams
D. Guthrie	Right back	H. Speller
J. McArthur	Left back	T. Dewar
J. Robertson	Right half	H. Agar
D. Curry	Centre half	H. Davis
J. Ewen	Left half	H. Agar
C. Foster	Outside right	J. Lee
K. Bowerman	Inside right	J. Balding
W. Cameron	Centre forward	I. Agar
W. Hastings	Inside left	T. Millett
G. Goodman	Outside left	A. Rovegno

Referee—Alec Monteith, New York Caledonians. Linesmen—W. H. Stiles, Brooklyn Football Club, and G. M. Ledgard, Boys' Club. Goals—Hastings, 3; Cameron for the Camerons and Davies from a penalty for the Clarendons. Time of halves—Forty-five minutes.

OPEN SEASON IN GOLF.

Championship Holders Have No Clear Title to Honors in Coming Events.

The golf season has opened with surprises, and in view of the sensations furnished last week in the Atlantic City open tournament speculative interest in the success of the big men at the Garden City tournament this week has acquired more than ordinary importance. With the successive defeats at Atlantic City of the National and metropolitan champion, Jerome D. Travers, and two ex-National champions, Walter J. Travis and Findlay S. Douglas, the coming season promises to be a decidedly open one in golf.

For the last two years Jerome Travers has held the local title, and he has announced his determination of defending it this year. Lack of practice may explain to some extent his misfortunes last week, but the fact that he should have been defeated twice in three days, and by golfers who have never ranked among the topnotchers, first by Dr. Neiffer of Philadelphia and then by W. C. Fownes of Pittsburg, father of the young man who triumphed so signally over Travis and Douglas, would indicate that the National champion is badly out of gear somewhere. Travers, however, has done practically no playing since last Fall, and the next two weeks may bring him back to his customary high class form.

The present month will also witness the return to activity in women's golf. Several one-day tournaments will be held for the members of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association which will be in the nature of preparatory work for their annual championship to be held for the four days beginning May 26 on the links of the Essex County Country Club at Orange.

One Point

in favor of the Rambler, and a very strong point at that, is the big amount of automobile value which it offers at a very moderate cost.

leaves nothing to be desired. It embodies the best of modern mechanical features, including offset crank shaft, straight line drive and ball or roller bearings at every frictional point in its entire mechanism.

Its cost is half that of many cars it excels, and its operation and upkeep equally economical.

LOZIER

LEGITIMATELY HIGH-PRICED

No one can afford to purchase a motor car which in one or two years is scheduled to wear out, or is so lacking in up-to-date features, in design or construction as to demand an early exchange for something more desirable. A car of this character is never cheap.

LOZIER MOTOR CARS have anticipated the trend in automobile improvement by several years, and owners of 1905, 1906, and 1907 models still find little reason for exchanging them.

In the important matters of motor design, length of wheel base, diameter of wheels, type of transmission, style of bearings, etc., THE LOZIER MOTOR CAR of even three years ago is still very much up-to-date, and every LOZIER CAR ever built is still doing good, active, satisfactory service.

The purchaser of a 1908 45 H. P. SHAFT-DRIVE LOZIER MOTOR CAR will have no occasion to change his car for five years to come. No other car has so fully anticipated possible improvements—no other car embodies so completely that high-class character of workmanship and material which insures enduring qualities.

In a word THE LOZIER FORTY-FIVE has approximated finality in high-grade motor car design and construction. THINK IT OVER.

Convertibility

While it is not always essential, it is nevertheless desirable that an investment should possess either an active, or, at least, a reasonably broad market. Of course, where a sum of money is invested with the object of securing the largest amount of income compatible with safety of principal, it is frequently deemed advisable to sacrifice some degree of marketability for the sake of greater revenue.

However, it is our belief, based upon many years' experience, that at least a part of a given sum of money should be restricted to the purchase of securities that can be readily sold in the event of a future contingency making it necessary to quickly convert the investment into cash.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION — THE MARKETS OF EUROPE.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

Stock Market Movement—Trade and the Railroads.

Up to the opening of last week the slow but steady rise of securities on the Stock Exchange had reflected gradual improvement in sentiment throughout the country, particularly in the financial community itself. The belief was that trade contraction had sounded the lowest depths and must undergo betterment, however gradual that might be. The deluge of subscriptions to the Pennsylvania bond offering was the first tangible development fortifying such hopes. Naturally enough, announcement that the issue had been oversubscribed at least twenty-five times, five times by investors wanting from one to fifteen bonds, brought cheer to the speculative trader, who had been stoutly backing up his confidence in the future, and within a few short days added several points to the previous forward movement of stocks. Last week, in spite of increasing irregularity in the market as a whole, sensational gains were made by a limited number of stocks, comprising the most conspicuous shares listed on the Exchange. This time, however, the impetus came not from unmistakable evidence of further improvement in the business world, or from an influx of investment funds, but from technical market conditions created by the failure of two important Stock Exchange houses. One of these houses, it is true, closed its doors on Friday of the preceding week, but the conditions created by this event carried over in their influence into last week. The failures were what is known in Wall Street as "bear failures," which means, simply, that the resources of the concerns had been committed to a speculative campaign for the fall in stocks on the eve of a prolonged and substantial advance. Only estimates are possible in such a case, but there seems to be unanimity in the calculation that the two houses to go under were short of more than 100,000 shares of stock. When they closed their doors their fellow-members on the Stock Exchange who had dealt with them were forced to buy for their account, before witnesses, in order to prove the transactions, the great number of shares in question, and this could have but one effect upon prices. There were two other ways, moreover, in which these failures influenced higher quotations. They broke the courage of many other Stock Exchange houses and individual speculators holding bearish positions on the market and led to buying from such sources, while other firms which had loaned stocks to the houses that failed, suffering losses as a result, at once refused to make further loans and forced much buying. All this, explaining as it does much of the week's further rise in prices, shows also the artificiality of the movement, and makes clear the reasons for the irregularity. After a period of troubles such as the business and financial worlds have just passed through, and facing uncertainties as they still do, the most convincing movement possible for stock markets is one feeling its way cautiously toward higher levels.

From the quarterly earnings statement of the United States Steel Corporation, the monthly reports of the more important of the country's railroads, and dividend action by at least one of these roads, it was possible to obtain last week a fairly faithful picture of prevailing trade conditions. The Steel report contained three main points of interest. Its net earnings for the quarter, $18,229,000, were only half those of the December quarter, and less than half those of the March quarter a year ago, but the monthly earnings underwent steady improvement, rising from $5,034,000 in December last to $7,466,000 during March. Some of this improvement, it is understood, was lost during the month of April, which, however, is always a dull one with the steel concerns. On the financial side again, the company, after the payment of the usual dividend on the common stock, reported a surplus of only $7,685 for the quarter, and thus was able to set aside nothing for additional construction, &c., where it had been able to set aside nearly $6,500,000 at the end of the December quarter and still report a surplus of $3,359,000. This inability to make further deductions for additional construction and improvements is not a vital matter, however, for the reason that the corporation, since its organization in 1901, has deducted from its earnings for such purposes over $150,000,000. The tonnage on the company's books was the smallest at the close of any quarter since Sept. 30, 1904, unfilled orders amounting to 3,765,000 tons, as against 4,624,000 tons on Dec. 30 last. These unfilled orders are practically one-third of the corporation's capacity. This is dull business beyond question, and it remains to be seen whether it can be bettered without price concessions to the consumer. Such concessions have already been made in the raw material. Turning to the railroad statements submitted for the month of March, the most important are those of the Pennsylvania, with its decrease of $2,169,000 in gross and $544,000 in net; Union Pacific, $854,000 gross and $205,000 net; Southern Pacific, $808,000 gross and an increase of $125,000 in net, and the Southern Railway, $692,000 loss in gross and a gain of $265,000 in net. These last two statements are particularly interesting as examples of the great and successful efforts which railroad executives are making to control expenses. It is obvious from the results obtained by these railroads, which are representative, that from this time on any further traffic losses will not cut so deeply into the net revenues as they had up to the month of March. In other words, railroad managements have the situation well in hand, and the only danger now is, as one of the reports shows only too plainly, that they will go too far the other way, and, in the Wall Street phrase, "skin" the roads. Covering all the railroads, the Car Efficiency Bureau of the American Railway Association reported an unexpected increase in the number of idle cars between April 1 and 15, this amounting to over 68,000 and bringing the total of unemployed equipment at that time up to the record figure of 375,000 cars. The Pennsylvania Railroad Directors met on Friday, and, with this general situation in mind, as well as conditions on their own lines, reduced the dividend from a 7 per cent. to a 6 per cent. basis. Far from being the cause for uneasiness, this step is actually reassuring. It is conservatism at a time when conservatism is most needed. As the foremost railroad in the country, and one which has just disposed of a bond issue with almost unprecedented success, it sets an example which other roads need not hesitate to follow. Such measures are truly the forerunners of a return to prosperous conditions.

On Tuesday Secretary Cortelyou notified National banks having United States deposits of the recall of $45,000,000, $20,000,000 to be paid in on or before May 9, and the balance on or before May 23. The banks of this city were informed that $30,000,000 of the entire amount must be paid in by them, and inasmuch as at the time of the call they held only some $43,000,000 of United States deposits in all, this leaves them with a comparatively small amount. Everything points, however, to the quick return of these withdrawals to banking channels. In the month of April the Government paid out $16,000,000 more than it took in, and thus far in the fiscal year it has paid out $51,000,000 above receipts. It held a surplus of $55,000,000 at this time a year ago. An additional $2,500,000 gold was taken for Paris after the announcement of the Treasury's policy, but the subtraction should, nevertheless, have a deterrent influence upon the export movement, particularly so in connection with the exports already made and the credits established through the sale abroad of Pennsylvania bonds. Foreign exchange rates reflected something of this in their weakness toward the close of the week.

BOSTON COPPER GOSSIP.

Increased Output Reported at Many Points—Development Notes.

BOSTON, May 3.—Reports from Lake Superior say that the first shaft to be sunk on the Seneca property was begun this week.

Whatever the Kearsarge lode has of copper in the Ojibway territory will soon be disclosed, as a crosscut has been started from shaft No. 2 at a depth of 350 feet.

An essay better than 10 per cent. is the report concerning the ore in the shaft of North Butte Extension at 550 feet. The stringer is two feet wide.

Butte and London Development Company has found a complete shutdown necessary; the treasury is empty, and the shaft is not deep enough to reach commercial ore.

Nevada Consolidated reports that the first body of ore which is being shoveled out averages 3½ per cent. copper, which is much better than was expected.

The mill of Utah Copper is now handling 5,000 tons daily, which is three-quarters capacity. During March the company produced 3,500,000 pounds of copper at a cost slightly below 9 cents.

Much significance continues to attach to the strike of low-grade copper sulphides on the 1,100-foot level of Globe Consolidated, the end of which has not yet been reached.

The Butte Camp produced about 25,000,000 pounds during April against 18,127,000 in March.

First Half of April Showed Increase of 68,000 Cars.

Between April 1 and April 15, last week's report of the American Railway Association Committee on Car Efficiency showed the number of idle cars in the United States and Canada increased no less than 68,000, the largest increase in any fortnight since that ended Jan. 8 last. This further increase in idle cars much more than offset the improvement which has appeared in several previous bi-monthly reports of the committee, and brought the total of idle cars up to 375,770, compared with the previous maximum of 342,828 on Feb. 5.

	Surplus.	Shortage.	Net Sur.
April 1, 1908	306,507	528	305,979
March 4, 1908	314,992	1,619	313,273
Feb. 19, 1908	322,513	1,249	321,264
Feb. 5, 1908	343,928	1,100	342,828
Jan. 22, 1908	342,580	738	341,842
Jan. 8, 1908	341,763	653	341,110
Dec. 24, 1907	209,310	724	208,586
Dec. 11, 1907	119,339	4,520	114,819
Nov. 27, 1907	40,348	17,964	22,384
Nov. 13, 1907	12,201	57,003	*44,802
Oct. 30, 1907	3,946	90,757	*86,811

It must be recalled in connection with the sudden increase in the number of idle cars during the first two weeks of April that on April 1 many of the coal mines in the bituminous field shut down owing to the failure of the miners and their employers to agree on a wage scale. Since the middle of April there have been a number of resumptions of mining, and presumably the influence of this particular factor will be less marked in the next fortnightly report than it was in the one made public last week.

The effect of the suspension of operation in many of the bituminous coal mines upon the April 15 figures is clearly brought out by the following table giving the changes in the number of idle cars in each class of equipment since the middle of March:

	Box.	Flat	Coal.	Total.
March 18	102,976	24,971	118,955	296,035

It will be noted that of the total increase of 68,000 cars no less than 40,000 are accounted for by the additions to the idle coal equipment.

DULL MARKET IN BERLIN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 3.—A sharp reaction from the preceding period of extreme buoyancy was the feature of last week's stock market. It was due mainly to realizations incidental to the monthly settlement and to depression caused by the unfavorable condition of the Imperial Government loans. The Secretary of the Treasury's admission to the Reichstag that the Government would have to borrow $250,000,000 in the next five years spread consternation throughout the financial circles of Germany.

The investing public, however, showed considerable interest in industrials, which lent firmness to the rest of the list. Bank shares benefited on the report that the Government does not intend to divide the German banks into separate loan and deposit institutions.

The American market was conspicuously firm, thanks principally to the successful Pennsylvania bond issues and the probability that the Rothschilds will participate in financing the Union Pacific. Operators, however, are still skeptical about the New York situation, being inclined to regard the week's upward movement as a mere attack on New York bears.

Irons and steels were weak in consequence of discouraging official reports from both the German and the American steel trusts.

STAGNATION IN PARIS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 3.—The history of the Paris Bourse does not record a week of greater dullness than that which ended Saturday.

Many industrial issues reached new low levels last week, with many offers and few buyers. A goodly number of first-class issues are now at lower prices than those recorded when last year's crisis was at its height.

QUIET WEEK IN LONDON.

Excepting Americans Stocks Were Dull and Inclined to Weakness.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 3.—Excepting the American market, which was active and on balance very strong, the Stock Exchange last week was idle and inclined to weakness.

This stagnant condition was due to several causes, among them trepidation as to what the Government will propose as to old age pensions when the budget is presented next Thursday; anxiety as to the outcome of the dispute between the shipbuilders and employes in the north, and the growing competition of new issues.

In my dispatch last Sunday I referred to the feeling that the Pennsylvania bond issue here would be speedily followed by similar issues in this market by other American railways in need of capital. At that time the probability of a Union Pacific issue here of $50,000,000 in the near future, under the same direction as that which had charge of the Pennsylvania issue, was being generally discussed in the City. It is now believed in well-informed quarters that, while the Union Pacific issue may be expected soon, the greater portion of subsequent issues will be placed in New York, where ample money, it is believed, will be forthcoming.

The Statist remarks it is not unlikely that the money raised here for the Pennsylvania Railroad will be left in Europe by the American bankers, who will be able to provide for the railroad's needs out of their cash balances at home.

THE GOLD MOVEMENT.

Shipment of $4,000,000 Last Week Brought Total Up to $13,000,000.

Five additional gold engagements were announced last week amounting to $4,000,000. This brought up to $13,000,000 the total exports on this movement, which began with the shipment of $1,000,000 on April 16. All this gold has gone to Paris. No gold was taken last Friday for Saturday's steamers, the exchange rate having declined to 4.8685 on a freer supply of bills not unconnected, it was believed, with the placing abroad of half of the Pennsylvania's $40,000,000 bond issue. This operation naturally served to check the outflow of gold, though whether the influence of this and other similar operations will be sufficient to prevent any further loss of gold was regarded in banking circles as an open question.

GOLD EXPORTS.

April 28—
Heidelbach, Ickelheimer & Co.	1,000,000
Goldman, Sachs & Co.	500,000
April 30—
National City Bank	1,000,000
Lazard Freres	1,000,000
National Bank of Commerce	500,000
Total	$13,000,000

The movement so far at least has been a very leisurely one, amouting as it does to only $13,000,000 in the nineteen days since the first shipment was made.

PENNSYLVANIA'S NEW RAIL.

Revised Specifications Adopted After Investigation by Experts.

The Pennsylvania Railroad through an expert committee appointed for the purpose has prepared, after long study of the matter, new specifications for the manufacture of steel rails to be used on the Pennsylvania lines, including those west of Pittsburg as well as the eastern lines. The most noteworthy feature of the specifications, perhaps, from the layman's point of view, is the simplicity of such parts of the specifications as refer to the method of manufacture.

So much was heard last year of the need of increasing the discard from the bloom from which the rail is made in order to do away with ingredients which impair the quality of the metal that the public doubtless expected the Pennsylvania would include in its requirements elaborate rules regarding the amount of the discard. As a matter of fact, however, there are no such rules in the road's specifications. This feature of the manufacture of rails is covered by the simple requirement that the discard shall be sufficient to insure sound rails. It matters not to the public or to the railroad if the discard amount to 1 per cent. or to 50 per cent., provided the rail is sound. This in effect is the position taken by the Pennsylvania Railroad, and while it lays down requirements regarding the constituents of the metal to be used in the manufacture of rails for its use its requirements are neither as numerous nor as elaborate as might be expected. The one point insisted on, however, is that the rails shall be sound, and to assure itself that the manufacturer has taken all the steps necessary to produce an absolutely sound rail the Pennsylvania Railroad has established in connection with the adoption of its new rail specifications a series of severe tests designed to make impossible, humanly speaking, the acceptance of an unsound rail.

RAILROADS NEED REST

In an address before the St. Louis Traffice Club on Wednesday of last week, B. F. Yoakum, Chairman of the Rock Island-Frisco system, declared that what the country needed at the moment was a period of complete rest from legislation and radical talk. He supported his contention by a number of arguments, two of particular interest being the following:

"The Hepburn act is not burdensome; the requirement for uniform accounting by the railroads is in the right direction, and the policy of publicity through reports to the Inter-State Commerce Commission has been prompt, comprehensive, and productive of good results. All this has been accomplished in a comparatively short time. The country should now rest from further regulative or restrictive laws until the railroads can adjust themselves to a compliance with those which have been enacted. What the people and the railroads now need is a definite and fixed governmental policy that can be relied upon, which will facilitate the procurement of money by the railroads with which they may reinstate their improvement works as well as finish the new lines under construction, which have been temporarily abandoned.

"At this time above all others we must look for a successor to President Roosevelt who shall be a big, broad-gauge man. The commercial, industrial, agricultural, and laboring interests through their representative organizations should dictate, in a broad, comprehensive manner, the business planks of the platforms of both parties, fairly protecting both the public and the railroads. These interests should ask the prospective candidates to indorse or reject the planks so framed in order that the country will know how they stand.

"I can see already many substantial evidences that the feeling of the public is changing toward the railroads, as it becomes better informed of their true conditions."

PITTSBURG VIEW OF STEEL OUTLOOK

SPLIT ON PRICE POLICY

Need of Unloading Iron Surplus on Foreign Market Said to be Urged by Corey.

PITTSBURG, May 3.—President W. E. Corey and Chairman E. H. Gary of the United States Steel Corporation hold different views on the pig iron situation, it is reported here. Corey evidently favors a cut in Southern pig iron prices in order to pave the way for dumping the big surplus on the foreign markets. With pig iron on the basis of $10, Birmingham, for No. 2 foundry, it is regarded as certain that the furnaces could easily compete with all other makers for the European trade, which, it is estimated, amounts to over 250,000 tons. The contention of President Corey, it is said, is for the elimination of the big stocks in the furnace yards at a fairly profitable price that would not interfere with the home markets. It is known that Chairman Gary is a strong advocate for the maintenance of present prices, and holds the view that lower prices will not result in bringing out more business. The fact that the meeting of pig iron producers, called for April 30, has been postponed until May 7, and that President Corey suddenly decided to take a trip to Europe, sailing on April 29, has caused considerable comment. One report is that Chairman Gary planned the trip to get the President out of the way, and another that Mr. Corey has gone over to size up the pig iron situation in Europe.

The report last week that foundry pig iron prices in the South had been cut caused considerable stir in the market and seriously affected prices at Northern furnaces. While the report was quickly denied, so far as the chief producing interest was concerned, the fact that a cut had been contemplated did considerable damage. Southern makers, who had been quoting on a basis of $12, Birmingham, for No. 2 foundry, found it impossible to get this price, and No. 2 was sold as low as $11.75, and one sale was recorded at 25 cents less. Late in the week a report was circulated that 10,000 tons for future delivery had been sold at $10.25, Birmingham. This report, however, lacked confirmation.

Despite the fact that iron prices have declined, producers do not look on the present situation as discouraging, and are predicting higher prices upon the opening of the second half. Low prices are only quoted on iron for early delivery. The most startling decline noted during the week was the fall in bessemer prices. One concern quoted $16, Valley Furnaces, on a fairly good tonnage, but did not get the order. It is presumed that the iron was sold below that rate. With bessemer pig iron at $16, billet makers find difficulty in selling billets at $28 a ton, Pittsburg, even though the freight by a recent order is divided between the producer and the consumer. Independent makers are reported to be offering cut prices on both bessemer and open hearth billets, but no business is going, and it cannot be said that the regular rate is being shaded. It is recognized that $8 for conversion is a good price, and with bessemer pig iron at $16.90, Pittsburg, it is argued that bessemer billets should not be more than $25, Pittsburg. Sheet and tin plate bars continue to be quoted at $29.50, Pittsburg, but the producer pays the freight to points in surrounding districts.

Some demand for basic iron has developed, and while prices have gone down as is shown by a sale early last week, later there was a stiffening, and according to late reports $15.50, Valley Furnaces, is regarded as the minimum for the present at least. The sale referred to was for 500 tons at $15.10, Valley Furnaces. It was bought by the American Steel Foundries for the Alliance Works. Gray Forge is not in demand, and the nominal quotation is $14 at furance, a drop of 50 cents a ton since the last quotation.

In finished lines the demand does not show much improvement, but there is being booked the usual tonnage in small orders, and the aggregate is considered large for a dull period. The capacity of the mills in this district that were operated last week shows a slight increase. The Homestead works of the Carnegie Steel Company are operating more fully than a week ago, and the Duquesne plant is running satisfactorily. The three mills at the Edgar Thomson rail plant are in operation, but are not running to capacity at present. Specifications on old contracts are coming in, and new orders are expected soon when the railroads begin placing their orders for this year's requirements.

One of the events of this week will be the opening of the thirty-third annual convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers at Youngstown, Ohio. The convention is expected to be one of the most important ever held, as it is evident from the recent action of the Western Bar Iron Association and the Republic Iron and Steel Company in dissolving the continuous agreement that those organizations do not intend to deal with the association on future wage settlements. It is also intimated that the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, the only subsidiary of the Steel Corporation that recognizes union labor, also will break away from the Amalgamated Association.

LONG ISLAND POTATO TRUST.

More than 50 per cent. of the Long Island potato growers met at Riverhead, L. I., on Saturday and adopted a constitution and by-laws for the new Potato Trust which is to attempt to control the output of Long Island potatoes for the coming season.

Henry R. Talmage of Baiting Hollow who started the movement was elected Temporary President, Charles Osborne of Easthampton, Temporary Vice President, and John T. Downs of Riverhead, Temporary Secretary and Treasurer.

It has been arranged to have a Potato Exchange running in full blast in time to market the potato crop when it is ready. The growers in the Trust will sell their product only through the Exchange or one of its shipping stations.

Railroad Systems of the United States

We have just issued the second booklet of the series which we are issuing, showing the progress and development of the important railroad systems of the United States.

Booklet No. 1 fully describes the "Reading System" and No. 2 The "Union Pacific & Southern Pacific System." Both booklets include Maps of the Railroads and a comparison of earnings for the past 10 years.

Copies of either or both booklets will be sent to any address upon request.

(The next of this series will be the "Pennsylvania System.")

It means that the book or the bond has received the best efforts of a printing house which for over a century has made all things else subservient to the quality of its product. It is a guarantee that text, designs and presswork have undergone bank note scrutiny.

CENSURES METHODS OF COTTON EXCHANGE

NOT AGAINST FUTURES

But Suggests That Prices Should Be Revised Once a Month Instead of Every Six Months.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—After an investigation of the speculative methods of the Cotton Exchanges, begun more than a year ago by the Department of Commerce and Labor as the result of loud complaints from the Cotton Growers' Association and the Representatives in Congress of the cotton-growing States, Commissioner of Corporations Herbert Knox Smith has issued a report roundly condemning the method of fixing cotton prices on the New York Exchange.

The present New York system of "fixed differences" in the respective grades of cotton as related to the price of "middling," the standard grade on which trading is based, he calls "uneconomic, in defiance of natural law, and unfair." Like all other attempts to defy natural law, he says, it "results in such complex and devious effects that the benefit of its transactions accrues only to a skilled few."

The Commissioner withholds condemnation of speculation in cotton "futures," as a principle, and in this disagrees with the critics of the Cotton Exchanges whose complaints brought about the investigation, but the report made public to-day does not carry the investigation to a conclusion. The findings of the department are in line with the action brought against the New York Cotton Exchange a year ago by Theodore H. Price on an allegation that the methods in use of determining differences in price between various grades of cotton in connection with "future" contracts were unfair.

The New York Method.

In New York the premium paid or the discount allowed, according as the cotton tendered on contracts is above or below "middling," is fixed by a committee twice a year. In New Orleans, which is the other great Cotton Exchange centre of the country, the price difference is fixed daily, following the actual fluctuations in price of the various grades in daily commercial transactions. Of the New Orleans system the report speaks in qualified praise. After explaining the New Orleans system and its practical workings the report says:

"The foregoing does not mean that the New Orleans 'commercial difference' system in its actual working has been at all times free from criticism. Disturbances of the parity have also occurred there, but have been by no means as great or as long continued as in New York. The trouble is not in the New Orleans system itself, but in occasional careless or improper application of it—an erroneous quotation of actual prices. There is, however, need of more care in the conduct of the system."

Commenting on the cotton market here, the report says:

"The New York market must, of course, if it is to exist at all, carry some reserve of actual cotton as a protection against sales of contracts. Otherwise the market might easily be 'cornered' because of its distance from the cotton belt. Years ago New York was a broad spot cotton market, where large quantities of the various grades were received and resold to spinners. In recent years, however, the great bulk of cotton consumed by spinners has been shipped directly to them from the cotton belt, instead of being sent first to merchants in New York. Whereas in the early seventies the spot business at New York amounted to roughly 500,000 bales yearly, or, say, 15 per cent. of the crop, in recent years it has rarely amounted to 200,000 bales, or to 2 per cent of an average crop.

Revision Committee Censured.

The report's criticism of the work of the New York Cotton Exchange's "Revision Committee" falls just short of accusing its members of intentional abuse of trust.

It is a common occurrence for its members to be short of the market, but "this fact in itself," the report says, "is no proof of dishonesty."

The bureau's investigators were at work in New York during the slump in cotton contracts last year, which was the result, according to the critics of the New York Cotton Exchange, of the unjust relation of prices of the low grade cottons to the standard grade made by the session of the revision committee at its November meeting in 1906. In fixing prices at that time, says the report, "circumstances point clearly to the fact that certain members of the committee were influenced by considerations of personal profit." The report says:

"It is proven beyond question that the committee had the power to fix improper differences; that some members of the committee had very strong personal motives for establishing such improper differences; and, further, that the result of their action did enable them to reap large profits just as certainly as though they had deliberately intended to establish false differences for that specific purpose. While, therefore, it cannot be asserted absolutely that the action of any members of the committee was taken with such deliberate intent, the evidence at least condemns beyond question a system which makes such abuse possible, and, indeed, extremely probable."

In conclusion, the report says:

"It is clearly incumbent upon the New York Cotton Exchange to readopt the commercial-difference principle, at least in its broad outlines. Whether the commercial-difference system in its entirety, as employed in New Orleans, should be adopted by the New York Cotton Exchange, or whether some modification of that system should be permitted, is, however, an open question. A rigid application of the commercial-difference system would demand that contract differences be changed whenever a change occurred in commercial differences, and, moreover, that they be based upon spot quotations in the delivery market itself.

"Owing to the narrowness of the New York spot market, it is impracticable thus to use the New York quotations as a basis for establishing contract differences; consequently, New York must base its revisions in the main on the differences prevailing in leading Southern markets. Again, the distance of New York from the cotton belt and the fact that the New York market is primarily a surplus-grade market where cotton is ordinarily held for some time, are factors which properly may be taken into account in considering modifications of the commercial-difference system.

"Two questions, therefore, arise: First, as to the frequency with which revisions shall be made, and, second, as to the basis for determining what the actual commercial differences really are.

"With respect to the frequency of revisions, it is significant that most of those who oppose the present New York system nevertheless assert that differences should not be subject to constant revision, but should be changed only at stated periods.

"A considerable portion of the members of the New York Cotton Exchange appear to favor a system providing for not more than three, or possibly four, revisions each year. An attempt was made in the latter part of 1907 to amend the by-laws of the New York Cotton Exchange so that one additional revision should be held in December, making three in all for the year. This proposed amendment was lost on a tie vote. It is unnecessary to discuss suggestions of this sort, since it is clear that within a period of a few months it is possible—and, indeed, extremely probable—that disparities will occur between differences thus fixed and the commercial differences.

Suggests Monthly Revision.

"A more practicable suggestion is that the Revision Committee shall be required to act monthly. In support of this proposition, it is urged that ordinarily changes in commercial differences within a period of thirty days are unimportant, and that for so short a period changes can be foreseen with reasonable certainty.

"While recognizing the fundamental propriety of settling contract deliveries on the basis of strictly current commercial differences, the bureau is disposed to the view that a system of revisions at least as frequent as once a month, all things considered, might prove as nearly satisfactory and equitable in the case of the New York market as any system that could be adopted.

"It is true that during the period from 1888 to 1897, when revision meetings were held monthly during the active part of the crop season, the system did not give entire satisfaction. It is probable, however, that, in view of the recent agitation against the action of revision committees, a return to monthly revisions would be followed by more faithful work on the part of such committees than was secured during the earlier period. In the event of a return to monthly revisions, however, these revisions should be held throughout the crop year, and not merely during the active season, since previous experience has shown that it is in the Summer months that disparities between the contract differences in New York and the commercial differences in Southern markets have often been most pronounced.

"With respect to the second question, i. e., the method of determining commercial differences, it is probable that an average of the official quotations of several representative southern markets would give reasonable satisfaction, particularly if allowances were made for the relative importance of these markets, and, more especially, for discrepancies in local standards of classification. The suggestion has been made that the New York Cotton Exchange employ its own agents and station them in the South for the express purpose of reporting quotations in those markets, these experts to be furnished with exact duplicates of the standard types of the New York Cotton Exchange, so that the prices which they reported would always be on the New York basis of classification.

Work for Experts.

"The differences reported by such experts could then be averaged, with some allowances for the relative importance of markets, by the New York Revision Committee. Such a system of determining differences seems altogether desirable. If, however, for any reason it is impracticable, a properly adjusted average of the official quotations for representative markets would probably answer the purpose."

In summing up the findings of the investigation the report takes account of the argument that a return to the old system of commercial differences in the prices of grades with daily or monthly revision would ruin the New York Exchange because of the impossibility of maintaining here a sufficient stock of cotton as a reserve against contracts. This argument, it says, is not supported by the experience of the Exchange eleven years ago, before the present system was adopted.

"Moreover," says the report, "the effect of a difference system upon the business of the New York market alone is not a proper basis for framing the rules of an exchange. The first consideration is that these rules shall be equitable and commercial. If the New York Cotton Exchange cannot exist under such rules, then it has no right to exist at all."

COAL ROADS AWAIT TEST OF NEW LAW

The commodity clause of the Hepburn Rate bill went into effect last Friday, May 1. Since that day all the railroads in the country which transport commodities in which they have any proprietary interest have been carrying these commodities in defiance of law, and with nothing protecting them from the enormous penalties provided for in the act save the agreement existing between the railroads and Attorney General Bonaparte that he will confine his action under this clause to test suits until the question of the validity of the clause has been passed upon by the Supreme Court.

> From and after May 1, 1908, it shall be unlawful for any railroad company to transport from any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia to any other State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, or to any foreign country, any article or commodity other than timber and the manufactured products thereof manufactured, mined, or produced by it or under its authority or which it may own in whole or in part or in which it may have any interest, direct or indirect, except such articles or commodities as may be necessary and intended for its use in the conduct of its business as a common carrier.

This clause was included in the Hepburn rate law during the last days of the debate on that measure in June, 1906. The law went into effect on June 29, 1906, but it was provided by its terms that the railroads should have until May 1, 1908, to dispossess themselves of their interest in commercial undertaking the products of which they handled as common carriers.

The roads most vitally interested in this clause of the law are the anthracite coal roads which have tens upon tens of millions invested in coal lands and in coal handling plants, but the effect of the commodity clause by no means stops with these roads. Nearly every important system in the country controls by whole or part ownership industrial undertakings of some kind, part at least of whose product is sold to the public. By the terms of the law these roads are all barred from continuing to own an interest in such undertakings, barring only lumber. The Pennsylvania Railroad is part owner of the Pennsylvania and of the Cambria Steel Companies. It would be barred were the commidity clause inforced from transporting the output of these plants or, rather, so much of their output as was intended for the use of others than the Pennsylvania Railroad itself.

Inasmuch as the Hepburn law fixes a fine of $5,000 as the penalty of the infringement of its provisions and inasmuch as each car load is regarded as constituting a shipment it is clear that the penalties to which the railroads render themselves liable in operating in defiance of the law are enormous, in fact ruinous. The penalties accruing against the anthracite coal roads are estimated to amount to an average of not less than $16,000,000 a day. So great was the risk of breaking the law merely in the belief that it was unconstitutional that the coal roads several months ago undertook to reach an agreement with the Attorney General regarding the bringing of test suits to determine the validity of the law and looking to the practical suspension of the penalties for the infringement of this clause of the law during the trial of these test suits.

Such an agreement was reached, and in keeping with its terms it is expected that the Attorney General will very shortly, within a few days in fact, if the understanding had in railroad circles is correct, bring suit against one [illegible] all of the coal roads. These test suits, however, will be the only ones which the Attorney General will bring under this clause until the Supreme Court has passed on its constitutionality.

The attorneys for the railroads are confident that their contention that the law is unconstitutional will be upheld. They are prepared to facilitate the suits as much as lies in their power, and to offer no obstacle to a decision of the cases on their merit.

Some weeks after the understanding regarding these suits had been had between the Attorney General and the attorneys for the coal roads a bill was introduced by Senator Elkins providing for the formal postponement of the penalties fixed in the Hepburn law for infringement of the commodity clause of that act. It was not acted upon at the time, however, and only last Friday, after this clause of the law had gone into effect, was it called up for further consideration. The position of the railroads in reference to this bill is that they are satisfied with the understanding had with the Attorney General and that at most the Elkins bill puts in the shape of a law what had already been agreed upon between the Attorney General and the railroads.

It would appear, however, that the enactment of this bill would not be without its advantages, even though, as the railroads claim, the understanding with the Attorney General is all they need in the way of temporary immunity from the penalties named in the act. In the event of the law being upheld by the Supreme Court there would be nothing left for the coal roads to do but to divest themselves of their coal lands. This could not be done in a day, and some time must needs elapse, it would appear, between the handing down of a decision and the completion of plans for the segregation of the coal lands from the coal roads. This argument is without force, of course, if it be assumed that the law will not be upheld, but, other than the opinion of the attorneys for the railroads, there is no premise upon which to base such an assumption. There is little doubt, however, that there is genuine and practically unanimous confidence on the part of the lawyers for the coal roads that the much-discussed commodity clause will be held to be invalid.

Too Late.

A very good story has recently been told in the fleet of an incident which happened when Admiral Evans was in command of the Indiana. An old-time bluejacket was at the mast before Capt. Evans, charged with getting food out of a mess chest outside of meal hours. This getting of food for night watches is a common and strong desire on the part of most men aboard ship.

Capt. Evans asked the man what he had to say; and the man, sizing up the delicate situation, said:

"Captain, I didn't take no food outer that chest. Why, Captain, there weren't no food in that chest! I looked in that chest, and, Captain, I met a cockroach coming out of that chest with tears in his eyes."—Harper's Weekly.

SHAD QUIT GRAVESEND BAY.

Fishing Fleet and the Old-Time Anglers Are Missing Now.

Dilapidated shacks along the shores of Gravesend Bay and a few rotting nets and waterlogged flatboats are about all that remain of the shad-fishing industry which once flourished in that little nook of the harbor. Fishermen who used to dwell along the shores of the bay have moved to waterways which are more frequented by fish.

Although the shad season is now on, and has been on for more than a month, not a shad net has been cast in Gravesend Bay nor a shad taken from that body of water. It is the first season in the memory of fishermen when no shad have been taken there.

The fishermen say that the dumping of garbage within the twenty-mile limit has spoiled the fishing in Gravesend Bay, together with the filling in of part of Coney Island Creek and meadows with refuse and street sweepings.

Gravesend Bay was at one time one of the most popular of the waterways near New York for shad fishermen, and thousands of the toothsome fish found their way each season to Fulton Market, or were peddled about the streets of Manhattan.

The weeks preceding the Spring run of shad in the old days were always scenes of bustling activity along the shores of the bay. Fishermen and their sons, and daughters, too, were busy overhauling the nets, tarring them, and patching the holes from the season gone before. Boats were being caulked and painted, and the sound of fisher songs could be heard from morning until night along the bay shore and for half a mile inland. Most of the fisherfolk owned neat little homes.

But one by one the fishermen have departed from Gravesend Bay, leaving their little cottages and shacks to fall into decay. Last year only a half dozen remained, and their Spring fishing was not rewarded. Then they followed the others in seeking new water.

HOW TO CATCH A MILK THIEF.

This tells how Henry Kantrowitz of 31 East 100th Street caught the milk thief. Ten days ago he began to miss the quart bottle of milk that the milkman always put on the ground-floor window sill every morning.

Last Wednesday night young Kantrowitz told his wife he would sit up all night and lay hands on the milk thief himself, but he dropped off to sleep between 4 and 5 o'clock, and the milk disappeared that morning as usual.

On Saturday night Mr. Kantrowitz succeeded in staying up until the milkman had put the milk on the window sill. He raised the window and tied one end of a spool of thread to the tin cap on the bottle. He was just about to fall asleep when the spool jumping on the floor between his feet woke him up. He leaped lightly out of the window, following a dark figure out to Second Avenue. He met Policeman Nelson. Pointing to the spool trailing behind the dark form, Mr. Kantrowitz whispered:

"See that spool? Ssh! At the other end is a bottle of milk. The milk is mine, but it is in the pocket of that mans."

Policeman Nelson caught the thief after a short chase. He said that he was Henry Wolf of 1,946 First Avenue, and that he had been very thirsty. Magistrate Harris in the Harlem Police Court find him $2.

HUNGARIAN POSTAL SYSTEM.

Increase of Business—Caring for the Employes.

Postal business has so increased in Hungary that an extension has been found necessary in every department. The telegraph side of the department is now one of the best equipped in Europe, and a few days ago the new rooms were opened, revealing a special room containing 100 Hughes and 109 Morse instruments. In Budapest alone more than 100,000,000 calls were attended in the telephone department last year, thus illustrating that Hungary is not a backward country. The number of letters (ordinary) has increased since 1895 by nearly 200,000,000.

But the special feature of the department is the importance given to social institutions within its own walls. Much of this is due to the care and ingenuity of M. Peter de Szalay. In the new premises commodious lock-up cabinets have been provided for all servants. There is also no need for any one to leave the premises for food or newspapers, seeing that an elaborate buffet is open day and night, where men may at reduced charges obtain all they need, see all the papers, and do their writing. In addition to this a large number of beautifully fitted bedrooms have been provided for the use of the night staff during their periods of relief.

There is also a flourishing sick aid society, at which 19,000 cases were treated free last year by eminent physicians; a fine choral society, sports club, casino, and an additional pension association, which within six months numbered more than 6,000 members. The head Postmaster, furthermore, realizing how difficult it was for the poorer employes to obtain cheap houses in the city, made arrangements for them to secure such houses in suburbia.

In the department itself two special reforms have had a particular effect upon trade and commerce. One is a special service for newspapers, which are delivered by separate postmen immediately after the arrival of the train, and direct from the station; the other is the payment of money orders at the home of the addressee. Hungary is rapidly earning for itself a name for social experiment such as New Zealand enjoys. It is now not backward, but forward, Hungary.—London Pall Mall Gazette.

"No."

"Did you see him gambling?"

"No."

"Then how do you know," demanded the attorney, "that the defendant had been drinking and gambling?"

Theatre Hat Problem Solved.

There is always some way out of a difficulty, and a lady has suddenly discovered one solution of the theatre-hat problem which is original, even though it is not likely to be universally adopted. A gentleman sitting in a stall behind her groaned at the presence of her headgear, others who sympathized with him joined in the protest, and soon a chorus of varied sounds went up around her, much to the annoyance of the lady. Suddenly she came to a determination, and deliverately taking off her hat she placed the "picture thing" on the groaner's knees behind her. His breath, it may be supposed, was taken away by the lady's deliberate action, as he groaned no more, and attentively nursed the sacred trust on his knees till the first act was over, when the lady took back her hat with thanks and put it on. At the opening of the second act she was about to hand her headgear to the man behind her, as she had done in the first, but he was gone. One act had been enough for him.—London Telegraph.

BAY STATE

To Stockholders of the Bay State Gas Company:

As President of the most completely prostituted and thoroughly filched live corporation creature of the recent Frenzied Finance debauch, it is my duty to point to her infamous past and her hazy present, that you, her owners, may intelligently decide whether it is more decent to end her career or to reform her into a financial beacon for the future. I would say here that it is of such small personal interest to me whether you instruct to have her knocked in the head or to start her on a new career, that I will make no other effort to influence your decision than the one I am now making—presenting you with the facts.

FIRST. There are to-day outstanding 3,691,750 shares of stock.

SECOND. The entire assets of the company consist of between $600,000 and $700,000 cash. (If certain pending suits are decided in favor of the company this amount may be increased $100,000 more or less).

THIRD. These assets may be dealt with in one of three ways—

A. They may be turned over to a new receiver appointed to dissolve the company and distribute the assets to the stockholders. (Certain lawyers who have fattened upon the company in the past are preparing to ask that such a receiver be appointed.) If this is done there will remain to be distributed, after the receiver's and attorney's fees and expenses have been deducted, a sum sufficient to pay to each share from 1 to 4 cents.

B. The present management will liquidate the company without further expense other than necessary legal and clerk hire, in which event each share will receive from 15 to 18 cents.

C. I will, as President, free of charge to the company or its stockholders, conduct the business of the company for one year from the date stockholders authorize me to do so, in which event I believe I will give the shares of the company a world-wide market value of from $4 to $5.

FOURTH. A very large proportion of the 3,691,750 shares outstanding have realized the company nothing—they have been practically stolen from the company—yet as they are in the hands of innocent holders—the public—the courts have decided all shares are of one and equal value.

FIFTH. The larger part of the outstanding stock has only cost present holders from 10 to 25 cents per share.

SIXTH. Four years ago the company was possessed of assets supposed to be worth $10,000,000 to $12,000,000. Subsequent events proved they were worth from $12,000,000 to $20,000,000. The company's indebtedness at that time consisted of but 480 bonds, which the courts decided were entitled to 7 per cent. over par, or $513,600.

SEVENTH. At the time of my selection for the presidency of your company, some few months ago, your stock had a very limited market at 12 cents per share. Upon my election I publicly stated my belief that the charter and good-will of your company as a going concern was of great worth in addition to its liquidation value, and that I would personally pay $1,000,000 over and above its liquidating value for the company. The stock thereupon advanced to $1 per share, and ever since, and up to to-day, it has had a broad and active market value of from 200 to 400 per cent. over its liquidating value.

EIGHTH. A stockholders' meeting has been called for May 18. At this meeting stockholders will be asked to vote for one of the three following propositions:

A. To have a receiver dissolve the company and distribute its assets.

B. To have the present management dissolve the company and distribute its assets.

C. To resume business under the presidency and direction of Thomas W. Lawson.

NINTH. If you desire your company's business to be under my management sign and return the proxy. If I receive such requests for a very large proportion of all the stock, or a practically unanimous request from all the stock voted at the meeting, I will consent to manage the company's affairs, but not otherwise. If under these conditions I accept the presidency of the company at the coming meeting, I will lay before stockholders my plans for the future conduct of the company's business.

THOMAS W. LAWSON,
President.

Boston, May 1, 1908.

To Stockholders of the Bay State Gas Company:

As spokesman for a large majority of the stock of the Bay State Gas Company I urgently ask all stockholders to send their proxies to Mr. Lawson.

At a time when the company was still in the hands of a receiver and the stock a drug on the market at 10 to 12 cents a share and it looked as though it could not possibly be worth more than its liquidating value, I, on behalf of a large number of shareholders, requested Mr. Lawson to accept the presidency. He consented to do so after first deciding that the company in his hands, with its broad charter, stock market good-will and cash capital, could conduct a most lucrative underwriting stock market business. Upon the announcement that Mr. Lawson had accepted the presidency the stock jumped to $1 ($2 New York) per share, and to-day, notwithstanding it is known that he will not consent to continue as president unless at the practically unanimous request of all stockholders, it is possible for all stockholders to dispose of their stock for from 200 to 250 per cent. more than they can secure for it under any other conditions.

The situation is unique and unprecedented. If any considerable number of stockholders withhold their request they will thereby themselves destroy two-thirds of the present cash worth of their stock, to say nothing of its great future possibilities.

Other than a few designing stockholders, whose desire is to harass and annoy Mr. Lawson into refusing the presidency of your company that they may keep the company's affairs in the meshes of the law, where in the future, as in the past, it will afford rich picking for themselves, it is the earnest desire of all stockholders that he be placed in full charge of the company's affairs. It is well known that the call for Mr. Lawson's services in other corporations is most urgent. Your company will indeed be favored if it can secure his services for the coming year, particularly when he has stated that he will accept no salary or other remuneration from the company until he has demonstrated by multiplying the company's assets what his services are worth for the future.

A very large amount of stock is still standing in the names of people formerly connected with the company and its transfer agencies. This stock is owned by stockholders who are not of record. I cannot too strongly impress upon such holders that they should at once either transfer the stock into their own names or send the certificates to the company with instructions that they be voted at the coming meeting for Mr. Lawson and the Board of Directors which he will present.

Hundreds of thousands of shares which were deposited in the American Loan & Trust Company, and for which owners hold American Loan & Trust Company receipts, still stand in the names of the Trust Company's clerks and will not be voted at the coming meeting unless the holders of receipts exchange them at the Trust Company's office for certificates, or ask the Trust Company for a proxy for the number of shares called for in the receipt, which will be forthcoming and which should be sent at once to Mr. Lawson.

Bear in mind if Mr. Lawson is put in charge of your company your stock will be worth at least to-day's price, 45 cents, and perhaps later a number of dollars per share; that under no other possible conditions can your stock be worth more than its liquidating value, 15 to 18 cents per share; that under no circumstances will Mr. Lawson accept the presidency of your company if any considerable opposition to his management develops.

Respectfully,
J. FRANK ALLEE.

TRIES TO JUMP FROM BRIDGE.

But Policeman Grabs a Walter Out of Work in Time to Save Him.

Pedestrians on the promenade of the Brooklyn Bridge yesterday afternoon noticed a shabbily dressed young man climb the rail on the south side of the promenade near the Manhattan tower, with the evident intention of reaching the roadway and jumping into the river.

A shout was set up by observers, but the man paid no attention to them. But Policeman Lichtenstein, some distance away from the north tower, heard the cry and started after the stranger, who, looking back at the policeman, lost his balance and toppled from the girders on to the roadway, a distance of eighteen feet. He was pretty badly hurt, but got up and sprinted toward Manhattan. At a point over South Street he made a dive for the railings, but just at that moment Lichtenstein grabbed him. His left arm had been broken by the fall, and he was taken to the Cumberland Hospital in Brooklyn, where he said he was John F. Morgan, a walter out of work, hungry, and despondent.

TELLS JEWS TO WORK FOR A NATIONAL HOME

PROGRESS OF THE WORK

Bank Organized for the Purpose a Success, He Says, but More Work Is Needed.

Joseph Cowen of London, one of the leaders in the Zionist movement, the object of which is the establishment of an independent Jewish State in Palestine, told a large audience in Clinton Hall, 151 Clinton Street, last night of the progress that the movement is making. He was received with great acclaim, and his every reference to the time when the Jew should have a land he could call his own was the occasion for enthusiastic applause.

Mr. Cowen told his audience that, while he appreciated the applause, it would not make a nation, and that if the dream of the Zionists was to be realized they would have to do more than cheer.

Prof. Richard Gottheil of Columbia was Chairman of the meeting. He introduced Mr. Cowen as one of the foremost figures in the Zion movement. He divided the Zionists into five classes: First, the spectacular Zionists, who are always in the limelight; second, the opposition Zionists, always ready to object to any proposition; third, the platonic Zionists; fourth, the practical Zionists, sometimes, he said, the most impracticable of all, and lastly, the working Zionists, who bear the burden. Mr. Cowen, he said, was a fine representative of the last group.

It was fully five minutes after Mr. Cowen arose before he could make himself heard. He began by saying that the Jewish question is confronting the world and it was up to the thinking Jews to solve the problem. He said he believed that solution would be found in the Zion movement, which, if it succeeded, would give to Judaism a permanent home in Palestine.

"It has been suggested," said Mr. Cowen, "that the Jewish question can be settled by the assimilation of the Jews in the countries where they live. Is there anything so absurd? You would ask us who do not want to to assimilate, and even if we did wish to others would not let us. This question is bigger than a political or religious question. Others tell us that the mission of the Jew is to preach his religion to the people among whom he goes. That, too, is out of the question as a solution of the question. Still others advocate what I may term a 'do-nothing' system.

"This do nothing spirit has sent us flying from one end of the world to the other without a bit of land we can call our own. Organization is what we need. Our aims are clear and distinct, we are Nationalist Jews, and desire a Jewish State in Palestine, and if we stick to our opinions we shall force them upon the mind of every thinking Jew. We are told that dangers lie in the path of this nationalization. Of course they do, but they are dangers that a people worthy of the name will take upon their shoulders."

Mr. Cowen said that the movement for an independent Jewish State in Palestine would not imperil the Americanism of Jews who are citizens of the United States.

"Good Americans," he said, "help persecuted Jews in other lands, and why cannot good American Jews help persecuted Jews, or is it that you have not yet assimilated this good American spirit?

"You cannot produce Jewish ideals unless you have a home, a land of your own. I believe we can set up in Palestine a State that would be so well governed that the world would look upon it and see in it the working out of the Ten Commandments."

Mr. Cowen said that the Jewish Colonial Trust created by the Zionist Congress several years ago was in fine shape, and that this was the third year in succession that it had declared a dividend. The bank, he said, had at first been described as a scheme to rob the Jews, and the men in it had been talked about like race track welchers, but the bank had lived through it all, he said, and was to-day on a paying basis.

Mr. Cowen also referred to the tax of 5 francs levied by the last Zionist Congress upon the Jews of the world to create a party fund. America had made a very poor showing in paying its part of that fund so far, he added.

"The books show that only $1,000 has been received from America," he said, "and of this $800 came from St. Louis."

There was a painful silence in the hall, and Mr. Cowen turned to Prof. Gottheil and remarked:

"You don't hear so much applause now, do you?"

"If you are to realize all this in your day," he concluded, turning to his audience, "you must work as well as cheer. We want enthusiasm, but we want something else also. Shouting is fine, but you must realize that you must do your part in making up this fund if the work is to go on."

RABBI WISE ON A FREE PRESS.

He Warns Against Wall Street as Well as Union Square Mobs.

Dr. Stephen S. Wise, rabbi of the Free Synagogue, preached yesterday on "The Power of the Press." The three great powers of the world he regarded as the school, the church, and the press.

"The power of the press is for sale," he continued, "whenever a word is written or left unwritten to gain favor, to appeal to the passions of men, to play upon the prejudices of the multitude, to avoid giving displeasure or incurring the animosity of advertisers.

"Is ours a representative or a popular Government, if a man whom our suffrages has placed in the Legislature represents not his constituency nor his convictions, but confessedly and unblushingly accepts as final the mandate of a telegram?

"When passions run high and prejudices are aroused the press must hold high the emancipating and darkness dispelling torch of reason. The press must oppose the domination of mobs, well dressed or poorly dressed, Wall Street anti-Roosevelt mobs as well as Union Square mobs.

"To-day the press ought to lift up its voice like a trumpet in defense of the right of free speech. When once the right of free speech is gone the right of the free press will speedily follow."

DOMESTIC SCIENCE EXHIBIT.

Big Audiences Crowd Educational Alliance to See Work of Boys and Girls.

The exhibition yesterday of the work of the classes in domestic service, art, and manual training at the Educational Alliance drew crowds both morning and afternoon. The afternoon visitors were largely the children of the neighborhood.

The display of carpentry filled three sides of a large room, and represented less than a fifth of the work done by thirty-six boys, about fourteen years old, working only two afternoons a week, who when they started in had had no training in the use of tools. Besides specimens of technical work there were whole sets of toy furniture, with miniature drawers and doors that opened and shut. Around these the children flocked in droves. The manual training classes prepare the boys to enter the Hebrew Technical Institute.

In the next room was the exhibition of art and domestic science. This room was crowded with admiring mothers and proud daughters. The older women came with shawls and earrings, but the younger generation came clothed in tailored suits of such perfect fit as to raise the suspicion that the neatly placed handkerchief in each coat pocket had been inserted by aid of a shoehorn.

Around the centre tables were assembled all the youths of the region, gazing longingly upon the cooking exhibit. Even the junior table, showing the culinary accomplishments of nine-year-old girls, boasted of poundcake, oatmeal cookies, cup-cakes, Dutch apple cake, custards, graham bread, and orange marmalade. The senior work included cutlets, broiled chicken, rost beef, pickled beets, layer cakes, poached eggs, spinach, lemon meringue pie, and bonbons.

These two exhibits were presided over by the older girls in white caps and aprons. This course includes training in setting a table, home nursing, and "first aid to the injured." At the end each girl receives her cook book, with all the recipes typewritten and indexed.

After the cooking came the dressmaking, and then the millinery. An interesting exhibit was a counter full of shirtwaists made by immigrant girls in the so-called "operating classes," where they are taught once a week to run the different kinds of machines used in sewing factories.

The regular course takes four years, and the children start at ten, the girls receiving first manual training in raffia work. On completing the course the fourteen-year-old girl is capable of making her entire wardrobe. This part of the work is under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary, under the leadership of Mrs. Morris Loeb. Its object is to make the girls capable housewives.

All the pupils pay a nominal sum for instruction. The millinery class provides its own materials, and the completed work goes to the girl who makes it. Nothing is given absolutely free, and the majority of the pupils are working girls who give up their evenings to the classes.

CURE FOR THE STAGE STRUCK.

The Children's Theatre Does It, Says Miss Herts, Its Originator.

The "educational theatre," or the "children's theatre," as it is popularly known, in which Mark Twain has taken so much interest, is the best cure for the "stage struck," according to Miss A. Minnie Herts, its director and originator, who spoke yesterday afternoon at the dedication of the Second House of the Harlem Federation for Jewish Communal Work at 238 East 105th Street.

"Many have come to us 'stage struck,' you might call it," said she, "only following out a God-given impulse within them which could be splendidly used for education and character development if properly directed. We have tried to train them aright and have satisfied their longings for the enactment of characters outside of themselves, and not one of the 530 who have taken part in our plans has gone to the professional stage.

"The Educational Theatre is soon to become a separate organization from the Educational Alliance, with a new Board of Directors, and we are to have teachers to aid the youthful actors in their work."

Marcus M. Marks was introduced by Dr. Maurice H. Harris as the "representative and defender of the under dog." Dr. Harris said he considered the $14,000 mortgage on the Second House and the deficit of $1,500 in current expenses a cause for congratulation, as a deficit "shows you are growing, and that you have a live institution. Dead institutions are not apt to have deficits." He urged the institution to inculcate in the children a love of freedom and respect for law.

The Federation Orchestra and the Glee Club furnished the music.

NEW NURSERY DEDICATED.

Home for Little Ones Opened at 29 Montgomery Street.

Dr. Magnus, rabbi of Temple Emanu-El, assisted by Rabbi Pierre Mendes, dedicated a new nursery and kindergarten for Jewish orphans and poor children yesterday at 29 Montgomery Street, which has accommodation for seventy-two.

It is intended to keep the children there in the daytime, educate them, and hand them over to their mothers when they return from work in the evening. The ages of the seventy children who were there yesterday ranged from 2 to 5 years. For the babies there are neat little cots on the second floor, baths on the third floor, and a playground in the rear for the older ones. Meals are served on the ground floor, and the schoolroom is on the floor above.

The majority of the youngsters are orphans, others have no father, and some of them belong to poor parents who cannot afford to look after them properly, as they have to go out to work daily.

After the opening ceremony yesterday a hot dinner with cakes was served to the children, and a one-act pastoral play entitled "Brother and Sister" was performed by Annie Lappin, 5½ years old; George Julius, 4, and Sadie Kirchenbaum, 5¼, assisted by a chorus of twenty-five children of the district.

MISSING WIFE RETURNS.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., May 3.—Eighty-year-old Charles Penn of Laurel Place, Upper Montclair, was overjoyed yesterday when his 30-year-old wife, whom he had mourned as dead, returned home. His joy was short lived, however. Mrs. Penn had merely returned to get her clothes.

The young wife left home last September to visit relatives in Brooklyn. After spending a few days in Brooklyn she started for home. A relative accompanied her to the Hoboken ferry, and that was the last seen of her by her husband until she appeared here yesterday.

Mrs. Penn is pretty, and her husband spent nearly $1,000 hiring detectives and following up clues which amounted to nothing. Yesterday when Mrs. Penn appeared the old man was almost overcome at her reappearance and made a dash to embrace her, but she waved him off.

"Nothing doing," she said, and her Merry Widow hat, tilted at a threatening angle, forebade any further advances. "I've only come back for my clothes and I don't want any more of your company."

The octogenarian resented this treatment from his youthful spouse and retorted in language that led to a bitter quarrel. The wife only got her clothes with the aid of a policeman. She told the police that she was going back to Brooklyn to live with a brother-in-law, with whom she had lived since she left her husband.

MOB TRIES TO KILL A DOUBLE MURDERER

SAYS HE'S GLAD HE DID IT

He Followed the Girl from Europe and Kept on Her Trail as She Moved from Place to Place to Avoid Him.

William Sekanski, a young Pole, last night shot and killed Anna Kockona, a girl who had refused to marry him, and then wounded Michael Kirsain of 71 Worth Street, who came to her assistance, so severely that he died later in the hospital in Williamsburg. Sekanski was chased and captured by a mob near where the crime was committed, and was rescued by the police with the greatest difficulty. The crowd was intent on beating the murderer to death or hanging him on the spot.

Both Sekanski and the girl boarded in the house of Paul Matlewich, 92 Kent Avenue. According to the story of the people in the house, Sekanski and the girl had been sweethearts in their native town of Wenna. The girl, however, had broken off with the man and had come to this country a year ago. She got employment in Boston, where she was soon discovered by Sekanski, who had followed her from Poland. She left Boston and went to Newburyport, Mass. But the man followed her there, threatening her if she did not marry him. A month ago the girl arrived in New York and obtained employment in a jute mill in Greenpoint. Last Thursday Sekanski arrived. When she got home from work on that day she found that he had engaged board in the house also.

Yesterday evening the girl was leaving the house, after conversation with Sekanski, during the course of which she had refused him many times, when he followed her. On the threshold he again demanded that she marry him. Upon her refusal he took out a big revolver.

Kirsain was passing the house. As the girl fell he rushed forward and put his hand on Sekanski and the murderer fired a shot into Kirsain's stomach and Kirsain fell.

Sekanski, with the revolver in his hand, ran half the block to North Ninth Street. A crowd soon followed. In the chase Sekanski dropped his weapon and at Wythe Avenue was caught. Within a few moments a crowd of 500 persons was about him. While some of the crowd beat and kicked him, others got a rope. There were cries of "Lynch him!"

The murderer was by this time almost insensible. Policemen Joseph Ferguson and Owen Kelly of the Bedford Avenue Station appeared. With the aid of their clubs and the butt ends of their pistols they broke through the crowd. After some blows had been struck they took up the march for the station house with their prisoner. Before they had gone very far along Wythe Avenue, however, the crowd gave them so much trouble that they hurried to the house of Engine Company 112, at Wythe Avenue and North Eighth Street. The firemen saw the police and their pursuers coming, and, quickly opening the doors, let the policemen in and slammed the doors shut. Then the firemen and the police ordered the crowd away, while the reserves were sent for from the Bedford Avenue Station. When these arrived the prisoner was taken to the station house in the patrol wagon, closely guarded, through a crowd of several thousand persons.

In the station house Sekanski said that he did not regret what he had done.

"She should have married me," he said.

He said that he had not had time to get employment since he arrived in the city. He was a painter, he said.

The girl was barely breathing when an ambulance was taking her to the Eastern District Hospital. She died before the hospital was reached. Kirsain died two hours after the shooting, in the Eastern District Hospital.

BROOKLYN NEEDS SCHOOLS.

Clarence D. Kingsley Says That Congestion Will Soon Become Serious.

Clarence D. Kingsley of the Manual Training High School of Brooklyn, and Chairman of the Teachers' Committee on the Increase of School Accommodation, presented a report on Saturday to the High School Teachers' Association, assembled in the High School of Commerce, calling attention to what his committee declared was an urgent need in Brooklyn for high schools.

"Those in the schools are fully aware," said he, "that a serious condition in Brooklyn is inevitable and that if steps are not taken soon it will be many years before the high schools can recover from the congestion which is already in its incipient stage. All of the six Brooklyn high schools are now so overcrowded that the quality of work is seriously impaired.

"Moreover, last February, of the students who applied for admission to the high schools, 1,911 were compelled to go to annexes. These annexes are temporary makeshifts. They are resorted to only as an emergency method of relief."

Mr. Kingsley finds that the yearly increase of registration in the high schools is 21 per cent., and that in five years, instead of having 13,409 pupils in the high schools, there will be 35,252. This would require each of the six high schools of Brooklyn to have three and a half sessions each day in order to accommodate the pupils even on part time.

ELOPEMENT NO SURPRISE.

"Tell Them to Go Ahead," Said Girl's Mother to Informing Policeman.

Lewis Everson, 21, from Newburg, N. Y., and looking decidedly up-State, led Lily Fingers, 19, also of Newburg, into the Eldridge Street Police Station last night and bashfully but finally made Lieut. Sweeney understand that they wanted to get married, and would he help them find a parson.

"Suspicious," said the Lieutenant in a stage whisper.

The bashful couple were finally induced to have a seat in the Captain's office, while the obliging Lieutenant would find a parson. Instead, he called up Lieut. Manion of the Central Office and told him to 'phone to Newburg quick. The Newburg Chief of Police sent a policeman around to 37 Spring Street, that city, where the young girl lives and Lewis is a boarder.

"Gone to New York to get married, have they?" the girl's mother asked, and she added, before the policeman could reply, "Tell them to go ahead."

In a few minutes Lieut. Sweeney walked into the Captain's office, expressed his deep regret that a minister could not be found so late at night, that in fact they had better go over to New Jersey if they wanted to be married, as they would have to get a license here.

"Won't mamma be surprised?" questioned the girl as the policeman started them off for the nearest ferry to Jersey City.

Even If Used as One, Jersey Court Holds in Saloon License Test Case.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, May 3.—The Supreme Court has given a decision in which it settles the question as to when a building used for worship is not a church in the eyes of the law. The decision affects the French Baptist Congregation of this city, which meets in a small building in Twelfth Avenue.

The church people objected to the granting of a liquor license to William Hunt, and contended that the law prohibiting saloons within 200 feet of a church edifice made the Board of Aldermen powerless to grant a license to Hunt. The court in its decision recognizes the congregation as a properly incorporated religious body, but does not recognize the house in which the services are held as being within the strict meaning of the term church edifice.

IN NEW JERSEY.

Joseph Coogan, who lives in a lodging house at 50 Montgomery Street, Jersey City, is in the City Hospital there, with a bullet in his neck. He claims it was put there by John Slaininski of 124 Essex Street. Slaininski, who is under arrest, denies the shooting. He says Coogan went to his apartments and insisted that Slaininski should buy a cat he had. A row followed, when Slaininski ordered Coogan out of the house.

Elias Ellis, a negro employed in the McAdoo tunnel, was passing Grand and Hudson Streets, Jersey City, yesterday afternoon, when a baseball struck him on the leg. He picked up the ball and refused to give it to a number of boys who claimed it. A row followed, and Ellis drew a revolver. He fired several shots into the crowd of boys, one of the bullets hitting Matthew McNulty of 51 Grand Street in the left leg. The boys and some men who witnessed the shooting attacked Ellis, and he would probably have been killed but for the timely arrival of several policemen. He was locked up, and McNulty was sent to the hospital.

The Spanish War Veterans of Major John Engel Camp, Hackensack, recently gave a kirmess and raised $700 with which to buy a suitable burial plot for their members. The Trustees of the New York Cemetery in Hackensack asked the Veterans' committee to select their plot, and then donated it to the camp. The Veterans will now use the money to buy an appropriate monument.

Senator Edmund W. Wakelee of Bergen County will succeed Clarence E. Breckenridge as a member of the State Republican Committee, the latter having served sixteen years.
